POLICE VETERANS HELD IN ROBBERY

MONTREAL (CP) — Two veteran provincial police officers and three other men are being held in connection with Tuesday's $1-million robbery in St. Jovite, police said today.

Two suspects were still being sought.

One of the police officers arrested is a 25-year veteran of the Quebec provincial police while the other had been with the force for 16 years.

"All the money was recovered," said Lieut. Raymond Gerard.

The robbery occurred when four armed men burst into a roadside diner in St. Jovite, 100 kilometres north of here, and surprised three security guards who had stopped for a snack at a roadside diner and left the armored truck unguarded in the parking lot.

Lieut. Gerard said the two policemen had used their badges to pass the road blocks which had been set up around the St. Jovite area following the early-morning robbery.

"Everybody that goes through the road blocks must sign," he said. "When we checked later we suspected these two because they were not involved in the case but had been in the area."

Welfare Cash Went To Travel

Some of the cash from the human resources ministry's $110 million budget surplus went to promote tourism, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm revealed Wednesday.

The minister mentioned the transfer — he did not specify how much money was involved — when he was criticized by University of Victoria students for not using the surplus to increase payments to welfare recipients and the handicapped or initiate new programs (also see story on page 21).

Vander Zalm said some of the surplus was divided among other ministries, including the travel ministry, which got a share to promotion tourism in B.C.

VIOLENCE ALSO OBSCENE

MPs Get Tough In Porn Report

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons justice committee recommended Wednesday that the Criminal Code definition of obscenity be amended to include not only undue exploitation of sex but also of crime, horror, cruelty, violence, "or the undue degradation of the human person."

The all-party committee's unanimous report was tabled in the Commons by chairman Mark McGuigan (L—Windsor-Walkerville) and may form the basis of changes in the law.

"It broadens the definition of obscenity to include not only sex but violence in movies, magazines and elsewhere," MacGuigan said in an interview. "It means that 'death race' games could be found to be obscene."

The proposed law would also make obscene any material that shows or describes children under 16 engaged in sexual or sexually-suggestive acts.

The committee also recommended that the "community standard" approach be reinforced through changes in the law that would allow an attorney-general to order a jury trial, whether the accused wanted one or not.

Also aimed at reinforcing the "community standard," to reflect regional or local feelings about what is or is not obscene would be another legal change making the testimony of so-called expert witnesses inadmissible.

Since the present law was enacted in 1959, courts have decided the community standard to be applied is on a country-wide, not regional or local basis. Expert testimony has played heavily in determining the standard although the committee said expert testimony is largely based on "hunches, impressions and subjective judgments."

The committee said real community standards are local in nature and should be determined by residents through jury trials.

The committee also recommended that:

—The maximum penalty for a first offence under the obscenity law be raised to five years in prison, and 10 years for subsequent offences. Judges could impose a fine as well, or simply fine a convicted person in lieu of imprisonment.

—Prosecutors or police seek orders of forfeiture in obscenity cases enabling them to seize and destroy offending material if the accused is unable to convince a judge it shouldn't be forfeited. The committee noted that it isn't necessary to charge a person in such cases.

—Section 165 of the Criminal Code be amended to provide for automatic forfeiture of such material on conviction. Currently, the material must often be returned after trial to the person who is convicted.

—Anyone procuring a child or profiting from the "avails

TWO-TIME PREVUE WINNER

Hard work has again paid off for Mrs. W. H. Christmas, the winner of $350 in the Times Prevue Puzzle contest.

In February she won a Prevue Puzzle prize of $300.

Mrs. Christmas, of 1326 Richardson, says she spends about three hours every weekend working through the puzzle and is delighted that the effort has paid off twice.

A Royal Bank employee at the Cook and Oxford branch, she loves crossword puzzles and has been entering the contest from the beginning.

Economy Hinges On Quebec - PM

Times News Services

NEW YORK — Prime Minister Trudeau told 2,000 U.S. corporate leaders and a Canadian television audience Wednesday that Canada's economic recovery hinges on a fast, fair solution to questions posed by Quebec separatism.

"There can be no question that our economic prospects are clouded by the current uncertainty over the future unity of our country," Trudeau said in a 45-minute speech to a black-tie crowd of businessmen described by one observer as Canada's "friends and creditors."

The speech, however, appeared to have little effect on money markets today.

The dollar traded within a narrow range all morning in what dealers described as quiet trading.

"There's been practically no reaction to the speech," said a senior trader for the Provincial Bank of Canada. "The market is just about dead."

Trudeau devoted only one-tenth of his 5,000-word address to the Quebec question — he spent the bulk of time dealing with economic issues at home and abroad — but it appeared to be the issue uppermost in the minds of the sell-out audience attending the Economic Club of New York dinner.

"Separatism is still a worry to us," commented one industrialist as he left, recalling Quebec Premier Rene Levesque's words at a similar dinner here 14 months ago when the premier described Quebec independence as inevitable, "as natural and irreversible as growth itself."

Trudeau's remarks were apparently aimed at several audiences — the U.S. financial community, the U.S. government, Quebec and Canadian voters.

SALMONELLA ON UPSWING

A noticeable increase in salmonella infection has occurred in Greater Victoria since the beginning of the year.

Of the 23 reported cases in the past three months, scattered throughout the capital region, the majority have involved children and adolescents.

Arneil said his department has questioned all the patients on their eating and drinking habits to ascertain whether there are any common sources of infection, including eating establishments.

But to date no such indication has surfaced.

"It's a bit of a detective game," he said. "The increase is curious, but it's certainly nothing to get alarmed about."

Arneil described salmonella as a "very ubiquitous" bacteria infection which affects all animals and birds, as well as humans.

It usually produces an acute bout of gastro-enteritis, some 12 to 48 hours after ingestion of the infected foodstuff, and the illness lasts a day or two.

But those who have had it can remain carriers of the infection for much longer periods, in some cases for several months.

Arneil said there are 360 different types of salmonella. But one specific type, called typhimurium (no connection with typhoid), has been most evident in Greater Victoria.

"Prevention lies in good personal hygiene — washing hands after using the toilet — and efficient sanitary disposal of sewage, he added.

Motorists Under Arrest For Ignoring Fine Print

The use of TTIs — traffic ticket informations — by Saanich police has resulted in more than 14 motorists being arrested and detained.

Provincial court administrator George Williams said today authorities are concerned about people being locked up but suggested it may be that persons being issued the combination traffic ticket-information slips are ignoring the fine print.

Saanich began using the TTIs only about two months ago although authority for their use has existed for more than 10 years.

Victoria police are about to adopt the TTIs along with Oak Bay and Esquimalt police.

Central Saanich police use the TTIs and RCMP have issued them from about the time of their inception.

The ticket cites an alleged traffic offence and carries a date upon which the person receiving the ticket should appear in court to contest it.

There is an option to voluntarily pay a penalty before that date, which would end the matter.

"People are ignoring them," Williams said.

"They don't read the part on the ticket that says they are required to appear if they don't pay the voluntary penalty."

In such cases if the police officer concerned has sworn an affidavit proving service of the TTI, the court issues a warrant and the alleged offender is arrested.

Williams said in some cases a person may choose to pay the voluntary penalty yet still find himself in jail because his fine payment is in the mail.

To prevent this possibility, the court will hold on to arrest warrants for seven clear court days, Williams said.

4th Time Lucky?

Shirley MacLaine is a sentimental favorite in Hollywood to win the Oscar as best actress after coming up empty in three previous tries.

But while sentiment is a powerful force in the film capital, most observers believe the voting will be close because of obvious waves of support for Diane Keaton, Jane Fonda, Anne Bancroft and Marsha Mason.

The Times and CJVI are offering a chance on a visit to Hollywood for two plus 10 other major prizes for readers who correctly predict the Oscar winners for best actress, best actor and best picture. Official entry form is in the advertisement on page 10.

Shirley MacLaine was previously nominated for Some Came Running, The Apartment and Irma La Douce.

This year she played opposite Anne Bancroft in The Turning Point and both have been nominated as best actress.

Six Centres Hit By PWA

Pacific Western Airlines employees today hit six centres with 24-hour strikes — including three on Vancouver Island — causing delays of more than an hour on some flights.

The 550 members of the Canadian Air Lines Employees Association (CALEA) began the rotating strikes at noon Wednesday following the breakdown of negotiations the previous day.

The first centres to be hit were Cranbrook, Castlegar, Kamloops and Prince George, involving about 32 employees.

Cargo, passenger and reservation personnel today walked off the job at Yellowknife, Edmonton, Powell River, Comox, Campbell River, and Port Hardy. About 200 employees are involved.

A check with the airline's arrival and departure desk showed that a morning flight from Edmonton to Vancouver was an hour and 32 minutes late and other delays ranged from 17 to 45 minutes.

PWA Flight 2100, Vancouver-Victoria-Seattle, was 45 minutes late departing this morning.

A CALEA spokesman said today flights will not be grounded because although pilots and flight attendants support the striking workers' cause they will continue to work because of stipulations in their contracts.

The CALEA members have also embarked on a work-to-rule campaign, have banned overtime and are holding study sessions in some centres.

Stiff Rules to Cut Gov't Car Costs

The provincial government has outlined tough new rules to ensure its 6,000-vehicle fleet is reduced in size and run more efficiently.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe said Wednesday a seven-page document sent out to government departments is designed to cut the cost of the fleet, worth about $30 million and costing about half that amount annually to run.

The document says there is to be no off-hour use of any government vehicle except on government business and one or two other specified exceptions.

Infractions of the personal use policy will bring punishment ranging from written warnings to firing.

Basically the new policy calls for wider use of compact cars and stricter regulations on personal use of the vehicles.

Wolfe said some people may be frustrated by the new regulations but they are badly needed.

The policy is the result of a year-long study after a promise from Premier Bill Bennett that he would look into the government fleet.

The guidelines outline rules for buying, running, storing and replacements and calls for pooling wherever possible, and the suggestion public transit be used.

The forestry service and highways department operate about 1,700 vehicles each, and health and attorney-general's department about 800 each.

More than half the fleet consists of pick-up trucks and vans. Heavy equipment is not included in the 6,000 figure.

The policy document says a pool of cars should be kept at airports and ferry terminals for employees to choose from so that an individual's car is not left in an airport parking lot all day with no one else able to use it.

Some ministries already follow this policy.

Individuals will be issued vehicles only when they drive more than 12,875 kilometres a year. Vehicles will be replaced only under stringent guidelines.

Small cars will be mandatory.

There are also plans for a vehicle identification program (VIP) and a computerized central registration of every vehicle so the government can keep track of its type, ministry and assigned location.

Weather Blocks Cleanup as Oil Leaks

BREST, France (UPI) — Thousands of tons of oil still inside the wrecked supertanker Amoco Cadiz probably will ooze into the ocean before weather allows crews to pump the hulk dry, marine authorities say.

Navy authorities said some 50,000 tons of oil left in the supertanker were leaking out of gashed tanks at the rate of 300 tons an hour.

At least 170,000 tons have gushed out to blacken the once-beautiful beaches of Brittany and kill thousands of oysters, fish and birds.

At the present rate of leakage, the battered ship's tanks possibly will be empty by the time the spring tide abates Monday, said Harry Rinkeman, spokesman of Amoco, subsidiary of Standard Oil of Indiana which owns the ship.

He said there also is a danger the craft will disintegrate in raging seas any second, spewing remaining oil into the sea.

The black tide, as the French call the oil slick, has sloshed from Portsall south to Le Conquet and northeast to the Sept Iles island chain, known as Europe's finest wild bird sanctuary.

An estimated 1,000 Breton fishermen waving signs saying "Stop Pollution" marched peacefully in Brest Wednesday. Their leaders said 1,300 tons of oysters have been destroyed.

Winds up to 75 mph were forecast today, which could push the foul-smelling oil farther up onto Brittany's once-white sand dunes. The high spring tide is scheduled for Sunday and could pull more oil onto the beaches.

TANKER THREAT IN MISSISSIPPI

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The U.S. Coast Guard worked Wednesday night to prevent a major oil spill from a tanker that ran aground in the Mississippi River and began taking on water. It was carrying more than 17 million gallons of crude oil.

The Gulf Coast Strike Team from Bay St. Louis, Miss., a special anti-pollution tactical unit, worked through the night to try to refloat the 865-foot Norwegian vessel, the Mv. Bjorgan, by pumping 750 tons of water from its damaged stern.

"The strike team is rigged and ready to pump," he said. "The water level is right at river level, so it's not going to get any worse."

Que. Key to Economy

In his speech and in a subsequent question-and-answer session, he assured U.S. businessmen that Canada wants and needs their investments in natural resources and energy projects.

And he attempted to sooth his Canadian audience with pledges of stiff government spending restraint, a larger role for private business and an acknowledgement that his administration had "moved too far, too fast" with some past spending programs.

Economic growth faltered during the last two years because Canadians became "victims of our own success," he said. Unrealistic wage hopes, born of three decades of economic prosperity, had created inflation that, in turn, undermined Canada's ability to compete internationally.

Nonetheless, he argued, recovery was under way, together with a "renewed spirit of collaboration" between various government levels, business and labor.

Despite his assurances, opposition spokesmen reacted skeptically. Opposition Leader Joe Clark told reporters in Ottawa that he couldn't understand why Trudeau even made the trip. The prime minister made no specific proposals to aid the country's economy.

NDP Leader Ed Broadbent, also in Ottawa, agreed, complaining that Trudeau wasted an opportunity to "show concrete steps" that might be taken to deal with domestic economic problems.

Trudeau used his remarks to set the tone for an election campaign widely expected later this spring, possibly in June. At one point, there was some suggestion that he had dropped an election date during chit-chat over dinner.

A questioner had asked why Trudeau remained in politics after 10 years as prime minister.

"I feel that our party and myself as a member of it have the right answers still today to the questions which arise," Trudeau replied.

Despite the rumors of a June general election, Canadians can expect a new federal budget "soon" and it may include tax cuts, Finance Minister Jean Chretien said Wednesday.

"We will be presenting a budget," Chretien told the Commons in response to opposition MPs who questioned his figures that recent government tax credits pumped $3 billion back into the ailing economy.

"Soon," he told Clark when pressed for an exact date.

Tough Porn Laws

of the defilement, seduction or prostitution of a child" be liable to imprisonment for up to 10 years.

In "a call to concerted action," the committee also urged that:

—Police forces in Canada and the United States begin "a vigorous campaign to detect, apprehend and prosecute those involved in the production, manufacture, distribution, importation and sale of sexually explicit material." The aim would be to "dismantle these criminal networks" which the committee said make immense profits from the material.

—The customs department be beefed up to detect and prohibit sexually explicit material coming into Canada. The committee said 80 per cent comes from the United States and most of the rest from Europe.

—Provincial, regional, municipal and local authorities adopt licensing, zoning and child protection laws, by-laws or regulations to ensure discreet advertising, display or sale of sexually explicit material to adults.

The country had been inundated in the last 10 years in sexually-explicit paperbacks, magazines, photos, movies, videotapes, comics, records, marital aids and artificial sexual organs.

"Many types of human activity, such as sodomy, cunnilingus, fellatio, incest, masturbation, bestiality, necrophilia, sadism, masochism, defecation and urination, are depicted . . ."

The committee, which saw displays of such material early in its hearings this winter, said "the situation has seriously degenerated" since the days of cheesecake photographs and girlie magazines.

"Women are depicted as sexual objects whose only redeeming features are their genital and erotic zones which are prominently displayed in minute details."

An influx of "kiddie porn" exploited children and was "clearly unacceptable in contemporary Canadian society."

"The clear and unquestionable danger of this type of material is that it reinforces some unhealthy tendencies in Canadian society," the report said. "The effect . . . is to reinforce male-female stereotypes to the detriment of both sexes. It attempts to make degradation, humiliation, victimization and violence in human relationships appear normal and acceptable.

"A society which holds that egalitarianism, non-violence, consensualism and mutuality are basic to any human interaction, whether sexual or other, is clearly justified in controlling and prohibiting any medium of depiction, description or advocacy which violates these principles."

the weather

March is traditionally a stormy month along the B.C. coast, but this year the storms have tended to stay off shore, with just the fringe weather reaching the coast. Another of these storms is hovering in the Pacific, and an associated frontal system has spread rain along the coast and will be accompanied by showers as it moves through B.C. to the east by late tonight. The storm centre will weaken but remain off shore acting as a giant moisture pinwheel. This will result in showery slightly cooler weather over most of B.C. for the first part of the Easter weekend.

Good Grief! Almost As Fast As the Mail. . .

BURNABY (CP) — A group of Grade 1 pupils from Nanaimo have proven that it takes four days to fly a message across the Strait of Georgia — by balloon.

The children at Montecito Elementary School in Burnaby have a balloon with a message attached that only took four days to float the 65-odd kilometres to Burnaby from Nanaimo.

It's just a run-of-the-mill green balloon, launched by grade 1 children in Nanaimo, that landed in Gilbert Ashton's front yard in Burnaby.

Ashton turned it over to neighbor Mary Downey, a teacher in the Grade 1-to-Grade 3 open-area class at Montecito school.

The letter read: "Dear Someone: We are writing this message and we are putting it on the balloon. We want to know where the balloon is going to go. We would like you to contact us by phone or letter to tell us where our balloon landed."

It is signed by 'Mrs. Allen's class, Grade one, Dufferin Crescent School, Nanaimo.'

The Montecito school children plan to reply, by mail, to ensure the letter arrives. According to Wayne Reis, Dufferin Crescent school principal, the message to Burnaby is the only one known so far to have made it out of the city of Nanaimo via balloon.

He said a total of seven letters were launched March 10 attached to balloons filled with helium. One balloon came down on the school playground only 15 minutes after it was launched, while two others landed on the other side of town. Three are still missing.

The letters were written by the Dufferin school Grades 1 and 2 classes as part of a science project on air currents.

Indian Sues Over Trapline

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Indian trapper and the Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs have filed a federal court suit against the National Energy Board charging the board breached its duties in connection with pipeline construction in the Cariboo.

The pipeline belongs to Westcoast Transmission Co.

The suit alleges Davis had the right to use and occupy the now-damaged trapping lands before Westcoast was licensed for pipeline construction. The suit alleges pipeline construction had begun "contrary to the provisions of the National Energy Board Act and regulations."

Male Contraceptive Researcher Quits

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Robin Percival-Smith of the University of British Columbia said Wednesday that he has given up trying to research male contraception.

He has returned money donated for the project to the World Health Organization.

"For some reason, best known to them, it appears the Canadian government is not interested in promoting research into the discovery of an effective male contraceptive, although it makes sizable contributions to the World Health Organization," Percival-Smith said.

A group of WHO doctors told him 2½ years ago that they were looking for a Canadian centre to co-operate with their Human Reproduction Unit to find an effective male contraceptive.

Two drugs — Testosterone (a male hormone) and Provera (the female hormone, progestogen), both available in Canada — were to be used in the research. When taken together they act as a male contraceptive.

Money was advanced for the project in August, 1976, and in January, 1977, a number of local volunteers had been recruited.

But then WHO was told the research could not continue until more information about the drugs was supplied. But Percival-Smith said the Health Protection Branch did not directly inform him.

"They have been treating me as if I were a drug manufacturer trying to bring in new drugs," he said.

He said his experience with federal red tape has led him to believe the government is opposed to Canada taking part in male contraceptive research.

BCFP Slates $41M Spending

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. said Wednesday it will spend more than $41 million this year on upgrading its operations.

The capital expenditures were outlined in the company's annual report which said the bulk of money will go toward modernization projects already under way.

Two of the projects are at the Crofton pulp mill on Vancouver Island. A $13 million waste-wood burning power boiler will be completed mid-way through this year and a $4.2 million primary effluent clarifier is also being installed.

A $3.6 million dry land log sorting facility is being built near the Crofton mill and will handle the largest volume of logs of any such facility on the coast.

New projects include a $3.5 million planner mill at the company's Victoria sawmill, an increased logging road construction program and a $6.3 million electric power generating plant at Mackenzie.

The report predicted lumber sales will remain at satisfactory levels while plywood sales in Canada will remain difficult with some overseas improvement. Newsprint, coated paper and aspen waferboard sales should also remain strong.

The report said there will be no change in the company's two pulp mill operating rates. The two ran at 81 per cent of capacity last year.

As reported previously, BCFP's 1977 earnings rose 34 per cent to a record high of $35.1 million or $4.58 a share from $26.2 million or $3.40 a share in 1976.

Sales rose 25 per cent to a record $491.9 million from $392 million.

Gang Killing?

NEW YORK (UPI) — A New Jersey Teamsters official Salvatore Briguglio, once suspected of involvement in the 1975 disappearance of Jimmy Hoffa was gunned down gangland-style in Manhattan's Little Italy section Tuesday night, police said.

CANADA PENSION PLAN CHANGES.

Better Benefits For Some.

Divorce or Annulment.

CPP pension credits earned by a husband and wife during marriage may be divided equally between them if the marriage ends in divorce or annulment after January 1, 1978. This ensures that an asset accumulated through the efforts of both spouses while they were married can be shared equally by both when the marriage is dissolved.

Retroactive Payment of Retirement Benefits.

Retirement benefits may now be paid retroactively for a period of up to 12 months to contributors who had attained age 65 but who are under age 70 and who have retired from the labour force.

Post-Mortem Benefits.

Applications for retroactive benefits (i.e. up to 12 months) can now be made on behalf of a deceased person, in cases where a contributor qualified, but failed to apply, before death. Families or estates will be entitled to receive benefits in such cases.

Elimination of Reductions in Children's Benefits.

Orphans' and disabled contributors' children's benefits are no longer reduced for the fifth and subsequent children. All children in a family, regardless of its size, are eligible to receive equal benefits.

'May Make Regulations . . .'

Parliament is supreme, can make laws and unmake them. Or so the political science textbooks tell us. One MP recently demonstrated really how "powerless" Parliament has become, how power has shifted to the bureaucracy.

During debate of bill C-4, amendments to the Aeroneautics Act which concern charges for the use of airports and other matters, Conservative Alvin Hamilton outlined just how far power has been removed from the parliamentarians.

Fellow Tory Don Mazankowski had moved an amendment to the bill, which would have allowed any regulations made by cabinet under the act to be referred to a standing committee of the House of Commons for review if 20 MPs filed such a request.

A small procedural matter, a tiny current in the larger tide of affairs in Ottawa. Perhaps, but in the attempt there was recognition of a central fact of modern parliamentary government: the regulations devised by civil servants and passed by the cabinet under this or that act of Parliament can and do change completely the intent of the legislation to which they are appended.

It is cloaked in innocuous terms. In most bills brought down in Parliament there's a paragraph which states that the cabinet "may make regulatons" and sometimes a few paragraphs follow, delimiting in very general terms the areas to be covered by the regulations. (In British Columbia, not even that little concession is made to Parliament. Most acts state simply: "The lieutenant-governor in council may make regulations.")

As to Hamilton's examples: he noted that bill C-4 re-enacted a regulation-making section that would allow the cabinet to require airlines to carry liability insurance to cover the passengers they carry. There has been such a regulation in effect for years in Canada; as Hamilton stated, everyone who flies with one of the major airlines is covered by a $75,000 liability policy.

But nobody has ever collected. "Insurance is supposed to be guaranteed as implied in the legislation," Hamilton said.

"What is being done here? Parliament thinks it is passing, in the example I am using, power to the cabinet to make regulations to see to it that people who fly in aircraft are protected, but in fact they are not protected.

"A passenger is happy when he realizes that there will be insurance in the event of his death and that his family will be independent for life. However, when his estate goes to the insurance company to collect . . . the insurance company says, as insurance companies do year after year, that it will be glad to pay if the estate can prove who caused the accident. . . .

"When insurance companies ask for that proof, they are just grinning because they realize that there are a bunch of stupid people in the civil service and in Parliament who allow this type of legislation to pass unchanged. This is the type of crap that destroys the credibility of Parliament."

Another example Hamilton cited was the negation by regulation of family allowance legislation. The federal government several years ago was very proud of amendments which raised the family allowance to $20 for all children regardless of the income of their parents.

"But when the regulations were published, they did not carry out this promise of parliament. The regulations provided that all children, regardless of the wealth of their parents, should receive $20 per month — except if a child had lost both parents.

"Apparently, according to the mandarins in the department of national health and welfare, an orphan is no longer a child but is an adult. Under the regulations passed by governor-in-council this Parliament must sit by whilst every orphaned child in this country is barred from receiving the family allowance that we voted."

But guess who gets the blame? Mandarins make the rules, but MPs take the flak. Mazankowski's proposal is a small step towards returning some of that authority to Parliament.

Yummy

Your steak in the future may come from a steer fed on something other than grass or grain. Render, "the national magazine of rendering" in the U.S. (we bring you all the news), reports on an interesting experiment at the department of agriculture research station at Beltsville, Md.

They fed steers cement dust and found that the animals gained weight at a prodigious rate — two-thirds of a pound more a day on 20 per cent less feed than a control group of steers that got no cement dust. Both groups got a "low-quality forage diet" of hay and cracked corn; the control group got extra protein and minerals.

The dust is a byproduct of the cement industry. It results from the mixing and kiln-drying of the basic ingredients of Portland cement. Some 33,000 tons of the fine dust (texture like face powder) are produced every day in the U.S.

Dr. William Wheeler doesn't know why cement dust increases weight gain in cattle (its 27 per cent calcium content may be one factor), but figures it opens up "new avenues of research that could lead to low-cost production of quality beef."

Sounds just yummy. If it burns on your barbecue, don't despair. Cement steaks may have a second life as paving blocks.

You Mushy, or a Pussycat?

WASHINGTON — Understanding Washington is understanding political labels: knowing who stands where, and why, in the ideological graph that stretchs from the yippies on the left to the dinosaurs of the extreme right.

It used to be so easy. You opposed the war in Vietnam and you were a "nervous Nellie." You criticized Spiro Agnew and you were a "nattering nabob of negativism." Ever since the New Deal, it seems liberals have had a stranglehold on the letter N.

Conservatives were older, wore starched shirts, came from the Deep South or Arizona, and worried about communism. You didn't need a program to know your left from your right.

But today, something terrible has happened to the language. For one thing, the liberals have been sub-divided — there are pointy-headed liberals, limousine liberals, bleeding-heart liberals, knee-jerk liberals, fuzzy-minded liberals, liberal do-gooders and (the most recent addition) mushy liberals.

Mushy Mavericks

Mushy liberals, in turn, fall into two sub-sub-categories: moderates and mavericks. Moderates are boring. Mavericks are fun. Senator William Proxmire is a leading maverick. He issues a monthly "golden fleece" award to highlight waste of taxpayers money. Nobody takes him very seriously.

Ralph Nader, whom I suppose you could call a liberal, hates mushy liberals, who opposed his consumer agency bill because they didn't want another bureaucracy. Jimmy Carter, a moderate liberal, supported the consumer agency but also hates "big government."

But Carter has disappointed both the liberals and the conservatives.

It is widely believed that liberals of all colors are on the run in the U.S. The conservatives, in the words of the head of the Young Americans for Freedom, are out to "create a climate that makes it more difficult to run as a liberal."

Following the first vote on the Panama Canal treaties, the American Conservative Union vowed to concentrate their anti-treaty efforts in those states where the majority of Americans want to keep the waterway but their representatives want to give it away. New Hampshire is a case in point.

But this kind of action will only further confound efforts to label politicians. For the liberals will simply turn, chameleon-like, into "independents" or "progressives," disavow both the left and the right and the moderates and strike out into a new jungle of jargon.

What, for heaven's sake, is an independent? Pat Schroeder, a liberal democrat from Colorado, recently gave this tentative definition in a newspaper column:

"Independents are principled, honest and dull. Independents have closely-held opinions and are near-relatives to the moderates. A moderate is an independent with no opinions. A moderate is also a liberal or conservative running in a tight district."

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.
. . . supported Panama treaty!

A progressive is perhaps best typified by Mo Udall, a candidate in the 1976 presidential race who didn't like the way "liberal" sounded, even though he was one, so he coined his own category. (This was doubly confusing to Canadians, to whom most progressives are Conservatives.)

Anyway, much of this confusion about liberals can be blamed on the conservatives, who are still the country's most vocal name-callers. But they should look to their own house, which is also a mess.

Consider this: there are conservatives, and there is the new right. People tend to confuse the two. That is a mistake. Conservatives are elected to office. The new right is made up of people who contribute to conservative causes through mail order campaigns.

The new right is predictable. It opposes, in order of stridency, the Panama Canal giveaway, the Equal Rights Amendment, abortion, homosexual teachers in public schools and "affirmative action" programs in employment and education. It also feels that Richard Nixon got a raw deal.

But conservative politicians are notoriously unpredicable. Just when we expect them to be bullyish and venal, they turn out to be nice guys. Paul Laxalt, who led the Senate fight against the first Panama treaty, is just such a maddening conservative.

Noxious Noodlings?

As two Washington pundits put it recently: "On a raw-meat issue many conservatives would have run over their grandmothers to win, Laxalt was a pussycat. Tenacious, thorough, determined, but nonetheless a pussycat who refused to use a meat-axe on colleagues who wouldn't go along with him.

"And in the process, he did as much as anyone has done lately to give conservatism a good name."

Thus, a new phrase enters the political lexicon: pussycat conservatives.

In the end, of course, the press is made to blame for all the confusion over labels. Reporters watched bug-eyed while William F. Buckley Jr. and John Wayne, two rightists if ever there were any, both came out in favor of the Panama Canal treaties and betrayed their labels. This sent the newspapers rushing back to their dictionaries.

This scale is supposed to tell you, at a glance, who is a bleeding-heart, who is a pussycat and who is a hard-liner.

Spiro Agnew, surely, would have dismissed all this as the noxious noodling of know-nothings.

Easter Message

All my life I have felt sorrow and compassion, not always patient, for the folly and the sufferings of mankind, seemingly doomed always to do the wrong thing, to make the wrong decisions. The world is weary and troubled and in the hearts of man is a deep longing, a deep hunger for something he has lost, the security and innocence he knew as a little child.

I believe the hunger and longing for this peace we have lost can only be satisfied when we turn away from the world and return home to our Father. It is not hard. The address is known to everyone. Our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. Open your heart on this Easter Sunday and He will give you peace. — M. P. Paine, 3620 Quadra Street.

Not All the Facts

The extended care program instituted by the Social Credit government is a step in the right direction. However, having first-hand dealings with extended care for some time, we find that what we have been told by newspaper advertisements is what they wish the majority to believe and not all the facts.

We do not recall seeing in any advertisement that extra charges would be made for semi-private rooms ($6) or for private rooms ($9), or for extras such as laundry, cablevision, or what each hospital now finds they must charge because the subsidies are not sufficient to meet the needs for these items.

The government and the media have not told us that the private hospitals and nursing homes have at this time not been paid one penny to carry on their business. How are they managing their day-to-day expenses? I do not know, unless it is through bank loans, or subsidies by affiliated nursing homes from other provinces.

When is this going to stop, Mr. McClelland?

As accounts are payable one month in advance, in our case the amount owing is around $300 for January. Multiply this by the number of people affected and it amounts to thousands. This government is taking financial advantage of our sick and mentally incapable people to make their programs look like a financial success. — Mr. and Mrs. Dev Smith, 1533 Gladstone Avenue.

The Invidious Cossit

Who is this man Tom Cossitt whose invidious purpose was to hold Canada's government up to scorn? His devious method not only worked a grave and dangerous mischief, but in the process ridiculed Parliament's dignified procedures. The behavior of such a man reveals one who chooses a pseudo-role unworthy of a member of Parliament. His actions call for our redoubled efforts towards the goal of a unified Canada. Let us keep this goal in sight. — Kathleen M. Worthington-Lake, 990 Hampshire Road.

Motel Crowding

As president of the B.C. Motels, Resorts and Trailer Parks Association I oppose the spreading idea of encouraging private homes to cater to the anticipated overflow of tourists this year. It will start the same problems in the future for motel operators that apartment owners are now suffering from, mainly undercutting rents by owners of illegal basement s[illegible] who do not have to answer to authorities and usually don't declare their extra income.

We, however, have to collect taxes, pay taxes, employ staff, advertise and maintain certain standards of efficiency, cleanliness and service that will ensure a return of our guests, all of which the private homeowner does not have to concern himself with.

We are the only government-recognized association representing the accommodation industry and when the complaints start flying, we will be held responsible for the actions of people we have no jurisdiction over.

Last year at the very peak of the tourist season Victoria hosted a large convention and there were some difficulties finding rooms for everyone, but there were still motels with vacancies to be found in the suburbs.

Most motels have a very efficient system for finding vacant units, but there are still a few disinterested owners and staff around who are not organized and find it easier when full to send a frustrated tourist to a motel down the road that is probably full than to find accommodation for him. My wife and I spent many hours last year phoning around to find vacancies for tourists who were stranded. They were usually the first to register with us the next day, not because they were dissatisfied with the motel we located for them, but because they were impressed and felt we really cared. — Ernie Townsend, B.C. Motels, Resorts and Trailer Parks Association, Victoria Local, 364 Goldstream Avenue.

Pipeline Problems

I recently participated in a workshop in Victoria with many native persons and church leaders and 300 lay persons in attendance. The subject matter was Indian land claims and settlement in relation to the impending proposal to build an Alaska Highway pipeline. Bill C-25 is now before Parliament and I have grave reservations about that bill as presently drafted.

Is it true that Indian land claims are not mandated but only agreed in principle that some settlement will be made? If so, that is not good enough.

Further, I understand that one provision of Bill C-25 as now constituted allows for no recourse to the courts by plaintiffs whose rights may be abridged by construction of an Alaska Highway pipeline. This defies our longstanding heritage of the right of appeal to redress grievances. This is a most serious break with 400 years of our legal tradition and I am not satisfied that this is a proper bill for Parliament to pass.

A final concern is that technical data on the environmental effects of the construction of such a pipeline have not been thoroughly investigated. We can afford to wait, 20 or 30 years if necessary, so what is the rush? Does Bill C-25 in fact provide adequate provisions that these problems be solved before construction begins?

The people of Canada deserve the best possible answers to these and other related questions before we continue our pell-mell rush to exhaust our resources without adequate provisions for justice for our First Canadians, without safeguards for our present environment, and without due consideration of the rights of generations yet unborn. — Rev. Marlowe D. Anderson, 2594 Beach Drive.

Not So Easy

In response to Mr. Harvey's musings (Oh, To Be A Teacher; Times, March 18), I would like to point out that his envy is based upon a number of misconceptions.

Mr. Harvey states that "a teacher doesn't really know what pressure is all about." He is deluding himself if he believes the job is not demanding.I was a teacher for a time, but am now pursuing a different career. Unlike Mr. Harvey, I have the greatest respect for any man or woman who will submit himself or herself to the rigors of a classroom for 20 or more years.

Mr. Harvey argues that in his line he deals with "adults just as big and tough as he is," not "just a bunch of kids." First, either he has no children, or he leaves the parenting to his wife. No real parent could make this statement with a straight face. A teacher deals every day with a "family" of 28 to 30 children, rather than two or three. A conscientious parent finds three a handful. Second, a good half of a teacher's job entails dealing with other adults (just as big and tough as he is) — including parents, principals, counsellors, other teachers and school board members. That many of these encounters are comfortable and useful is to the teacher's credit, not an indication that the job is easy.

Perhaps Mr. Harvey is right. Teaching may be a good life. Perhaps the summer holidays make up for the pressure of children, parents, principals and school boards. But if Mr. Harvey really thinks he could do the job — and that he could make so much money at it (he believes he could buy a fishing fleet), why doesn't he quit his job and go to university for five years, get a degree and then try to get a job?

Quite often, the next person's job looks easy only because we know nothing about it. — Eric Partridge, 3284 Megaw Place.

Degrading

The Victoria Status of Women Action Group endorses the council's stand on the Victorian Days May Queen contest.

We support the views presented by Ald. William McElroy. The time has come to examine even time-honored traditions in terms of what they say of a person's worth.

Feminists consider contests which glorify youth and beauty to be degrading to participants and offensive to all women. We are very pleased that public funds will not be used to assist the May Queen event. — Shirley Nordstrom, Status of Women Action Group, 1429 Monterey Avenue.

Bus Depot Chaos

Taxi parking and pickup facilities at the Victoria bus terminal are almost chaotic. Buses and private vehicles keep dodging each other as they attempt to cope with the only exit for the buses, which is the access and exit to the Empress Hotel parking lot as well. To make matters worse, a recent arrangement between the VICL and a local taxi company which permits their taxis to park in that same small area adds to the disorder, especially as the free line alloted by the city authorities to all taxis licensed to operate in the city of Victoria is now restricted to three hours daily (9 a.m. to noon), and then again in the evening from 5 p.m. onwards.

During peak hours in the tourist seasons (late morning and early afternoon and evenings), the situation is worst and especially on rainy days. Buses, private cars and vehicles of every kind cross each other, intermixed with taxis endeavoring to pick up waiting passengers.

The summer season is almost here, order must be re-established and more consideration towards the traveller should now be the main concern. — Dick Moreno, 169 Beach Drive.

Victoria Zoo?

There has been much said recently about new attractions to bring tourists to B.C. and Victoria. One such suggestion is a zoo. Who wants to see a zoo of enclosed animals whose rightful heritage is freedom?

Another suggestion (which I would work very hard to bring to Victoria) is the very best theatre and music that can be found in Canada.

For many years I was a summer tourist at the west coast. When I could save enough money to travel by train two days and two nights from the prairies, I came. The reason for coming was Theatre Under The Stars in Vancouver.

We do not have to look far for good theatre in Victoria. Last summer's productions by the Four Seasons Musical Theatre, the Smile Show, activities at the university, and the Belfry would have brought me from the prairies if I still lived there.

Each summer I take my holidays and stay in Victoria to see these shows and to hear the fine artists brought to our city by the Shawnigan school of music and the Victoria symphony.

With a carefully planned promotion program by the province, similar to that mounted for the Captain Cook bicentennial, these events would encourage more and more tourists to return and stay longer year after year.

We have proof of the success of such festivals at Charlottetown, Stratford, and Niagara-on-the-Lake. Let us give the tourists something to remember and a new program each year to look forward to on their next holiday in Victoria. — A. V. Miller, Victoria.

Unemployment

Canadians need to be jolted out of their complacent acceptance of unemployment. With real figures of over a million, we need massive doses of social conscience about the flagrant injustice of this condition to the unemployed.

They were in a vulnerable position economically, and so experienced the shock waves of economic retrenchment. The economic security of the rest of us is protected at the expense of the weaker members in the economy.

No modicum of justice is expressed by which the strong thrive at cost to the weak, as is now happening in Canada. Raise your voices, you apathetic, silent beneficiaries of their distress, and demand the appropriate action to rectify this injustice.

We must admit that our unemployment is not due to an act of nature, but a failure or an inability on the part of government and the private sector to meet it.

In its failure to reverse the economic decline, the private sector tacitly admits its lack of competence to deal with the modern situation. In other words, free enterprise is failing in its duty, although the concept does not rest comfortably on its shoulders.

Nor is it enough to say the international economic climate is bad. Who made it that way, with our economic weakening of the third world, and our colossal folly in spending over $1 billion a day on armaments instead of rebuilding the world? The weight of this is sufficient to crush any economic system.

In accepting this unemployment level and allowing the cost of unemployment to reach such staggering proportions, our government stands condemned, for it could act, along with the provinces, to provide substantial remedies.

Canada will soon have an election. For its unemployment record the Trudeau government deserves far less than the 43 per cent of support the last poll announces. The Conservatives show no signs of being able to offer better. We are repeating the experiences of the 1930s, with the cushioning of the social welfare measures adopted since then.

But this doesn't bring justice to the unemployed. The voter must express displeasure at the failure of our corporate enterprise and our government alike, and put its weight behind that group or groups which show both the comprehension of the present impasse, and a will to take heroic action to reinstate the unemployed as a contributing factor in our economy. — Harold T. Allen, 2140 Kings Road.

Replace Nielsen.

Appointing a man as provincial environment minister who has no training or interest in the environment has been an obvious error. Before James Nielsen blackens the name of the Social Credit party permanently, he should be moved, at the very least, to a post he either professes some knowledge or interest in or else is willing to listen to and adopt the recommendations put forth by experts in that field.

I'm sure that Premier Bill Bennett would choose to take pride and pleasure in working with the best people in our province, people who are working for the best for our province. A mistake has been made but that doesn't mean that it can't be corrected before it is compounded.

A politician should stay attuned to the needs of the people and of the land after the election as well as before. Mr. Nielsen takes five months to answer letters and then forgets that he ever received them. He does not seem to make himself aware of local environmental controversies and issues. His mind seems to be made up even before seeing all the reports. Why does Mr. Nielsen, an elected official, seem biased in favour of industry and then doesn't seem to enforce the stipulated environmental guidelines: Guidelines do not work without enforcement!

Where is the strength, commitment, and resourcefulness of our government? Where are the trustworthy leaders this province needs?

A full bank account is useless insurance if pollution surrounds us and there isn't enough food for our family. This is our children's future if guidelines for protecting our environment aren't legislated and enforced now.

The present laws protecting the environment are not being enforced and any fine or penalty handed out for breaking the law is usually a disgraceful pittance.

An LRB Outrage

I was outraged to read in the Times of March 10 (Right-to-Work Group Tackles LRB Ruling) that the Labor Relations Board has ruled that B.C. Hydro must fire one of its employees because the union has expelled him for defiance of union discipline. Apparently under the union's agreement with Hydro, all employees must join the union after they are hired and expulsion from the union is tantamount to a union demand for the employee's dismissal.

It appalls me that such a thing can take place in a supposedly democratic society. Unions are not democratic institutions. They are not elected by the general public and do not represent the general public. They are pressure groups pure and simple and only represent the interests of their members, even when those interests run counter to the interests of the general population.

Although there was a sad need for unions in the first place, it is evident to any thinking person today that unions now have too much power.

In the Middle Ages, anyone who was excommunicated from the only recognized church was not only denied the sacraments and thereby "shut out of heaven" but his goods and chattels were also seized. The church was seen to have the power to punish its dissidents.

How can we say Canada is a democracy, when we permit a trade union to punish a dissident by taking his job away from him?

If people were forced to belong to a state-recognized church and pay their dues to that church, even though they didn't attend, there would be an enormous outcry; perhaps riots in the streets. Surely the same violation of human rights takes place when a person if forced to join a union, or pay dues to a union, as a condition of employment, whether he wants to or not. — Peter Gage, 308-250 Douglas Street.

Guilt Free?

Weekend magazine again is recommending and promoting wearing furs without ever allowing the other side, the cruel methods used, to be told. The latest story promoting "guilt-free furs" stretches one's understanding of guilt-free to incredible lengths.

Not all beaver are caught underwater. Those who are can struggle most pathetically for up to 20 minutes trying to surface for one more breath of air.

That the Conibear trap is again described as instant killing by these eastern reporters is such a shame. Though it can kill in some cases, it is basically a body gripping trap that holds the animal alive. The suffering is most terrible to see.

Is Weekend magazine so interested in advertising furs that it can continue to ignore the cruel trapping facts? — George V. Clements, Director, Association for the Protection of Fur-Bearing Animals.

A Grave Disservice

I have always been concerned at the negative attitude many people in education have toward parents. I felt this was unfair because, after all, it is our children who are most affected by decisions made.

However, after attending the school board's hearing on school closures held at Margaret Jenkins school on March 8, I can well understand why administrators and trustees might wish never to have contact with parents. I found the stance taken by the Margaret Jenkins Home and School Association both unwarranted and irresponsible. People from that association were present at the board's committee meetings on closures held in January and could not help but be aware that total closure of Margaret Jenkins is not being considered and that the Facilities '77 study is by no means the only document on which the board intends to base decisions. In fact, trustees and administrators have already disagreed in great part with it and have made many encouraging and sensitive statements about the importance of considering educational merit when making decisions.

I certainly have no argument with the wish of Margaret Jenkins parents to retain all present programs at their school. Many briefs presented at the meeting offered positive insight into the strengths of the school and will undoubtedly be of great assistance to the board in its deliberations. But, in my opinion, the Home and School Association's manner of presenting their brief was not only unfair to the board but also a disservice to all parents in this district who do recognize that there are problems and who wish to play a part in reasonable planning for the future of our children. — Penny Bially, 8-4391 Torquay Drive.

New Cuba Law Hits 'Bourgeois' Crime

HUGH O'SHAUGHNESSY

HAVANA, Cuba — The Cuban government has tabled a tough new penal code which prescribes the death penalty for a dozen crimes ranging from types of murder to "pederasty with violence."

The code also cracks down hard on offences which include illegally induced abortion, marijuana smoking, public displays of homosexuality, the organization of raffles and the private lending of money for interest. Permissivness and "bourgeois practices" have never been attacked so fiercely.

The new draft code is the focal point of a campaign against delinquency and "the anti-social conduct which still subsists in our society." The campaign is being pursued vigorously as Cuba prepares to receive tens of thousands of young foreigners for a youth festival later this year.

The code replaces the criminal laws which have been in force since before the 1959 revolution. After a period of discussion by local assemblies it is likely to be given formal approval rapidly.

Last month new penalties were decreed on an emergency basis and the state is now empowered to pass the death sentence for a new range of offences without having to wait for the passage of the new code through the National Assembly.

Although the code makes it clear that the death sentence will be reserved for the most serious cases, it may be used against those found guilty of some forms of terrorism, genocide, piracy, rape and robbery.

Terrorism includes acts against the security of the state involving attacks on "leaders or representatives of the Communist party of Cuba, the state or the government or members of their families" and the poisoning of food or goods for public consumption. The hijacking of a ship or aircraft may be punished with the death sentence.

Capital punishment may also be prescribed for those having carnal relations with a girl under 12 or committing buggery against anyone under 16 or with use of violence or intimidation. Death is by shooting.

Those found guilty of seducing an unmarried girl over 14 and under 18 can go to prison for up to nine months, although the sentence is quashed if the parties get married.

Public displays of homosexuality are to be punished by up to nine months imprisonment and fines of the equivalent of $400. The same penalties are prescribed for self-induced abortion. Those carrying out an illegal abortion face up to three years imprisonment.

Growers of marijuana face up to eight years in prison and the loss of their land and the mere possession of marijuana or similar drugs without permission can be punished with eight years jail.

Running a lottery, raffle or any other betting or gaming system for profit brings a similar maximum penalty.

Penalties are laid down for "illicit economic activities." Those found guilty henceforward of employing labor for the unauthorized production, processing or selling of goods for profit face up to three years in jail. If you are caught buying something with an eye to a future profit you face up to nine months in jail and a $400 fine, while if you are found habitually lending money at interest you face up to five years in prison.

According to what might be called the Good Samaritan clause, anyone found to have abandoned someone in distress risks a nine-month prison sentence and a fine.

Reflecting the government's aim of building up a ranching industry, the code prescribes up to five years in jail for those caught slaughtering cattle illegally. If you fail to get proper permission to slaughter a beast which has suffered an accident you face nine months in prison and $400 fine.

The new code comes at a time when the Cuban population is likely to come into widespread contact with foreigners and foreign temptations for the first time for nearly two decades. Not only will the youth festival bring many young people to the island but also the growing tourist trade will bring tens of thousands of visitors to Cuba, many from the U.S.

Some Cuban officials are worried about the effect tourism will have on the population and want it closely controlled lest anyone get the idea that Cuba could become once again the Caribbean capital of the dolce vita.

B.C. Heroin Plan 'Odious'

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

You start with the opium poppy, which flourishes in many parts of Asia, the Middle East and Mexico and from whose juice can be produced opium, a narcotic drug which has been smoked or eaten for centuries. From opium can be extracted several alkaloids, one of which is morphine, another narcotic drug, widely used to relieve pain. Mix a little morphine with a little acetic anhydride and what you've got is a diacetylmorphine hydrochloride or, as it is called, heroin — yet another narcotic drug, three times more potent than morphine and highly addictive.

At one time, heroin was used to relieve pain, diarrhea, to suppress coughing or as a cure for morphine addiction. But the problem in recent years, and a problem that is particularly acute in British Columbia, is: how do you cure heroin addiction? Or, more to the point, how do you stop heroin addiction so you can stop addiction-related crime?

Recently, the Health Ministry of the B.C. government announced a radical and ambitious approach to the problem.

Compulsory treatment for heroin addicts. The program will involve the establishment of community outpatient clinics, as well as an in-patient facility for prolonged treatment and two residential therapeutic centres. It will also involve the formation of a review panel, before which anyone suspected of being addicted to heroin could be compelled to appear for assessment; at this point, such a person would have no right to legal representation. If, in the opinion of the panel, the individual is a "user in need of treatment," he would be directed into treatment, with or without his volition, for a maximum period of three years — even though he may not have been charged with or convicted of any crime.

The individual may appeal the panel's decision (and during the appeal he would have the right to legal representation). But, if the panel's decision is upheld, the heroin user must either submit to treatment or be liable to imprisonment for up to a year — again, even though he may not have been found in violation of any section of the Criminal Code or of the Narcotic Control Act.

While readily conceding the horrors of the heroin market — petty crime and not-so-petty crime to support the demand and organized crime to supply the product — we nevertheless find British Columbia's solution an odious one.

We find it odious not because of its dubious constitutionality and not merely because of the rather poor record of heroin detoxication treatments. No, we find it odious simply because the state does not have the right to impose penalties — call it "treatment" if you will — against an individual merely on the grounds that he is suspected of having committed a crime, or has a history of being suspected of having committed a crime, or is suspected of being likely to commit a crime in the future.

An individual must first have been fairly convicted of a crime by the courts — then, the state has certain rights, certain powers. But not before.

None of this solves British Columbia's problem, however. We simply point out that British Columbia is approaching its solution unfairly and can, and should, change that.

Retailers Again Worthy Of Investment Dollars

Canadian Press

The problems prevailing in the retailing industry during the last few years appear near solution, says Yorkton Securities Inc., and careful investment is again advised.

In its annual commentary and forecast for the industry, the Toronto-based investment firm predicts a return to healthy profits for retailing companies, particularly of the specialty variety.

"In our opinion, a more bullish scenario for the retail group is in the preliminary stage of formation (and) in the case of the specialty retailers, this could be reflected in the shares in the next six to 18 months."

"In the case of the department store companies, it may take longer since their problems appar to be deeper rooted, the solution more difficult to implement and the structures more complex."

Among its reasons for the forecast upturn, Yorkton cites the scaling down of expansion, trimming of administration costs and spread of automation through computers.

As an example of expansion cuts, zero physical growth is expected fr Woodward Stores Ltd. in the next two or three years, while "even Simpsons-Sears Ltd., which has been the most aggressive member of the industry is scaling down its expansion."

And in the area of operational cuts, "considerable fat has already been trimmed from the administrative sector of most department store companies."

The use of computers to continue the cost-cutting program also is spreading, Yorkton says.

"In the United States, there are now a growing number of fully-automated computer-controlled department store and mail-order warehouses (which) employ virtually no floor staff.

"The product is mechanically stored and removed and such costs as heating and lighting are largely eliminated."

In addition, computers are taking over sophisticated in-store inventory control south of the border, although their use in this high-cost area "is still in the early stages of development in Canada."

Another development Yorkton emphasizes is "that many Canadian retailers, particularly specialty chains, will likely enter the U.S. market in the next two or three years."

The only two successful competitors on the American front so far are Coles Book Stores Ltd. and Imasco Ltd., but other specialty companies might follow suit "if it is done with caution and some experimentation."

Attrition also has had a favorable effect on retailing companies.

"In the past 12 months, there have been a number of significant retail failures, particularly in the furniture and major appliance segments of the trade," Yorkton says.

"The department store companies could well be the major beneficiaries of these entries in the mortuary register (and) we see further consolidation in the offing."

The investment firm recommends the purchase of Woodward Stores and Simpsons-Sears shares among the department stores, while its choices within the specialty group include Reitman's (Canada) Ltd., Pennington's Stores Ltd., Dalmys (Canada) Ltd. and Dylex Ltd. with Coles Book Stores at the top of the list.

Chrysler Borrowing Costs Increased

DETROIT (AP) — A major investment firm has lowered its rating of some of Chrysler Corp.'s debt securities, making it more costly for the nation's third-ranked automaker to raise money.

The firm, Standard-Poor's Corp., noted in explanation of its action that Chrysler posted a loss of $49.7 million in the fourth quarter of last year, expected another loss in this year's first quarter and planned record-breaking expenditures to develop new models.

"Fortunately, the company enters this critical period with a satisfactory balance-sheet position and access to substantial financial accommodations, but the uncertainties in the outlook for operating results cannot be overlooked," Standard-Poor's said in New York Tuesday.

Chrysler's long-term bonds, and similar bonds of a financial subsidiary, Chrysler Financial Corp., were dropped from a triple-B rating to triple-B-minus.

Standard-Poor's bond ratings range from triple-A, the highest rank given to only a few manufacturing corporations, through down to D. A D-rated bond is in default.

Each category may also carry a plus or minus rating.

The ratings reflect the investment firm's judgement of the risk involved in buying the bonds in question.

Investors are free to disregard the ratings, but it becomes very difficult to sell bonds of rating below BBB-minus. Standard-Poor's calls its BBB-minus rating and above "investment grade."

In November 1975, the firm lowered Chrysler bonds to BBB from A. The other major rating service, Moody's Investors Services Inc., followed suit, but later upgraded some issues.

Chrysler, which plans to spend $7.5 billion on new models in the next five years, will ask stockholders in May to authorize the sale of preferred stock, a security not issued by Chrysler now.

The automaker's, according to annual report says it had $1.24 billion in long-term debt outstanding last Dec. 31. The financial subsidiary had $1.59 billion in long-term debt and $2.38 billion in short-term debt.

Plane Purchased

TORONTO (CP) — De Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. says Rocky Mountain Airways, Denver, Colo., has placed an order for a second Dash-7 aircraft, with delivery scheduled for the end of this year. Rocky Mountain purchased its first Dash-7 plane seven weeks ago and holds an option to have a third delivered next year.

Parents, Staff Plead for South Park

Parents, teachers and students pleaded Wednesday for continuance of South Park school, one of six selected by the Greater Victoria school board for possible closure next year.

The eight-classroom stone building constructed in 1894 as Beacon Hill Primary, is being considered for closure because its aging facilities can hardly hold the present 144 kindergarten to Grade six students.

The school began its new life in 1974 as a gradeless alternative school stressing parental involvement at all levels.

Since then it has experienced the growing pains of increasing enrolment and suffered under the constant threat of closure, South Park Parent Association spokesman Dewy Callaghan told a public hearing.

Callahan and seven other speakers suggested the school board apply for federal and provincial grants to restore it as a heritage building.

The school hopes to add a Grade seven class next year and wants to let in some of the 59 students on its waiting list, principal Pam Moulton said.

"I don't think there is a space in the school we aren't using." Moulton told the audience, which included a fair sprinkling of trustees.

But Moulton and the other speakers rejected the alternatives listed in the board's Facilities Study '77: to move the program to James Bay or Oakland schools

Also rejected was school superintendent Allan Stables claim there is no money available for renovations or expansion while a space surplus exists at other schools in the district.

Plenty of money is available from all levels of government if the school district knows how to ask for it, Stables was told.

The brief-presenters said they would approve the temporary acquisition of portables to relieve some space problems.

Relocation is only a viable alternative if the new school was located downtown area and not in the same building with another program, unless it was a special program like immersion French or classes for the hard of hearing.

South Park isclose to Beacon Hill Park, museums, the Legislature, the Empress Hotel and the Inner Harbor a location that offers many opportunities for interesting field trips, administrators and trustees were told.

The parents association said it wants the chance to evaluate any proposals for relocation the school board comes up with.

Musical Weekend Slated

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

The Victoria Conservatory of Music does not take a holiday for the long Easter weekend and concert giving, at any rate, appears to increase.

Tonight at 8 p.m., a vocal ensemble performance will be featured at The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, 1040 Moss.

A presentation of the vocal department faculty, the recital will offer works by Pergolesi, Mozart and Brahms. The performers will be Selena James, Adele Lewis, Catherine Young, sopranos; Eleanor Bertram, contralto; Rory Hammond, tenor, and Lanny Pollet, bass, with Gordana Lazarevich, Winifred Scott and Robin Wood, pianists.

Featured work on the program will be the delightful Brahms Liebeslieder Waltzes written for small vocal ensemble with piano duet accompaniment, which is being provided by the Scott-Wood duo.

Seventh of the Fantasy for Voice series originated by faculty head Catherine Young, it will be followed on Sunday at the Gallery at 3 p.m., by number eight, which will present soprano Mary Copland assisted by Frances Perriam at the piano and flautist James Kennedy. Admission to both concerts is by donation to the Conservatory scholarship-bursary fund.

In between these two events there is "Music for Good Friday" — an early music concert which will be given at Craigdarroch Castle at 8 p.m. The program will be devoted to the performance of the three "Lecon des Tenebres" of Francois Couperin.

These are settings of the Lamentations of Jeremiah, traditionally sung at the service of matins in Holy Week as the candles in the church are extinguished. Many composers set the texts — notably Tallis, Palestrina and Stravinsky.

Couperin's three lessons were part of a projected series of nine, but the balance were never engraved and are now lost. With their expressive harmony and sensitive setting of the text, Couperin's lessons are considered by many to be the high point of 18th century sacred music in France.

Performers will be sopranos Selena James, Anne Dyson and Norma Selwood, with James Kennedy, continuo guitar, and Beal Thomas, continuo harpsichord.

There will be a small admission charge at the door.

University Student Missing

Victoria police are seeking help from the public in locating a 19-year-old University of Victoria student who vanished after walking away from Royal Jubilee Hospital March 19.

John Phipps, of Nanaimo, was a voluntary patient in the hospital and left at 3:50 p.m. for a walk. When he failed to return by 5 p.m. the hospital reported him missing.

Hospital officials said the youth was in a confused state of mind.

He is described as six feet two inches, with light brown hair and blue eyes. He wears glasses and when last seen wore blue pants, a pink shirt and a grey windbreaker jacket with the letters TOP on the back.

Anyone who knows his whereabouts should contact Victoria police.

Police Die In Gunfight

OPORTO, Portugal (AP) — One policeman was killed and two were seriously injured Tuesday in a gunfight with bank robbers, police said.

A spokesman said the policemen had advance warning of the robbery and planned to ambush the robbers, but the robbers shot first. The dead policeman was identified as Jorg Carvalho, 31.

IWA Back in Pt. Alberni

PORT ALBERNI(CP) — About 170 employees at MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.'s Cous-Taylor logging division near here returned to work Wednesday following a walk-out Tuesday to protest the transfer of work crews within the division.

The workers, members of the International Woodworkers of America local 1-85, left their jobs after several employees were told their shift at a log dump would not be required because the company was winding down winter operations.

The company said both sides discussed the issue Wednesday before the IWA agreed to return to work. Details about how the issue was resolved were not released.

Sheep Rules Set

The conservation ministry said today special regulations are being set up to more effectively manage thinhorn sheep hunting in northern B.C.

The ministry said in a news release the prime objective of the regulations is to assure population stability and a supply of individual animals of high trophy value.

Legal rams are defined as being eight years of age or older or having a horn size equal to or greater than a full curl, the ministry said.

City Woman, 19, Gets 'Last Chance'

A 19-year-old Victoria woman was given "probably your last chance" by Judge E.J.C. Stewart in county court Wednesday.

Tracy Lee Harris, who pleaded guilty earlier to stealing the medical bag and contents of Dr. John Etherington and mischief by wilfully damaging his car last April in Sooke, was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for two years. She must also pay $79.04 restitution for damages.

Court was told earlier that Harris and another woman, dealt with in provincial court, smashed the car window with a crowbar and took morphine and demerol and syringes.

Harris, who has a criminal record for possession of stolen property and possession of a narcotic, was told by Judge Stewart that "on the face of it a custodial sentence is appropriate ordinarily" and that probation did not appear to have worked in the past.

But he said he was "very reluctant" to send a girl of her age to jail but he thought he would do so except for the length of time since the offence occurred and Oakalla prison is "not the place for you."

Judge Stewart said he didn't know whether he should take Oakalla prison into account but he couldn't help reading about conditions there "and I am not sending you there."

As a condition of the two years probation, Harris was ordered not to associate with any users or dealers in illegal drugs.

Guilty Verdict Over Rifle

A 33-year-old Victoria man was found guilty Wednesday by a county court jury of possession of a rifle last October knowing it was stolen.

Norman Douglas Taylor will be sentenced May 25 by Judge Montague Drake. The jury deliberated 45 minutes in the one-day trial.

Crown counsel David Lisson, in his summation, said a policeman seized the rifle from Taylor's Bay Street apartment. When he did so, he asked Taylor where he got the rifle and was told it was bought at a hardware store in Qualicum Beach.

Lisson said the rifle was stolen from a store display window and suggested Taylor was lying.

Defence counsel Robert Higinbotham said Taylor let the policeman in without a search warrant and the rifle was in "plain view" and suggested these actions were inconsistent with a person having a guilty mind.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

An 18-year-old who filed a false report to Colwood RCMP was fined $150 in provincial court Wednesday.

Dennis Wayne Doerksen, 2189 Otter Point, pleaded guilty before Judge William Ostler to public mischief.

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang told the court Doerksen ran into a pedestrian with his father's car at about 10:50 p.m. March 10, shattering a window. About 15 minutes later, Lang said, Doerksen told police the vehicle was vandalized while parked.

When questioned by Ostler, Lang said there was no evidence that it was a case of hit and run.

Francesco Mirabelli, 735 Lily, pleaded guilty to fraud and Lang said Mirabelli was seen exchanging price tags on a pair of garden shoes. The shoes were valued at $13.95, Lang said, and Mirabelli put an $8.95 price tag on it and paid the lower price before he was apprehended outside the store.

★ ★ ★

Wayne Terrence Pye, 17, of 11 Stillwater, elected trial by judge without jury on a charge of trafficking in marijuana.

Pye, represented by lawyer Roger Cardinal, had a preliminary hearing date of July 5 set.

Ostler ordered a pre-sentence report for April 19 after 18-year-old David Roy Allan, 450 Belmont, pleaded guilty to two counts of possession of stolen property.

Lang said Allan, also known as Burke, had a tape cassette player valued at $140 which was taken from a parked pickup truck on the Old Island Highway and a CB radio and headphones from a van parked in the 4000-block Sooke Road last October.

Buy-Back Bid Made

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ben Ginter said Wednesday that he has bid against an Ontario firm to buy back the winery operations of Uncle Ben's Industries Ltd., which has been in receivership since January, 1976.

Ginter, who did not reveal the amount of the offer, said he also intends to put up further money to get all his company's assets out of receivership — including a brewery at Prince George and an unfinished one in nearby Richmond.

The receiver, Dunwoody and Co., was weighing the offer with one submitted by T.G. Bright Ltd. of Toronto, which had earlier bid $800,000 for the land and buildings of the winery at Westbank. After consideration, Dunwoody will recommend the better offer to the British Columbia Supreme Court.

Ginter said he had met the March 15 deadline set by a court order earlier this year for refinancing the firm's entire operations or making a bid for the Westbank winery.

Easter Eggs at Ransom

The infamous cocoa cartel has forced the price of children's Easter candies up as much as 60 per cent in the past year, according to Canadian candy manufacturers.

The increase has been across the board on all chocolate products, except chocolate bars.

In Vancouver a company spokesman said children have resisted the 25 cent price for bars and there would be no point in raising it higher, despite the increased cost to manufacturers.

Boxes of chocolates, however, have risen sharply and there have been increases in chocolate Easter candies.

The hikes in British Columbia were "somewhat less" than the 60 per cent increase noted by company spokesmen in Toronto.

However, a new round of price increases is in the works for cocoa and chocolate-based products in B.C. stores in April, which may raise local prices to the Toronto level.

Blamed for the increase is a syndicate of companies operating in African countries that produce cocoa beans. The companies, at the urging of nationalist-minded governments, have forced up the price of cocoa beans over the past two years.

As a result, some chocolate products have tripled in price during the last two years, according to reports in Toronto.

In Vancouver, a company spokesman said the amount of the price increases reflected the chocolate content of the product. For example, there is very little chocolate in a chocolate bar, just a thin layer of coating, so cost pressure has been small.

Still, the price would go to 30 cents, from 25, if the market would accept it. Sales volumes were brisk after the price went from a dime to 15 cents and again later went it went to 20 cents. But at 25 cents, sales volumes have declined and it would be difficult to move the price up.

By contrast, at least six ounces of a 16 ounce box of chocolates is pure chocolate and this becomes a significant cost factor.

There is no sign of a let-up in pressure to move cocoa prices upwards.

Budworm Threat Not High: Panel

A second panel of forestry experts has concluded the spruce budworm is not the devastating force in provincial forests as first thought.

As a result, Forests Minister Tom Waterland confirmed Wednesday there will be no chemical spraying of worm-infested forests this year.

In late January, the minister, who had been a strong proponent of spraying the budworm with Orthene and Sevin-4 oil, admitted he was surprised when his own forest service released a report showing tree mortality is less than one per cent in stricken areas.

But Waterland wanted the findings double-checked and turned over the report to the Forest Pest Review Committee.

The committee, composed of provincial, federal and industry forest experts, confirmed the findings of the earlier report.

Both reports show the Douglas fir native to B.C. can withstand worm defoliation far better than the Eastern species of fir which suffer a much higher mortality rate in infested areas.

Waterland last year outraged environmental and citizen groups with his adamant stand on the use of chemical sprays to fight the budworm in the Fraser Valley from Hope to Lillooet.

He was finally overruled by the cabinet.

Waterland said Wednesday the forest service will try out this summer a bacteriological spray in a small test area where the infestation is bad, but there will definitely not be any chemical spraying.

Of far greater concern to the forest service are the pine and spruce bark beatles.

These pests, which are not susceptible to sprays because they live most of their life cycle under the bark, combined with diseases to cause losses in the forest of one-third of what was harvested last year.

Insects and diseases killed six million cunits of timber. Last year, 18 million cunits were harvested by logging companies, Waterland said.

A cunit is 100 cubic feet.

The bark beetles have a strong hold in the Chilcotin west of Williams Lake and in the southeastern sector of the province.

They moved into B.C. from Montana where they weren't controlled, Waterland said. Vast tracts of that state have been laid to waste by the beetles.

The only known way to control them is to harvest the afflicted trees, and burn the slash in infested areas.

If this method isn't successful, Waterland said it may be necessary to burn infested trees to protect others.

This hasn't been necessary yet, but Waterland said fire-control is a real possibility in the future.

U.S. and Canadian researchers are also studying natural methods of controling the beetles such as interrupting their sexual activity, but so far no workable solution has been discovered in this area, the minister said.

★ Rayonier Withdraws Spray Bid

A Rayonier (Canada) Ltd. application to spray 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T on about 1,000 acres of alder trees on northern Vancouver Island has been withdrawn.

The company planned to apply the chemical near the logging community of Holberg but pesticide control committee chairman Bane Vance ruled it is too late to spray the trees as they are in bud.

The company was critized last year after an operation which resulted in the spraying of a school bus carrying children between Holberg and Winter Harbor. The company apologized for the incident.

Six-Month Sentence In Robbery

Robbery with violence earned a 22-year-old Victoria man six months in jail in county court Wednesday.

Judge E.J.C. Stewart told Archibald Gregory Kenneth Barbeau it was a cowardly, bullying incident but there were mitigating factors.

Barbeau was convicted earlier of attacking and stealing $87 from Ronald Kenneth Musclow Jan. 11 in Centennial Square. Barbeau has a criminal record for breaking and entering and theft, breaking and entering with intent, possession of LSD and theft over $200.

Crown counsel J.W. Anderson said it was a cowardly act and Barbeau was on probation at the time.

Judge Stewart said it is a serious offence but each case has to be dealt with on its own circumstances.

He gave the benefit of doubt to Barbeau for absence of premeditation, saying it just grew from circumstances existing at the time. He also took into account that Barbeau has no previous criminal record involving violence, noted that alcohol probably had much to do with the situation, and that he had already spent just over two months in custody.

After sentencing Barbeau to six months, Judge Stewart said on the face of it this was a light sentence but appropriate under the circumstances.

MILITARY HONOR AWARDED

Master Warrant Officer Shun Hunk Lowe of 3196 Carman is the second Canadian militia member on Vancouver Island to be appointed to the Order of Military Merit.

The honor was bestowed on Lowe by Governor-General Jules Leger at Government House in Ottawa.

A senior draftsman with the provincial government's mines and petroleum ministry, Lowe receives the award in recognition of 20 years' service with the militia as pay and institutes accountant to the RCAF reserves, the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) and headquarters militia area Pacific.

PRISONER AT LARGE TWO WEEKS

Nearly two weeks after getting an overnight pass from William Head prison, Frank Joseph Schlosser, 67, is still at large.

The medium security institution said Schlosser is probably still in Victoria or Vancouver and is definitely not a danger to the public.

He was given permission to spend the night of March 10 at a Victoria address, but according to police he did not show and failed to be back at the jail by 11 a.m. the next day.

Schlosser has been serving time since October, 1971, for being an habitual criminal.

Tidal Wave Fizzles

TOKYO (AP) — A small tidal wave struck the northeastern shore of Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost main island, following two strong off-shore earthquakes, but no damage or casualties were reported, the central meteorological agency reported.

The agency said the wave was only seven inches high. The NHK television network reported earlier that it was 6½ feet high.

Begin Attacks U.S. Draw-Back

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin today accused the United States of backing away from an Israeli proposal for a limited return of captured Arab lands.

"It is with deep sorrow that I have to tell you that in a certain moment in recent weeks, those good words of the past suddenly disappeared from the lexicon," Begin said in a National Press Club speech in Washington D.C.

"... Names, bad names, were thrown into the arena."

He called for a renewal of U.S. understanding of an Israeli plan for limited self-rule over the disisputed Gaza Strip and West Bank of the Jordan River but with Israel maintaining security over the area.

Meanwhile, Russian-made rockets slammed into an Israeli settlement in northern Galilee today and reports from Tyre in Lebanon said Israeli jet planes raided south Lebanon despite a cease-fire declared three days ago.

A reconnaissance party of 16 French officers of the United Nations peace-keeping force was scheduled to advance into Israeli-occupied territory south of the Litani River today, joining about 100 Iranians who crossed the border from Israel Wednesday.

There was no indication when the French troops would enter areas where Palestinian guerrillas and Israeli soldiers are often within sight of each other, although they were reported on the move early in the day.

Two hundred and fifty Swedish officers have been assigned the northeastern sector in the area of the Christian town of Marjayoun, while 200 Iranians were scheduled to patrol the central sector.

The U.N. troops will be stationed betwen the Israeli lines and the Litani River, which runs 12 miles north of the international border. The Syrian peace-keeping force in Lebanon is encamped on the north bank.

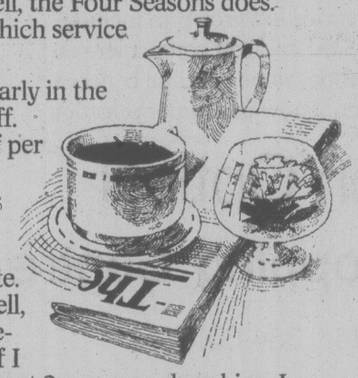
Why the Four Seasons? Because it's a hotel as serious about its business of service as I am about the business I'm in.

I judge a hotel by the same standards on which my own business is judged.

Quite simply, does it deliver what it promises – or does it not? Well, the Four Seasons does. It's one hotel in which service is a fact.

I notice it particularly in the attitude of the staff. There's more staff per guest than in any other Vancouver hotel, by the way, and the attention to detail is absolute. Their manner – well, even more than responsive, I'd say. If I want room service at 2 a.m. or a shoeshine, I get it. They actually seem to anticipate what you need, and, in fact, what will please you most.



The best hotel in Vancouver? I have no doubts at all about that.

STEPHENS TO WAIT

Progressive Conservative leader Vic Stephens, the province's newest MLA, won't be in his seat when the legislature opens March 30.

Speaker Ed Smith said Wednesday that statutes stipulate Stephens must wait 10 full days from the day his election was confirmed until he can sit as an MLA.

Stephens, who won the Oak Bay bye-election on Monday, would therefore be unable to take his place in the legislature until Monday, April 3, Smith said.

However, Smith said Stephens will be among special guests seated in the chamber on opening day.

Stephens said he wasn't upset about not being able to take part in opening of the new session.

"I've waited 47 years; I can wait another three days."

Meanwhile, Stephens said that because he will be at the legislature at the end of the month, he will write to the Law Society of B.C. to ask it to postpone a hearing scheduled March 31 to consider allegations of unprofessional conduct against him.

The matter arose after Stephens' new-style law office in Vancouver received widespread publicity when it opened.

Under law society rules, advertising by a lawyer is considered conduct unbecoming to a member of the society.

$40,000 Sought To Guard Water

Victoria's public works department has asked council for $40,000 to provide a safety feature that would guard the city's water supply against contamination from laboratories, hospitals or other facilities that use toxic substances.

City engineer John Sansom told council during a budget meeting Wednesday if the city's water system suffered a sudden drop in pressure, it is possible contaminants could be drawn out of individual systems and injected into the main water supply.

He said such back-flows can be prevented by cross connection controls.

"We're getting more and more toward research-oriented industry in town . . . we want to assure that they're isolated from our water supply," said Sansom.

He explained labs, hospitals and other such operations often have contaminants in their water pipes, and those toxins could be sucked into the city's supply unless there are operational back-flow preventors on the lines.

Sansom said that an old bylaw requires such devices to be installed where needed, and that they are undoubtedly in place in many major buildings — but the city has no idea where they are or if any of them are operational.

"What we want to find out now is who has them, if they work, and who hasn't got them who should," said Sansom.

He said the $40,000 requested in the provisional budget is an arbitrary figure and that he didn't know exactly what it would cost to have a completely safe system.

Mayor Mike Young agreed there is reason for concern, but thought the best procedure would be for the water utility department to initially ask only for enough funding to undertake a study.

Young said if the study revealed the situation is urgent council can take action.

Young said the study should log where the back-flow devices are located, if they're being maintained and where the city should install them to protect the main water supply.

'I've Said It Myself' -Minister

Forests Minister Tom Waterland said Wednesday there is nothing new in the statement by the head of the B.C. Forest Service calling for an end to the preserving of forests for parklands.

"I've said the same thing a dozen times myself," Waterland said.

Ted Young told a meeting of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association in Montreal that B.C. can no longer afford to preserve large tracts of land for a single use such as parks or wilderness areas.

Waterland said he read Young's speech before he left for Montreal and approved it.

Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf said when he learned of Young's remarks that "it is not my view of the future — short or long term — nor is it the view of my ministry or the government.

"I am dismayed and concerned by such a blanket expression as this," he said.

Life Guards Likely For Elk Lake

Lifeguards may yet be employed at Elk and Beaver Lakes this summer.

The regional parks committee was asked to reconsider its earlier decision to drop the lifeguards after the Capital Regional District board was told Wednesday 15 people might have drowned last year if lifeguards had not been present.

At a meeting last week the committee decided to eliminate lifeguards, saving $88,000. It cut $30,000 off its budget and reallocated the rest of the money.

On Wednesday the board reinstated the $30,000 and instructed the committee to reconsider the lifeguard issue.

Committee chairman city alderman Bob Wright said it was decided to eliminate lifeguards after the committee was told by staff members there had been no reports of near-drownings in 1977. Also, a North American study had proven there are less incidents when lifeguards are not employed because parents then assume more responsibility for their children.

Oak Bay alderman Shirley Dowell, however, said she had been told by one of the 12 lifeguards employed in 1977 that of the 30 incidents reported, 15 could have led to drownings if lifeguards weren't on duty.

Saanich alderman Howard Sturrock said because the two lakes are so infested with weeds they could not be compared to lakes elsewhere. He said he also is concerned about the jobs that would be lost.

Dollar Flood Drives Loan Rates Down

HONG KONG (Reuter) — Asian countries are taking advantage of a flood of unwanted U.S. dollars around the world to refinance their foreign debts on terms far cheaper and longer than those they originally obtained.

International banks, faced with a drying up in the demand for loans in the United States and other major industrialized countries, are fighting a savage price-cutting war to attract the borrowers left in an ever-shrinking market.

Because competition to lend is so great, the banks appear to be getting more and more willing to grant these countries loans on terms usually reserved for wealthy industrialized states.

A year ago Philippine borrowers on the Eurocurrency market were obtaining syndicated credits with interest set at about 1.75 per cent over the London Interbank Offered Rate (Libor).

Two recent loans for the Philippines, however, have carried interest at the reduced rate of one per cent over Libor. The credit period, which in the past had usually stretched to seven years, was pushed up to 10 years in both cases.

"Where there isn't too much opportunity to lend, banks will seize any chance and offer suitably fine terms," one senior banker comments.

The improvement in credit terms has pushed many Asian countries to borrow the new cheap money to repay earlier and more expensive loans. Ironically, the foreign banks which originally made the more expensive loans are often the same ones which now are offering to refinance them on cheaper terms. They do this so as not to lose out on business, even though it means a drop in earnings.

One banker describes the situation as dangerous and "likely to strain the whole lending system. Countries around here are just not worth spreads of one per cent."

West German and Japanese banks seeking to find a home for excess dollars derived from the huge U.S. trade deficit have made the competition to lend in Asia even more aggressive, international bankers say.

Some Asian countries have even managed to secure loans at less than one per cent over Libor.

SOVIET-U.K. AUTO EYED

LONDON (Reuter) — The Soviet Union is holding exploratory talks with British car manufacturers on joint production of a new small car, a Soviet trade delegate said Wednesday.

Talks will also be held with the United States, France, Italy and West Germany, and it is hoped production of the new car will start by the early 1980s.

Mystery Gas Fills School

PONTIAC (UPI) — The symptoms are rashes, headaches, fatigue, shortness of breath, burning eyes and nausea.

In the past month, the mysterious affliction has stricken more than half the nearly 600 students and faculty members at Schoolcraft Elementary School in suburban Waterford Township.

Angry and confused parents, in some cases with the support of their personal physicians, blame carbon monoxide concentrations in the school building that could result in permanent health problems. Many are keeping their children home.

Oakland County Health Director Robert Locey Wednesday called it "an extreme ventilation problem" that can be corrected with structural changes in the building. He said the lack of adequate ventilation could be the result of overzealous efforts by school officials to conserve energy during winter.

Only one case of actual carbon monoxide poisoning has been confirmed. The victim was a school secretary, Lea Browning, 49, who collapsed in her office last Thursday.

Inspections of the school by health officials failed to detect the source of the carbon monoxide buildup.

The mother of a fourth grade student who has been suffering from severe headaches since as far back as January, said she will not send her son back to school "until I'm convinced the problem has been corrected."

"He has orders from his doctor not to go back until the situation is corrected," said the concerned parent, who asked not to be named. "He's fine now."

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal court jury awarded Berkey Photos, Inc., $37.6 million Wednesday in its civil antitrust suit against Eastman Kodak Co.

Alvin Stein, a lawyer for Berkey, said the actual total award would amount to more than $112 million under treble damages.

Kodak said it would appeal.

The award was voted by a jury of eight women and two men in the U.S. district court in Manhattan after almost five days of deliberation.

The deliberations capped a three-week trial before Judge Marvin Frankel to determine the size of the award.

Kodak's liability was established by the same jury at an earlier trial, which took six months. The panel decided at the first trial that Kodak monopolized various amateur photographic markets since 1969 and thus injured Berkey's business.

The markets covered conventional and movie camaras, film, color print paper, and photo-finishing.

The largest award Berkey received from the jury was compensatory damages for loss of sales on cameras after Kodak introduced its new 110 Pocket Instamatic in 1972. For that claim Berkey received $15.25 million.

In other determinations, Berkey received $11.5 million as compensation for excess prics it paid to Kodak for amateur film purchases, and $8.8 million for excess prices Berkey paid Kodak for color print paper.

Stein said after the jury reported its verdict that the law under which the antitrust action was taken automatically provides for tripling any jury award.

Neither the judge nor Kodak's lawyers commented immediately on this aspect.

"This has been an absolutely historic case. Never before has a private litigation so effectively invoked and enforced antitrust laws," Stein said.

Kodak issued a statement saying the company "views the award as unwarranted because the company continues to believe that the court applied an incorrect standard of law in the case."

It added: "We believe as strongly as ever that Kodak's introduction of new and innovative products has not violated the law. We intend to appeal both the liability and damage findings of the jury."

Civil Rights Foe Stepping Down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., staunch Southern segregationist during the civil rights battles and one of the last of the old-line Senate barons, announced Wednesday he would not seek a seventh term.

Eastland, 73, is the senior member of the Senate, its president pro tem and the powerful chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

He said in a three-page statement he could not discharge his duties in the next eight months and at the same time conduct a long and ardous election campaign.

How Your Garden Grows

Anyone with a small patch of ground in a sunny location can enjoy an abundant crop of succulent, fresh vegetables. It's a matter of simple preparation, beginning in early spring.

In March or April, apply Green Valley Dolomite Lime to your garden area. This will overcome the acid soil conditions which prevail in our region. Then add Green Valley Flower & Vegetable Plant Food to provide essential nutrients, following this with an application of Green Valley Steer Manure or other organic matter, such as compost. Finally, spade or rototill the entire area to a depth of 6 to 8 inches.

In May, plant vegetable seeds in rows. Two weeks after germination, thin rows to recommended spacing. Two or three times during the growing season, apply supplementary nitrogen in the form of urea dissolved in water to the rows of leafy vegetables, such as lettuce and cabbage. For tomato plants use the specially prepared Green Valley Tomato Food.

Plants should be checked frequently for insects, and an appropriate insecticide used where needed. Once a week, water thoroughly, ideally with a soaker type hose. Finally, be sure to cultivate between rows regularly to eliminate weeds which compete with your vegetables for plant food and water.

BULLETS END CANCER MISERY

NORTON SHORES, Mich. (AP) — Lyman Briggs shot his cancer stricken wife to death, then gave her one final embrace and killed himself, police said. He left a note that read: "I would rather spend an eternity in hell than see Molly live a life of hell."

"I don't want to call this a murder case. He obviously loved her a lot," police chief Charles Curtis said.

Curtis said Briggs, 66, and his 58 year old wife each had a single .32 calibre bullet wound in the right temple.

The couple's only child, Tyler, 24, apparently found the bodies Tuesday when he returned from work, Jerry Cook, a neighbor, said.

"They were beautiful people. But she was very, very sick," Mrs. Cook said Wednesday.

For more than a year, Mrs. Briggs underwent chemotherapy, Mrs. Cook said. "But they never complained. Everybody loved them."

Mrs. Cook said Briggs retired from his factory job in this western Michigan city near Muskegon last year to care for his wife.

"We were their neighbors for 15 years," Mrs. Cook said. "They were the best in the world. And they're not in hell."

Miners Charge Relief Funds Withheld

United Press International

Angry Ohio miners laid siege to UMW headquarters in Washington, demanding distribution of relief funds they charge have been withheld in a bid to force ratification of a new contract in Friday balloting.

On the eve of the vote — with the coal strike in its 109th day — the race still was too close to call, though many union local leaders conceded slight odds in favor of ratification.

Miners' wives also were in Washington Wednesday, wearing hard hats and carrying signs urging rejection of the third pact forged so far between the union and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association.

Mary Simo, 25, of Barnesboro, Pa., carried a large black coal shovel emblazoned with the message "Banjo Proposal in the Gob" — miner parlance for "turn down the contract."

"We want better benefits for the pensioners and widows," she said.

Union local officer Ed MacLeod of Bellaire, Ohio, wanted money.

Backed by a group of fellow miners, he confronted UMW press spokesman Paul Fortney at the union's headquarters and demanded release of the more then $3 million given by other unions to the striking miners, many of whom have been left in a financial straitjacket by the prolonged walkout.

NEW MARINA at Point Roberts is welcome addition to the boating scene. It can take up to 1,000 boats and is expected to pump some prosperity into the economy of the small Washington community.

Point Roberts Marina Exciting and Welcome

AROUND OUR SHORES
pat dufour

If they get a chance, Victoria sailors going over to the Mainland to take part in the Southern Strait of Georgia classic this weekend should take a look at the new Point Roberts marina that's now in full operation.

It's one of the most exciting projects around our waters and should help the mooring congestion in the Vancouver area.

Built at a cost of $7 million, it was created by dredging what was once a low-lying pasture area on the south shore of the Washington community.

The positioning of the breakwaters and the marina's specially-designed shape ensures maximum tidal mixing and storm shelter.

There's moorage for 1,000 boats of anything between 20 and 120 feet and a large transient boaters dock. The boat services include a fuel dock, boat repair and charter boat service, as well as yacht sales.

Ed Trasolini, the developer-operator, says a large harbor master building complex, including a restaurant, ship chandlery and other retail stores will be finished this summer.

The United States begin manning a customs clearing station at the marina in April.

Ed plans to add waterfront condominiums, a village shopping centre, other commercial and recreational facilities in the future, costing somewhere between $10 and $15 million.

"We are confident that the marina is a vital addition to the economy of the community and are hopeful the development will provide the basis for much-needed future growth," he says.

With the cruising season just around the corner the new marina should provide a pleasant port of call for local boaters. Overnight moorage is $3 for boats up to 20 feet and 30 cents a foot extra for larger boats.

Not as many Royal Victoria Yacht Club boats are competing in this year's Southern Strait of Georgia as in past years but those that are can be relied upon to give a good performance.

Among those who will be on the start line on Friday will be Steve Merriman's Country Style, Ted Trenholme's Impatience, Eric Dowell's Shelca and Gerry Porter's Errigal.

Becsuse of the race, RVYC's Laser enthusiasts have cancelled this Saturday's series racing in order to crew on the bigger boats.

Rupert Homesworth won the first of three races sailed on Saturday and placed second in the other two. Barry Wright also had a good day, winning the last race, placing second the first time around and third in the second sailout. Doug Gray finished third in the first race. Charles Simpson won the second race and came third in the final one.

Results of the Canoe Bay Sailing Club's D'Arcy Shoals 12-miler on Sunday are still being calculated by Peter White, who's a busy man these days settling in to a new job that involves a hefty amount of studying. They should be ready soon. Meanwhile, the club will hold one of its regular Saturday six-milers on the weekend, starting at 1 p.m. in the vicinity of the government wharf at Sidney.

The Turkey Head Sailing Association has completed its C series, the winner being Jack Foster's Sly Fox. She's followed by Soren Isbrand's Danish Pastry, Gerry Porter's Sunshine, Larry Shorter's Kila Kila and Greg Oliver's The Distant Drummer.

Several members of the Victoria Canoe Club will be heading up-Island this weekend to take part in the Cowichan River races on Saturday. There will be two classes of canoes — 327s and standard recreational.

Vikings Edge Thunderbirds

University of Victoria rugby squads came up with victories over the University of British Columbia in a pair of exhibition matches Wednesday at UVic.

UVic Vikings nudged the UBC Thunderbirds 24-21 and the UVic Norsemen tripped UBC Braves, 15-4.

Gary Grant set the pace for Vikings with two tries. Alistair Palmer scored the other four-pointer, Jamie Hawthorne kicked all three conversions and John Norris supplied the balance of points with a pair of drop goals.

Andy Jackson supplied all the points for Norsemen, scoring a try, kicking the conversion and booting two penalty goals as well as a drop goal. Andy Lum scored the lone try for Braves.

Mt. Doug Blanks Esquimalt Squad

Mt. Douglas Mountainmen blanked Esquimalt Dockers 18-0 in the only Greater Victoria High School Rugby League match played Wednesday.

Ian Sturrock, Bruce McDiarmid, James Proctor and Mark Townsend scored tries for Mountainmen in the Hodgins Division contest. Townsend also booted a conversion.

Oak Bay Barbarians picked up a win by default over Spectrum in a scheduled Russell Division match when the latter side was unable to field a team.

Ninth Defence

Eric Wright and Ben Domoney of Royal Colwood retained the seniors golf buttons Wednesday by defeating Cliff Button and Norm Parsons of Gorge Vale on the 16th hole at Cedar Hill Golf Club. It was the ninth straight successful defence for the Colwood duo.

Mouthguards Mandatory

REGINA (CP) — The Canadian National Junior Football League passed a motion at an executive meeting during the weekend making the use of mouthguards mandatory in the 1978 season.

Although the 32 teams in the junior league play under Canadian Football League rules, the rule regarding the use of mouthguards is from the Canadian Amateur Football Association rulebook.

The CAFA will make a presentation at the CNJFL annual meeting in November, aimed at getting the league to adopt the amateur rulebook in full.

The only other change for the 1978 season is that teams will be allowed one time-out per half.

Disputed Ruling Helps Notts Forest Take Cup

MANCHESTER, England (Reuter) — A controversial penalty by John Robertson enabled Nottingham Forest to win the League Cup on Wednesday and with it the team's first reward for an outstanding season in English soccer.

Forest beat Liverpool 1-0 before 54,000 fans in a replay at Old Trafford, the only goal coming in the 53rd minute. The teams' first encounter at Wembley last Saturday ended in a scoreless draw.

It's the first time Forest, which has a clear lead in the first division, has won the League Cup and it is the team's first trophy gained under the management of Brian Clough.

The 3½-hour final proved a diaster for Liverpool. They were well on top throughout at Wembley, yet came away with nothing, and had two goals disallowed—one on Saturday and one Wednesday when Terry McDermott put the ball in the net but was ruled to have handled it.

Then Tony Woodcock found a gap for John O'Hare, who was tripped by Phil Thompson just inside the penalty area. Robertson made no mistake from the spot as the Liverpool players protested that the incident had taken place outside the area.

Liverpool did everything but tie it, but Forest held on at times with all 11 men in their own penalty area.

It was fitting that the last person to foil battling Liverpool was 18-year-old goalkeeper Chris Woods, whose great saves on Saturday earned Forest a replay. In the 79th minute, Ray Kennedy squeezed a shot through a mass of legs, but Woods went down to save at the foot of the post.

The anxieties and frustrations of a replay crept into the match and three players were booked in a short spell.

Did you get Unemployment Insurance in 1977?

If so, you have probably received a tax information slip (T4U) in the mail.

If the slip hasn't arrived...
If you didn't get a T4U from us, go to your local post office. Pick up a postal reply card to apply for duplicates. Fill it in and mail it. You'll get your duplicate T4U in time to file your tax return.

If the slip has arrived...
If you did get a T4U but need a replacement for any reason, also use the postal reply card. Mark "replacement" on the card in the upper right hand corner.

If the slip has arrived but you need more information...
If you did get a T4U and still need an itemized statement, fill in the same card. You must write the total UI benefits you got in 1977 somewhere on the card.
This is important. It will help us get your statement to you in time. You'll find the total benefits figure in Box "B" of your T4U slip.

Sparwood Wildcat Ends

CRANBROOK (CP) — Workers at Kaiser Resources' Ltd.'s Sparwood coal mine began returning to work Wednesday afternoon after a 10-day wildcat strike.

The British Columbia Labor Relations Board had ordered the 1,300 striking miners, members of the United Mine Workers of America local 7292, to report back to work by this morning.

Slashed Phone Cable Fixed

LYTTON (CP) — Long distance telephone service was restored to three Fraser Canyon communities Wednesday afternoon when a British Columbia Telephone Co. cable that was cut earlier in the day near here was repaired. The cable was damaged by a highway-widening project.

$3m Airport Improvements

KAMLOOPS (CP) — About $3 million in federal funds is to be provided for a new terminal and aircraft-parking area at the airport in this Interior community, Enviroment Minister Len Marchand said Tuesday.

Prostitute Rapist Sentenced

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Lawrence Shable, 30, of North Vancouver, was sentenced to eight years in prison Wednesday after being found guilty of raping two teen-age prostitutes in different incidents.

Court was told that the two prostitutes, one 17 and one 15, were picked up here by Shable, driven to a remote area and raped. One incident occurred July 23, 1976, and the other was on Aug. 14, 1974.

The jury was also told that one girl was tied up, whipped and threatened while the other was burned with a cigarette and had some pubic hairs pulled out with pliers.

Student Job Bid in Okanagan

KELOWNA (CP) — The Central Okanagan School District Wednesday agreed to ask the British Columbia Labor Relations Board for a change in the certification of municipal workers to allow employment of students under government funded special programs.

$30,000 in Bad Cheques

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Skogg, 28, of nearby Surrey was charged Wednesday with dealing in forged documents after about 120 cheques worth more than $30,000 were illegally cashed in the Vancouver area during the last three years.

2,4-D Rapped

PEACHLAND (CP) — Mayor Hugh Clark said Wednesday his municipal council voted unanimously earlier this week against the use of the herbicide 2,4-D in the Okanagan Lake system this summer.

He said the decision was made on the grounds that the herbicide should not be used until it has been proven that it causes no harmful effects.

Editor Gets Post

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Percy Qoboza, editor of the banned black newspaper The World, will become editor next month of the Post and Weekend Post, which are being published by staff at the World's offices. Qoboza was freed recently after being imprisoned 4½ months without charges.

A Fledgling Identity Crisis

Quentin, with Monique Mees.

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Quentin the pigeon has had his share of ups and downs since he fell from his nest and was thrown, broken shell and all, into a garbage can.

He could have died, but the Walter Mees family saved him and living with the family is good — Monique Mees, 12, lets him sit on her head while she does her homework, and young Anton, 14, started taking him to school.

But things didn't work out at school — Quentin was barred from one class, then expelled.

Adding to his problems, he's not sure if he's a pigeon. He's tried being a duck, but no go. Being a robin didn't pan out. And now he's not even sure he's a he.

"He just doesn't seem to know what he is," said Katy Mees whose son Anton found Quentin in the family garbage can a year ago when he'd barely hatched from an egg.

Until recently, he used to strut along behind Anton when he walked the three blocks to Hillside secondary school in the morning.

But Quentin's academic career came to an abrupt halt when he turned up one day in Anton's math class.

"The teacher was allergic to birds," Mees said. "He was kicked out of the class and took to hanging around the office."

Quentin finally was expelled from school, but he still tries to follow Anton when he leaves the house after breakfast.

"We have to keep him in his cage until afternoon," Mees said. "Anton was getting embarrassed. All a 14-year-old kid needs is a pigeon following him to school."

The family took turns raising Quentin on ground-up wheat and baby food.

As a result, "Quentin is a people bird," Mees said, "but he has this curiosity about other things with feathers."

He's been seen waddling along behind the family's ducks and pecking in the back yard with the chickens. Once they caught him with a robin trying to pull out a worm.

And Thursday they faced the possibility that Quentin may be a she.

Chrysler Recall

OTTAWA (CP) — Chrysler Canada Ltd. has started sending recall notices to owners of about 180,000, 1975-77 vehicles inviting them to return to dealers for correction of a design defect that has caused chronic stalling.

But the company still hasn't made clear whether it will reimburse owners for money already spent trying to correct the problem which has persisted on some vehicles for more than three years.

The two-page recall notices received by owners this week do not make clear the company will pay for any previous servicing.

'. . .If They Are Killed In Prison, They Will Have Paid For Killing'

TORONTO (CP) — John Kribs, brother of one of the three men sentenced to life imprisonment Wednesday for the murder of Emanuel Jaques, said his brother believes he will never get out of prison alive.

Moments after being sentenced for the murder of the 12-year-old shoeshine boy, Robert Wayne Kribs told his 25-year-old brother that he knows his life will be in danger from other prisoners.

Valdermira Jaques, Emanuel's 17-year-old sister, said in an interview that she wishes her brother's murderers could be killed and said she does not care if the three men are in danger in prison.

"If they are killed in prison, they will have paid for killing Emanuel," she said.

Valdermira, the only member of the Jaques family to sit through the entire 7½-week trial, said the trial was a bitter experience.

She said her parents did not attend any part of the trial because her father may have become angered enough to attack his son's killers if he saw them smiling and talking in the courtroom.

"It was pretty hard to sit in court. It hurt a lot. I thought, 'If I could only get my hands on them.' I'll never forget what they did to him."

Kribs and Saul David Betesh, 27, both found guilty two weeks ago of first-degree murder, were told by Mr. Justice William Maloney of the Ontario Supreme Court that although they were eligible for parole in 25 years, they would not necessarily get it.

The two, along with a third man, Josef Woods, 26, whom Mr. Justice Maloney recommended serve 18 years before being eligible for parole for his second-degree conviction, are expected to be sent to the Kingston maximum-security centre.

"Bob told me he thought he'd never make it out of there alive," said John Kribs who had a 15-minute visit with his brother following sentencing.

"He thinks something's going to happen in there. Not immediately, but he's just really negative about getting out."

Although John said he expected the visit with his brother to be an emotional one, he said it turned out to be matter-of-fact.

"He seemed the same old Bob. He was saying that he was going to be careful in jail and that he would have to stay away from the stoolies and the instigators."

Mr. Justice Maloney, who said he hoped Kribs and Betesh would not be released until long after serving the 25-year minimum, said that while he has found sentencing prisoners his most difficult task in the past, this time it was not so.

"It's not just because the sentences are prescribed by law," he told Kribs. "It's because the sentence is richly deserved."

The judge described Werner Gruener, the 29-year-old man who was acquitted by the jury, as a "diabolical hypocrite."

"A Bible in one hand, taking money from a body-rub with the other, he walked out of here a free man."

Gruener was not innocent, said the judge, but was given the benefit of a doubt.

NO STUDY: LEVESQUE

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government has not commissioned any studies on the possibility of an independent Quebec forming an economic association with the United States, Premier Rene Levesque said Wednesday.

Theft of Payoffs 'Good Business'

TORONTO (CP) — The former president of a Montreal dredging company said Wednesday that he helped an employee of McNamara Corp. Ltd. take money meant as payoffs to the McNamara firm for rigging dredging bids.

Horace Rindress, former president of the J. P. Porter Co. Ltd., said he helped Louis Quinlan take payoff money meant for McNamara Corp.

Under cross-examination from David Humphrey, lawyer for company president Harold McNamara, Rindress said that "by asisting Mr. Quinlan (in the theft), he became much easier to deal with."

"I knew I was able to make better arrangements between Porter and McNamara because of the help I was giving Mr. Quinlan."

It seemed like good business from a corporate point of view, he added.

McNamara is one of 11 businessmen and nine companies, including McNamara and Porter, on trial for conspiring to defraud public agencies of more than $4 million in dredging contracts from 1967 to 1975.

Rindress also told the Ontario Supreme Court jury that funds from Porter field offices were placed in his personal account before he gave them to employees as under-the-table bonuses for good service.

The bonuses allowed employees to avoid paying income tax on the money, he said.

Earlier, the 51-year-old businessman said he placed a letter he wrote and several documents in a Florida safety desposit box in January, 1974, because he feared an early death and did not want the responsibility for the bid-rigging to be laid on him posthumously.

In the letter, addressed "to whom it may concern", Rindress said he kept the principal directors of the company, Jean Simard and Bruno Desjardins, informed of all his activities.

Both are defendants in the trial.

But he said in the letter that he did not inform Arthur Simard or Leon Simard, Porter directors, because "the former was so ill and demented that information of this sort might trigger an attack and the latter was so stupid and loose-tongued that the whole world would know within 24 hours."

Rindress, a Crown witness, is testifying under protection of the Canada Evidence Act, which prevents what he says from being used against him in future court proceedings.

COMMONS CHEERS FEMALE PAGES

OTTAWA (CP) — The House of Commons erupted into cheers Wednesday when members learned that females in first-year university courses would soon be allowed to serve as pages in the House.

It will be the end of a long tradition. Pages in the Commons have always been high-school aged males, dressed in old-fashioned black suits, who run errands for MPs.

The Senate, however, has had female pages for a number of years.

Commons Speaker James Jerome said he had made no final decision on uniforms but was leaning toward green blazers and grey flannel skirts and slacks.

Jerome said the existing system had been changed because discrepancies between provincial high school programs had made it difficult for students to work as pages without running into educational problems.

The Speaker said he had examined the system in Washington where first-year university students serve as pages, and decided this would work well in Canada.

SATURDAY, MARCH 25th THE DESIGNER OF THIS EXCEPTIONAL SPEAKER SPEAKS
John Greenbank, noted designer of the Tangent loudspeakers that have recently overwhelmed the British audio critics, will be conducting a not-to-be-missed seminar on Sat. March 25 at 11:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. The discussions will cover many aspects of music reproduction. If you are an audio enthusiast, or a lover of music, this is indeed a rare opportunity.
Note: While there will be plenty of coffee and doughnuts, distortion will not be served.
What the Critics say About Tangent
"All in all, this speaker offers what only can be described as truly exceptional value for money."
"...the mid-range of this speaker is exceptionally clean, natural and uncoloured."
"...Bass was very well extended, tight and free from boominess."

Discount Clamps In Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — There are some "very serious constitutional problems" with legislation in other provinces regulating income tax discounters, Graham Harle, consumer and corporate affairs minister, said Wednesday.

"After all, it is dealing with something over which the federal government has absolute control," Harle told the legislature during question period.

The consumer and corporate affairs minister said he would look forward to debating a private member's bill introduced by Fred Mandeville (SC-Bow Valley) which would require tax discounters to return 90 per cent of any rebate.

During a meeting of federal and provincial consumer affairs ministers in Victoria, the provincial ministers urged the federal government to speed up making income tax refunds, Harle said.

Harle said the Alberta government has given financial aid to groups in Edmonton and Calgary to provide an alternate service to that being offered by the discounters.

Caouette To Poll Socreds On Site

OTTAWA (CP) — Gilles Caouette, Social Credit interim leader, said today he plans to consult party members across the country to see if they agree the next leadership convention should be in Winnipeg May 6.

Following a meeting of seven of the party's nine MPs, Caouette told reporters he also will hold a telephone conference with the party's provincial presidents about the convention site — an issue which threatens to divide both the party and its parliamentary caucus.

The party's national council decided last weekend in Winnipeg hold a leadership convention May 6 in that city.

Quebec delegates and some of the MPs, including Caouette, said then they would not accept the decision.

Rene Matte (Champlain) said he will propose that Quebec hold a parallel convention to chose its own leader. Several Quebec delegates said they want two leaders — one to represent each linguistic group.

The two MPs who did not attend today's meeting were Leonel Beaudoin (Richmond) and Eudore Allard (Rimouski). Beaudoin said Monday he will leave the party if two leaders are chosen.

6-Year Guarantee Not Enough

Chretien

By DAN POTTIER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The possibility of a six-year exemption from Bill 101 education rules is not good enough for Ottawa to proceed with plans to move some of its operations to Quebec, says Finance Minister Jean Chretien.

Chretien told the Commons yesterday full freedom of choice for parents to educate their children in the official language of their choice is needed before any federal civil servants are decentralized to the provinces.

He was commenting on a statement by Quebec Cultural Development Minister Camille Laurin that the potential sixyear exemption for newcomers to Quebec should be enough for anglophones.

Decentralization is a long term proposition, Chretien said, and Quebec is being asked no more than is sought from all other provinces involved in decentralization.

Irenee Pelletier (L—Sherbrooke) raised the matter asking if the minister had noted Laurin's willingness to grant the full six-year exemption possible under Bill 101.

Bill 101 forces newcomers to Quebec to send their children to French schools unless their stay is for less than three years with a possible extension of another three years.

Apart from the six-year argument, Laurin told a Sherbrooke, Que., audience last week that Bill 101 would not be changed because Ottawa might cancel a planned move of 750 federal civil servants to that city.

"Given the fluctuations in public servants' careers," he said, "it seems to us that this possibility of a six-year exemption should soothe the worries of the employees to be transferred."

If any decided to stay beyond the six-years, he added, "they should have understood by then the necessity of sending their children to French schools."

The federal government announced last year that as part of plans to decentralize, the mapping division of the department of energy, mines and resources would move to Sherbrooke.

The biggest move in the decentralization program will see the entire veterans affairs department transferred to Charlottetown, PEI.

That province has promised to provide schools for the children of the nearly 300 Frenchlanguage employees affected by the move.

MAN CAN MARRY SISTER WITHOUT PERMISSION

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate decided Wednesday that a Quebec man and his adopted sister do not need Parliament's permission to get married after all.

Lucien Morin, 41, and his adopted sister Marie, 31, residents of Saint-Mathieu, Que. will be refunded the $650 they paid Parliament to draft and approve a special bill permitting them to marry.

Under Canadian general public law related couples cannot marry but Parliament has the power to make exceptions with special bills for unique cases like two others being considered — uncles and nieces.

Senators and MPs first thought the Morin couple were prohibited from marrying, although they are not related by blood, because the Adoption Act of Quebec gave Marie full status as a legitimate child.

Under the 1866 Quebec Civil Code, a legitimate brother and sister are barred from marrying. The Senate decided after a few weeks of study that the Code did not cover adopted couples and that the Code takes precedence over the Adoption Act.

Former Dumping Board Boss Sues Ottawa for $750,000

OTTAWA (CP) — William Buchanan, former head of the anti-dumping tribunal, is suing the federal government for $750,000 in damages, plus legal fees and "such further and other relief" as the court sees fit.

The suit claims Buchanan was forced to resign in 1972 by John Turner, then minister of finance, "as a result of erroneous and negligently arrived at conclusions."

Five present and former public servants are named as co-defendants, including Donald Christie, associate deputy minister of justice.

Buchanan, a native of Winnipeg, joined the tariff board here in 1949 after unsuccessfully standing as a federal Liberal candidate. He was a appointed to the tribunal in 1969.

The dispute began in 1970 when the tribunal, which watches for foreign products that might be dumped on the Canadian market, ruled that imported glass was likely to hurt the domestic industry.

It was discovered that Buchanan, who had assumed his position with the tribunal in 1969, had worked as a self-employed commodity tax consultant in 1968. Two of his clients included Canadian Pittsburgh Industries Ltd., and Pilkington Brothers (Canada) Ltd., two major glass manufacturers.

The apparent conflict of interest prompted an investigation that resulted in the federal government unsuccessfully appealing the tribunal decision in 1972 to the Federal Court.

The Federal Court appeals division reversed that decision in 1973 but in 1975 the Supreme Court of Canada unanimously overturned the appeal court decision, exonerating the tribunal.

Buchanan's lawyers contended the Supreme Court decision also cleared their client.

The suit says Buchanan provided services worth $100,000 to the two Canadian glass companies in 1968 but received only $66,854.02. The balance was to be paid in subsequent years.

The defendants used Income Tax Act provisions to carry out what was supposed to be an audit on Buchanan's books, the suit says.

"The defendant...examined only the invoices of the plaintiff and none of the expense vouchers and receipts...but at no time asked the plaintiff for any explanation," it says.

The invoices were dated after Buchanan became chairman of the tribunal but were for services rendered the year before when he was self-employed, the suit contends.

Vandalism Down Sharply

Vandalism in Victoria's parks declined dramatically last year, Ald. Robin Blencoe said Wednesday.

Blencoe, chairman of city council's parks committee, released figures showing that vandals did an estimated $3,797 damage last year compared to $6,578 in 1976.

Blencoe said he could not explain the decline but felt that "maybe people are finally getting tough with their kids."

He hopes the figures will add a moderating balance to the concern with juvenile crime.

"Although I recognize such crime as a problem, we often have a tendency to isolate it from the over-all picture and throw doubt on all kids — this is not a very fair attitude in my mind."

But Blencoe said such crime "cannot just be solved by curfews or stronger truancy regulations. There are progressive alternatives such as team policing and community programming that are working elsewhere and we must study such models."

A breakdown of the vandalism damage figures shows that small parks in the city experienced most with about $2,585 damage in 1977, compared to $4,219 in 1976.

Beacon Hill Park had $662 damage to its facilities, compared to $920 in 1976.

NO DECISION ON CURFEW

Victoria Mayor Mike Young said Wednesday he hasn't reached any decision on the possibility of a city-wide curfew for juveniles.

Young said he received a police report on the city's juvenile crime problem earlier this week.

He said the report shows there is a substantial problem with repeat offenders and that most juvenile crimes are committed during school hours by children playing hookey.

The mayor asked for a police report after a number of Victoria residents complained to him about increasing juvenile delinquency problems.

Easter Bonnet Ham Leads the Parade

1 fully cooked boneless ham, about 5 pounds
3 egg whites
¼ tsp. cream tartar, if desired
3 Tbsps. brown sugar
3 Tbsps. prepared yellow mustard.

Bake ham following directions on can or wrapper. Transfer to heat-proof platter or baking sheet. Beat egg whites until frothy; add cream tartar and beat until soft peaks form. Gradually add sugar, continuing to beat until stiff peaks form; gently fold in mustard. Spread mixture over ham, completely covering top and sides. Bake in 400° oven about 10 minutes, or until lightly browned.

SPICED PEACHES

1 can (28-oz.) peach halves
French's Whole Cloves
½ cup vinegar
½ cup sugar
1 stick French's Cinnamon.

Drain peaches, saving syrup. Pierce each peach half with 2 or 3 cloves. Combine the peach syrup, vinegar, sugar, and cinnamon in saucepan; simmer, uncovered, 3 to 4 minutes. Pour over peach halves. Chill thoroughly. Makes eight servings.

Dee Koerts knows her colors

Do one thing at a time. Do it well and you will gain a reputation for dedicated attention to your work.

This is the motto Dee Koerts has adopted and that she believes pays off.

Dee specializes in interior designing and architectural drafting — fields in which men are still in the majority.

In fact, you might say it started merely as a hobby. Or, as she describes it "a growing desire to find an interest that would help me to learn and to know something beyond the work I was doing as a secretary."

Five years later, after a break to have a baby daughter and to concentrate for awhile on being a mother, Dee went on to take a course in architecture at Camosun College.

It was then she became interested in drafting and decided it was a branch of the profession in which she should become involved.

An advertisement was placed in the local papers. That brought only one reply and it did not offer drafting work.

Nevertheless, the reply did give Dee Koerts her start and it did place her in the enviable position she holds now, as a pioneer in a phase of building design that, until then, had not been explored to any extent.

The lone reply was from Ridley Bros. Development Co. Ltd. at Langford.

They were working on a housing project and needed someone to assume the responsibility of deciding color schemes and choosing appliances and fixtures.

As developers and builders, they knew that part of the work was important, but they were unable to give it the time needed for best results.

Would she consider taking it on?

"It was a new idea as far as I was concerned," Dee told me, "but it was intriguing, so I decided I would do it."

Since then she has never looked back. One commission has followed another.

And, in every instance, she has shown a flair, not only for putting the right colors with the right gadgets, but also an ability to get the best possible results from those with whom she deals or works.

Recently she was commissioned to work on 41 townhouses for Pass Development Ltd.

"I'm responsible for practically everything that will go into those townhouses, after the gyproc is on," she explained.

That means regular visits to the development sites, assessing available floor spaces, checking room divisions, windows and doors and numerous other details.

In her office — a room in the family home near Dean Park in Saanich — swatches of material, samples of tile, lino, carpeting and other items take up much of the available space.

Finally an over-all plan emerges and she is ready, as she says, "to go shopping."

On top of all this Dee Koerts has the full responsibility of decorating and furnishing one of the townhouses for show purposes.

Here she will not only decide on colors and fixtures, she will also bring in the furniture and place it to the best advantage in the various rooms.

So far Dee has worked alone. However, she doesn't rule out the thought that "the time may come when I will need help, especially in the office."

She also speaks of that one room with its clutter of samples.

"Already we're planning a small annex near the house for my office, there's lots of space on the property."

They lived in Vancouver for awhile, then went to Calgary, with every intention of settling down there.

It didn't work.

"We missed the sea, small boats and the Gulf Islands," Dee says, "so we came back to the Pacific Coast and to the Saanich Peninsula.

Now Hank Koerts has a boat "big enough for fishing"; daughter Joanna has started school and Dee has her designing and drafting work.

She also has that motto. And, I would suggest that in adhering to it, she has developed what started as a hobby into an exciting and lucrative business.

Considering cutting off a too-short dress to make a useful over-blouse? Consider also turning that dress into a skirt. A semi-fitted dress without a waistline seam can be cut off above the obvious waistline. No waistband is needed; a strip of bias fabric stitched onto the top can be turned under and thin elastic pulled through the tunnel to make the skirt a comfortable fit. Then, you have a "new" skirt that would have cost more than an overblouse.

Practise before trying to dry a treasured bouquet in a microwave oven. Roses, mums, pansies, marigolds, daisies and asters dry best. Keep a record of what is the best drying time for each flower. Then, to freshen a used bouquet, cut off most of the stems and place the flowers in water in the refrigerator overnight. Once you dry flowers, keep them under glass or they will absorb moisture in the air and become limp.

Mushroom Cloud Has Silver Lining

KENNET SQUARE, Pa. — This little Pennsylvania community, together with its environs for 15 miles around, is known as the mushroom capital of the United States. We came here recently to explore mushroom consumption and the techniques of modern mushroom growing with Charles Ciarrocchi, president of the American Mushroom Institute. We joined him at lunch at the family-owned Brown Derby Restaurant in the nearby village of Toughkenamon.

Ciarrocchi is a vice president of Modern Mushroom Farms, Inc. With him was the president of the concern, Vincent Leo.

"The strides that have been made in the mushroom industry within the past two decades are staggering," said Ciarrocchi. "Twenty years ago, for example, my father worked on what is known as the green-thumb method. To grow mushrooms, he relied almost wholly on sight, smell and feel. Today, of course, we are thoroughly mechanized and air conditioned, although a lot of the work still has to be done by hand.

"Until air conditioning came along, the mushroom industry was seasonal. Everything depended on nature, and you could only harvest mushrooms from November to about May."

Under optimum conditions, Ciarrocchi said, a mushroom will remain fresh for about five days after they are purchased — provided, of course, that the produce manager of the grocery or supermarket has kept the product refrigerated.

The best way to keep mushrooms is to rinse and pat-dry them after purchase. Put them in a bowl and cover with a damp cloth until ready to use.

The two preferred ways of freezing them are as follows: Drop the mushrooms into boiling water for a second or two. Drain, put in plastic and freeze. Or simply rinse, strain, pat-dry, put them in plastic and freeze. When using frozen mushrooms, always cook them in the frozen state.

BONELESS CHICKEN BREASTS WITH MUSHROOMS AND CHEESE

1 4 boneless chicken breasts about one pound
Salt and freshly ground pepper
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup duxelles, see recipe
4 thin slices gruyere or Swiss cheese
1 tablespoon finely chopped shallots
¼ cup dry white wine
¾ cup heavy cream.

1. Preheat the oven to 400 degrees.

2. Place the chicken breasts skin side down on a flat surface and pound lightly with a flat mallet.

3. Sprinkle with salt and pepper on both sides.

4. Heat and butter in a skillet and add the chicken breasts skin side down. Cook until golden on one side and turn, about three minutes.

5. Cook about two minutes on the other side. Remove the breasts.

6. Arrange the breasts on baking dish, skin side up. Cover each with two tablespoons of duxelles. Cover each of these with a slice of cheese.

7. To the skillet in which the chicken was cooked add the shallots and wine, stirring to dissolve the brown particles that cling to the bottom of the skillet. Add the cream and cook over high heat about one minute.

8. Strain this over the chicken.

9. Place the dish in the oven and bake five minutes.

DUXELLES

½ pound fresh mushrooms
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons finely chopped shallots
Juice of half a lemon
Salt and freshly ground pepper

1. Finely chop the mushrooms and add them to a clean cloth. Bring the corners of the cloth together and squeeze to extract most of the liquid.

2. Heat two tablespoons butter and add the shallots.

3. Add the squeezed-out mushrooms and the lemon juice, salt and pepper and cook, stirring, until all the liquid evaporates. The mushrooms must not brown. This a duxelles.

Yield: About ½ cup.

Wine, Mushrooms Enhance Fish

FILETS de POISSON BERCY aux CHAMPIG NONS

(Serves Six)

12 ounces Mushrooms
4½ ounces butter plus 1 tablespoon
Pepper to taste
2½ pounds sole or flounder filets
2 ounces, finely minced green onions
4 ounces Holland House White Cooking Wine
1 piece buttered Parchment Paper
½ ounce Flour
8 ounces whipping cream
⅛ teaspoon Lemon juice
1 ounce, grated swiss Cheese

1. Toss mushrooms in 2 ounces of hot butter without browning, season with pepper and set aside.

2. Sprinkle half the onions in the bottom of a baking pan. Season filets with pepper and arrange. Sprinkle filets with the rest of the onions and dot with 1½ ounces of butter.

3. Spread mushrooms on top, and pour in Holland House White Cooking Wine to cover. Lay buttered parchment paper over fish and place in oven.

4. Bake for 8-12 minutes at 350°F.

5. Drain poaching liquid into sauce pan. Pre-heat broiler. Reduce liquid by half by boiling down.

6. Blend flour and 1 ounce of butter together and add to hot liquid. Add half of the cream, bring to boil, and then add to rest of cream.

Season with pepper and lemon juice.

7. Spoon sauce over fish. Sprinkle with cheese and dot with 1 tablespoon of butter. Broil to lightly brown.

Beans Washed Out? Here's a Rich Solution

Mary Moore

A reader wrote: "The baked beans I make have a washed-out look. My hubby likes the dark brown ones you can buy in cans. But of course I want to economize by making my own in my own treasured bean pot. Can you help?" The letter was signed by Penny W.

So we went to work and are grateful to Penny for asking, for the baked bean recipe which follows is dark and rich and good.

DARK BROWN BAKED BEANS

1 lb. dried white navy beans
2 medium onions, finely chopped
½ lb. bacon, chopped

Sauce:

2½ tsp. salt
1½ tsp. dry mustard
¼ tsp. pepper
¾ c. light brown sugar
5 tbsp. molasses
¾ c. catsup
1½ c. boiling water
hot water (see below)

Wash the beans and soak in cold water to cover 1" above beans, overnight, in large pot. Next day add a little more water to barely cover, if necessary, and simmer, covered until tender, about ¾ hour. Place half of the onion and bacon pieces in the bottom of bean pot or casserole with cover and pour half of the cooked beans in and whatever liquid is on them. Cover with remaining onions and bacon pieces. Pour over remaining beans and any remaining liquid.

To make Sauce, mix together in a bowl the salt, dry mustard, pepper, brown sugar, molasses and catsup. Gradually stir in boiling water to blend. Pour over beans and with a fork gently coax it to flow down through beans without breaking them up. If necessary, add just enough hot water to cover beans.

Put on lid and bake at 275 deg. Fahr. for six hours. After four hours of baking time check beans for moisture. If they appear to be a little dry (although they shouldn't) add a bit more water. Keep checking them for moistness every half hour from now on.

FREE FOR THE ASKING

A large percentage of Canada's population is overweight. If you belong to this group, you will want to shed some poundage not only to look better, but also to feel better. Excess weight ruins your looks, undermines your self-confidence and reduces your efficiency. Also, your doctor knows that overweight people are more susceptible to many diseases and show less resistance to infections.

The 10-page folder How To Eat Well and Grow Slim warns you not to go on a crash diet. Instead see your doctor and let him determine how much weight you should lose and how fast you should lose it.

The folder explains how you can lose weight safely and offers nutritious sample menus for 1,200, 1,400, 1,600 and 1,800 calories-a-day diets. Your doctor will tell you which one is right for you. However, don't expect miracles. Healthy dieting means a small but steady weight loss.

The folder also offers some low-calorie cooking hints. For instance, make puddings with skim milk. If you buy unsliced bread, cut the slices extra thin. Cut hamburger rolls in three and enjoy them all the more. Four ounces of boneless raw meat will yield about three ounces of cooked meat.

In addition, you will find a long list of vegetables which dieters can use freely, provided they are served unbuttered or with a low-calorie dressing.

GET MORE IRON IN DEEP GREEN

QUESTION:
I have been told that the deeper the color of a vegetable, the higher its iron content. Does this mean that beets are a good source of iron?

ANSWER:
The deepness of color in regard to iron content refers to green vegetables. Dark green vegetables such as spinach, broccoli and asparagus provide more iron than lighter varieties such as cabbage, celery and iceberg lettuce. Beets, themselves, provide very little iron, while beet greens are a good source. One-half cup of cooked beets contains 0.4 grams of iron while a half cup of cooked beet greens contain 1.4 grams of iron.

QUESTION:
Is it advisable to discard the water in which soybeans have been soaked and cook them in fresh water. I have heard the soaking water contains an enzyme that will interfere with the body's ability to use the protein in the soybeans.

ANSWER:
On the contrary, you should use the soaking water to cook the soybeans. Soybeans are a good source of the Vitamin B complex, iron and calcium, and by using the soaking water you will preserve the percentage of vitamins and minerals that have dissolved.

Soybeans do contain a substance which inhibits the action of the enzyme, trypsen. This enzyme is essential for the utilization of protein. However once the soybeans are cooked, and this would also apply to boiling the soaking water, the enzyme inhibitor is destroyed.

QUESTION:
My friend claims that lecithin is a valuable remedy for many diseases such as heart disease, dry skin, and nervous disorders. Is there any truth to this statement?

ANSWER:
Lecithin is a phospholiped which contains choline, a member of the Vitamin B complex. It is found in egg yolks, soybeans, meats especially liver and in whole grains. Phospholipeds are substances which help transport fats in the blood stream. Despite claims from health food enthusiasts, there is no proof that lecithin can reduce elevated blood cholesterol associated with heart disease. Large doses of lecithin have not been proven to have any curative effect for any disease.

Hanging Alone

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with a married man for three years. I love him very much and I know he loves me.

Two weeks ago his wife found out about us and started raising a lot of Cain. That's when I told him to make a choice. Either move out of his home and in with me, or forget about me altogether.

He decided to stay with his family because "fewer people would be hurt." So I'm the only one who got hurt!

He told me that one day we will be married, so I shouldn't give up on him.

I feel like I got a bum deal after loving him and him alone for three years. I never looked at another man and I had plenty of chances. I wish I could tell him to get lost, but I still love him and can't bear the idea of giving him up.

My friends say, "If you love him — hang in there." Should I? — Hurting

DEAR HURTING: If you "hang in there," you will be hanging alone. A man who has cheated on his wife for three years is no prize, so even though you "love" him, he's poison. Be wise and cut him off as you would a dead limb. It won't be painless, but it will hurt less in the long run. And remember, HE made the choice, you didn't.

DEAR ABBY: I have three healthy, wonderful daughters, ages seven, five and three, and they are all beautiful in my eyes. However, the eldest is an exceptionally attractive child with a head full of golden curls, enormous brown eyes and long dark lashes. I know she's pretty, and so does she, and so do her sisters, who happen to be very plain.

My problem, Abby, is the well-meaning idiot who stops, me in the supermarket when I am with all three and says, "My, what a GORGEOUS child! She should be in the movies!" Or, "Wow, what a hartbreaker that blonde will be when she grows up!" (She is seven, and she's already asking me when she is going to start breaking hearts!)

Please comment about people who fuss over one child in the presence of brothers and sisters. It makes it so hard on the others.

Any suggestions on how to handle these idiots? I'm sure other mothers have to deal with it, too. — Midwest Mom

DEAR MOM: There is no hlep for the idiot. You can only try to shut him up by signaling with your face or hand — or your foot, if necessary. But I'll print this in the hope that well-meaning but thoughtless strangers who are overwhelmed by the beauty of a child will think twice before they speak.

DON'T PUT BABY ON SOLIDS EARLY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Introducing solid foods into your baby's diet too early may upset the important balance he is already getting in breast milk, according to a Vancouver nutritionist.

Susan Ross, co-ordinator of the Vancouver perinatal health project said that because the balance of carbohydrate, protein and fat in breast milk is optimal for the proper physical development of an infant, introducing solids can encourage overfeeding which experts feel is related to obesity in later life.

"It's important to remember that malnutrition doesn't happen overnight," she said, "and if a baby's appetite is down for a day, it's not the end of the world. People tend to over-react."

Ms. Ross said the amount of food a baby takes in may look alarmingly small when you're used to adult portions.

"It helps if you can picture the size of a baby's stomach," she said. "At birth the stomach capacity is only one to three ounces, at one month, three to five ounces and at one year, seven to 12 ounces — that's not very much."

"An infant generally is a good judge of how much it needs, but you could easily influence that and in your anxiety get the baby to eat more, in which case the infant can become accustomed to feeling fuller."

Ms. Ross said breast-feeding is being promoted as the first choice for infant feeding these days because breast milk contains a number of factors which help protect the infant against infection.

Also, it is believed, she said, that breast milk may reduce allergies in allergy-sensitive infants because it avoids early exposure to foreign milk proteins.

Ms. Ross said that research indicates waiting to introduce solid foods until the infant is three to six months old.

Students Cook Up Variety

Teachers pay 95 cents for lunch, students 75 cents and anything the cooking students make is available to all the students in the school.

Bernie Hinks, head cooking teacher at Harwood, said in an interview that the menus have variety and scope.

"We stress nutrition and seasonal food here, the only time the kids can buy frenchfries is on Friday," he said. "Sometimes we have special dishes because the students have to learn how to make everything — we recently made rock cornish hens stuffed with wild rice."

The cooking students try several elective shop courses during Grade 9 and there are usually 18 youngsters taking first-year cooking every six weeks — the length of each vocational elective.

Senior students in Grades 11 and 12 specialize in courses such as short-order cooking, quantity cooking, waitressing or merchandising. The bakery class makes one wedding cake a month and will do special orders.

Hinks runs an old-fashioned, European-style kitchen — but with lots of professional mixers and other equipment to help get the work done.

He said the hardest problem they face in the cooking program is one of attitude. There is a prejudice against vocational schools and people call Harwood names such as Coconut College, he added.

Hinks, who has been at Harwood for seven years, is optimistic about his proteges' chances in the job market when they graduate.

"While they start at a lower pay (minimum wage) during their apprenticeship than their friends who go into factories, they'll end up making far more," he said. "The sky's the limit for a good cook."

"They can make from $12,000 a year to begin as a cook and can go up to $30,000 to $40,000 as a top chef."

The Bridge Expert

It is an established convention that when your partner opens a king against a suit contract, and you play your queen on his king, your play demands that he underlead his ace at trick two. Hence, it should be appreciated that when you give this most drastic signal, you will have the queen and jack in your possession.

Here is an example of this defensive convention in action.

North deals.

|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ◇ | Pass | 1 ♠ | Pass |
| 2 ♣ | Pass | 4 ♠ | Pass |

Opening lead: King of ♡.

On West's lead of the heart king, East put up the queen. To trick two West led the deuce of hearts, East's jack winning. To trick three East cashed the club ace. To trick four, East played his nine of hearts, South followed with the ten, West covered with the ace, and dummy trumped. Dummy's remaining trump was now led, and declarer put up his queen when East played the three. The finesse won, but eventually declarer had to concede a trick to East's king of trumps.

East planned the defense beautifully. He perceived that if declarer were able to lead trumps twice from dummy, he would be able to take two successful finesses against East's king. But if dummy were forced to expend one of its two trumps by ruffing, then declarer would be able to finesse only once against East's king. East made sure of first cashing the defender's three tricks, and then leading a third heart, forcing dummy to ruff.

If East had played the nine (instead of the queen) on West's opening lead of the heart king, West would probably have cashed the heart ace at trick two. And if he then led a diamond (rather than a club), declarer would have been able to reach dummy twice (via the diamond suit) to take two successful finesses against East's trump king. Actually, declarer would then have made 11 tricks, since he would have later discarded his heart ten and nine of clubs on dummy's fourth and fifth diamonds. But East's play of the heart queen on the opening lead doomed declarer to defeat.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, March 24
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis on contracts, obligations, responsibilities, payoffs, rewards, intensified relationships, investments. Full Moon highlights partnerships, public responses and your marital status. Capricorn, Cancer figure in your personal scenario.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Finish task, round out project, form policy, let go of losing proposition. Accent on co-workers, health, employment picture, willingness to let go of "petty pictures" and to open mind to full, three-dimensional possibilities.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Create, write, act, give of yourself imprint style and personality. Now is the time for originality, breaking new ground, being you and being aware, proud and confident. Leo Aquarius person figure in scenario.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Full Moon position coincides now with security, solid base, being rid of pretense, understanding difference between illusion and actuality. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. You are accorded honor by one you thought indifferent to your charm, talent.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You receive answer to written inquiry. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius could play key roles. Relative with "itch" to travel seeks your counsel. Maintain your own balance and humor — don't take too seriously complaints dealing with "lack of gratitude."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Full Moon spotlight on finances, ability to work with material at hand. Be specific, direct, frank — Say what you mean, mean what you say. Aquarius, Scorpio, Taurus individuals are part of scenario. You get chance to demonstrate pet theory.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Personality is emphasized — people are more aware of you and your views. Know it and prepare accordingly. Get notes in order. Have story in sequence, beginning and middle and end. Gemini, Virgo persons figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Backstage area is given benefit of light. Family member confides, seeks approval rather than counsel. Visit to hospital or home indicated. Harmony prevails once concession is made. Don't try to change people!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on romantic haze. Means instincts might not lead you along most constructive path. You're not seeing too clearly. Wait, observe, listen and take a deep breath! Pisces, Virgo individuals could be part of your personal scenario.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent on advancement, willingness to sacrifice to attain a goal. You're given more authority; chances for financial success are enhanced. Another Capricorn — and a Cancer — figure in scenario. Be receptive to offer from older person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on long distance, potential, reading, advertising, travel. You gain more experience; base of operations is broadened. You let go of security blanket. Full Moon position coincides with spanning wide areas. Communication bolsters ego, optimism.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Flashes of insight gained — you get beneath surface and could come up with true story. Accent on possessions, valuables, budget as related to one who is close including partner or mate. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. In matters of speculation, stick with number 1.

IF MARCH 24 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have unusual voice, appreciation for the arts; you love luxury, intrigue and you are considered very attractive by members of the opposite sex. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. This is to be a year of preparation, making contacts, planting seeds, learning whether a relationship can "work." January, September and October should be three months you remember when the curtain rings down on 1978.

Astrological Forecast for Saturday, March 25
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Go slow, lie low, let nature take its course. Partnership and legalities command attention. If married, mate urges you to be finished with losing proposition. If single, you test a relationship. Married or single, this is a time when truth appears — and it is likely to be bittersweet.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You could literally get new lease on life. Vitality returns. You are more in control of your own destiny. Leo, Aquarius figue in scenario. You are able to get to heart of matters. New project works in your favor. Employment picuture is bright as significant change occurs.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on vigor, relationships that are opposite of lukewarm. Children, speculation fill in bold colors. Stick with number 11. Rise above petty fears, details, jealousies. You're going places — and the sky could be the limit. Don't reject love.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your sense of what is practical, real and secure will surface. You'll be celebrated for choice made in past. What had been a "wet-rag" reception will be transformed into glamor, applause. Gemnini, Sagittarius persons figure in important ways — and so does publication, travel.

LEO (July 23- Aug. 22): Study Cancer message. Short trip, ideas relatives, visits dominate. You are consulted on matter related to details, fine points, red tape. You can aid yourself by giving, teaching, showing where obvious opening exists. Act acordingly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Changes mean profit for you. Know it and go with tide. Open lines of communication. Get promises in writing. Be positive concerning ideas. Means be sure your own concepts are put into motion, not imitations, mild attempts to appease. You'll understand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Light replaces gloom; new hope and money on horizon. Cycle is high; take initiative. Make new starts in new directions. Wear bright colors. Make personal appearances. Trust intuitive itellect. You can be at right place at right time. Yes, domestic adjustment is necessary.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): What occurs is subtle, behind the scenes, capturing the essence, detecting subtle nuances as contrasted to the heavy blow of the obvious. Pisces, Virgo persons figure in scenario — and so does the number 7. Waiting game is winning one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Emphasis on desire, fulfillment of promises, friendship, romance, involvement. Nothing is apt to be halfway — it is all or nothing. Capricorn, Cancer figure prominently. You have valid oppourtunity to transform apparent loss into solid profit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Emphasize position, prestige, pride. Refuse to be intimidated by those who are hanging on and whistling in the dark. You'll get better promotion, advertising, display and distribution. Aries, Libra figure in scenario.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Fresh start, new lease on life indicated — stress originality, daring, independence. Another Aquarian — and a Leo — figure in scenario. In matters of speculation, stick with number 1. Your views gain wide distribution, serious attention. You gain through written word.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Intuition is active; you know without knowing the rules. Flash of inspiration is featured. You learn, teach, gather information and prove a major point. You are sought out by one who is "going places." Cancer, Aquarius individuals figure prominently.

IF MARCH 25 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a perfectionist, introspective, psychic, capable of capturing pulse of public. You are nobody's fool but you often fall victim to self-deception. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. September proves your most significant month of 1978, a productive year which sees you in love and business, handling more responsibility and gaining wider recognition.

Weighty Problem in Reverse

It may come as a surprise to many, but there are tens of thousands of North Americans who are actually trying to gain weight. Granted, there are many millions more who have the opposite problem, and are constantly struggling to lose unwanted pounds.

But for those who picture themselves as being too thin, the struggle to change their body image is just as desperate as it is for their overweight counterparts.

First, we should emphasize that for most thin people, their weight is not a health problem, even though many of them see a doctor or nutritionist with the idea that if they could gain a few pounds, they might "feel better" or have more energy.

But there is no scientific basis for this belief; in fact, a number of studies have found that thin people tend to live longer and have fewer problems with degenerative diseases, such as heart disorders and diabetes, than people who are overweight.

Instead, the major motive for wanting to gain weight is a psychological one. Let's look at the typical person who thinks of himself as being too thin. In our experience, most males who fall into this category are between 17 and 25 years old. They think their slender bodies, sticklike arms, and long, spindly legs make them look frail and young.

They generally work hard at body building and often force themselves to eat rich desserts and other foods they don't need or want. Still, they fail to transform themselves from "98-pound weaklings" into their ideal — the 150-pound muscle man.

The girls are usually the Twiggie type, and they aspire to the plumper Sophia Loren look. They, too, waste time, money and emotional energy on various schemes that promise added inches to their bustlines and fuller curves to their derrieres and legs.

They also force themselves to eat what they consider gargantuan meals. However, when their caloric intake is actually measured, we usually find that it is considerably below the overweight person's. The fact is that many lightweights are light eaters, and many are also physically active.

In addition, there seems to be a genetic determination of thinness. In some of our own studies, we have found that thin people seem to have fewer adipose cells — the cells that accumulate and store fat — than normal and overweight individuals. People with limited fat cells or depots find it very difficult to overeat. When they have had enough, it is almost impossible for them to eat a bite more.

Most truly thin people belong to the physical type called ectomorphs — people with thin, elongated skeletons, narrow hands and feet, and long fingers and toes. True ectomorphs are usually slender all their lives.

But one of our former colleagues, C. C. Seltzer of the Nutrition Department at the Harvard School of Public Health, found that many people who look like ectomorphs when they are young are, in reality, "late-blooming endomorphs." These late bloomers begin to gain weight in early middle age and are often quite overweight by the time they reach their late 40s and 50s.

Still, none of this solves the problem of a young person who desperately wants to gain 15 or 20 pounds. Our best advice to these people is to first have a thorough physical checkup to make sure that their thinness is not caused by a chronic disease such as diabetes, tuberculosis or anemia.

Once their good health is confirmed, the next step should be to stay as physically fit as possible. Even a very thin person will look stronger and healthier if he or she is in the peak of physical fitness. Remember, too, that posture is important; standing tall and straight makes everyone look better.

Finally, the thin person should be careful to wear clothes that will accent his best points. A very thin man looks ridiculous in heavily padded jackets, but a well-cut blazer or sports jacket works wonders. And most of today's womens fashions are tailor-made for the tall, thin girl. Professional models, both male and female, have learned to make the most of their reedlike figures, and many of their techniques can be adopted by thin people.

NO SMOKING CAN BE A DRAG

TORONTO (CP) — Many people who try to quit smoking say it is hard to admit that smoking is a genuine addiction.

The methods for quitting range from acupuncture and hypnosis to group therapy, but even those who succeed in becoming non-smokers say they still feel the urge to light up once in a while.

Smoker Sylvia Kerenyi, a 46-year-old secretary in a preventive medicine unit, says she knows the dangers of smoking but is not scared enough to quit, although she is surrounded with friends who nag her to do so.

"I think the worst thing about it is that your self-respect is down when you can't beat something that looks so simple on the surface," she said in an interview.

"You have to learn that you can't have a cigarette. It's like Alcoholics Anonymous — you learn you can't stop at one."

Man Alive host at Nanaimo workshop

Roy Bonisteel, host of the popular CBC program Man Alive, will be in Nanaimo March 31 and April 1 as the guest of Malaspina College and the Nanaimo International Development Education Association.

He will speak on Global Destiny— Celebration or Catastrophe? in the Credit Union Hall at 8 p.m. Friday, March 31 and will attend workshops on the same subject at the college on Saturday, April 1 between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Tickets for his Friday evening address are $2 and $1 (students and seniors) while the door fee for Saturday's program, which will also cover the cost of lunch, will be $3 and $1.50 (students and seniors).

Bonisteel and his wife Donna live with their two children on a farm in the Bay Quinte area of Ontario. He is in steady demand across the country as a public speaker and conducts numerous communications workshops, working with a variety of people—teachers, hospital personnel, clergy and military groups.

He began his career working on a newspaper in Trenton, Ont., in 1949, later becoming a broadcaster.

In the 1960s he produced Checkpoint and Dateline, radio programs widely distributed in Canada. In 1965 he became regional director of broadcasting for the United Church in B.C. In this position he worked with radio and TV stations throughout the province.

In 1967 the Anglican, Roman Catholic and United Churches named him national radio co-ordinator, a position he held until 1970. He has hosted Man Alive for 11 years.

Perspectives

By Rev. J. A. Davidson

The Easter story, the story of God's raising of Jesus Christ from the tomb, is a problem for many people, even for some who consider themselves to be Christians. They may be able to accept it as a rather lovely little fable which somehow has got attached to the springtime theme with its flowers and bunnies and pretty new hats for the ladies. But to take it seriously, to tell the world that Jesus Christ was raised from the dead, to proclaim the Resurrection as a fact—well, that, in the minds of many people, is quite preposterous.

St. Paul made it unambiguously clear to his fellow Christians that the Easter Gospel, the proclamation of the Resurrection, is the centre and dynamic of their faith. "If Christ was not raised," he wrote in his first Corinthian letter, "then our gospel is null and void, and so is our faith." (15: 14 New English Bible)

For Paul this was a matter of intense conviction, conviction coming out of experience, out of a special awareness. And through the centuries this has been the central thrust of Christian faith — awareness of Jesus Christ as the living Lord.

H. G. Wells, speaking the modern mind as he so often did, said this about the Easter story: "When I think of the Resurrection I am always reminded of the happy endings that editors and actor-managers are accustomed to impose on essentially tragic plays and novels." That seems to assume that the Easter record is an unwarranted appendix to the Gospel narrative, a device to pull the string of the crucifixion and convince people that a tragedy is in reality a triumph.

But Wells got the matter back-to-front: he misunderstood how the Gospels and the other books of the New Testament came to be written. The Easter story was not something added simply to make the Gospels more pleasant and palatable. All the books of the New Testament were written by men who had an awareness of the living Christ and who found in that experience the primary motivation for their writing. The whole of the New Testament was written in the glow of the Resurrection-experience: it cannot be accounted for in any other way.

We Christians are sometimes led astray by worrying about whether or not the Resurrection was matter-of-factly physical, or merely spiritual, or what not. I wonder if that kind of concern is very much to the point: it pertains merely to the mechanics of the Resurrection, and that surely is something about which Christians can have open minds. The late T. W. Manson, one of the most influential New Testament scholars of our time and a man with a touch of scepticism on his mind, after almost a lifetime of considering the problem of the Resurrection came to this conclusion: "How it happened, I cannot tell: that it happened, I cannot doubt."

The earliest Christians believed that Jesus Christ lived on as Lord of their lives, not because they could not find his dead body, but because in their worship and life they were encountered by him as their living Lord. And through the centuries the Easter experience, awareness of the living Christ, has been central in the faith of Christians.

Annual sunrise service at city square

For the 35th consecutive year the annual Victoria community sunrise service will be held on Easter Sunday morning at 7:30 a.m. in Centennial Square. It will be under the auspices of Park Services Interdenominational.

For years the service was held in Beacon Hill Park near the entrance at Douglas and Michigan Streets but in 1967, in recognition of Canada's centennial, the service was switched to Centennial Square.

The Easter message will be delivered by Rev. Ted Follows of the Church of the Way. He will be supported by Rev. Charles McKnight of Gosworth Community Church. Master of ceremonies will be Rev. Percy E. Wills of the Shantymen's Christian Association.

The program will be broadcast over a public address system.

Because the service is intended for the whole community everyone is invited.

The Johnny Cash film The Gospel Road, will be screened at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at Elk Lake Baptist Church, 5363 Pat Bay Highway. Everybody welcome.

●

Oak Bay United Church will sponsor the cantata Olivet to Calgary with Jim Oakman, tenor, and John Bray, baritone, at the 11 a.m. service on Good Friday, which will be followed by a sacrificial lunch.

The church also is holding an Easter morning sunrise service at 6:30 a.m. at Cattle Point.

Breakfast will be served at the church following the service.

Other Easter services on Sunday will be in the church at 9:15 a.m. and 11 a.m.

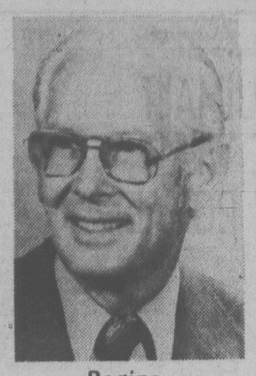
●

A choir presentation of the Passion cantata Christus by Felix Mendelssohn will be presented at the 11 a.m. Good Friday service at First United Church, Quadra at Balmoral.

The Easter morning service will start at 11 a.m. Sunday.

●

Participants at the 10 a.m. Easter Sunday service at St. Saviour's church in Vic West will decorate a very rough wooden cross with small buquets of flowers until it becomes a focal point. The cross will be put on display at Matson Lodge and bouquets of daffodils will be distributed to patients at the lodge by members of St. Saviour's youth groups.



Ragins

Belmont Avenue United Church, 2023 Belmont Ave., will hold a Good Friday service at 11 a.m. The choir under the direction of Bert Storar, with organist Mrs. Margaret Wilmshurst, will sing the spiritual Were You There (arr. Eric Ball). On Easter Sunday at 11 a.m. the choir will sing King All Glorious by George M. Vail and two selections from The Messiah: And The Glory and Hallelujah Chorus.

●

A dramatic choral service will be held in the sanctuary of Metropolitan United Church on Good Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Based on the events of Passion Week, the presentation involves readings, symbols and choral numbers.

As the crucifixation approaches, lights representing significant events are extinguished until darkness comes as it did on that first Good Friday. The service is rich in symbolism sustained by a fine musical presentation by the sanctuary choir.

Next Thursday, 16 young people from the Esquimalt Church of the Nazarene will leave Victoria for a 12-day visit to Winnipeg and Montreal under the sponsorship of Open House Canada, a federally funded student exchange program.

The Victoria young people, aged 14-22, have been twinned with a group from First Church of the Nazarene in Montreal. The Montreal group will visit Victoria April 14-22.

●

Rev. Louis Ragins, a missionary to Nicaragua and Costa Rica, is on furlough holding services in Nazarene churches. He will speak at two local Churches of the Nazarene. He has had duty at San Jorge, Granada and Managua in Nicaragua, where he most recently served as mission director.

He served as rector at the Central American Nazarene Seminary in San Jose, Costa Rica during 1977.

Missionary services will include the spoken message and slides. Ragins has a real interest in training Christian youth for the ministry.

Ragins was educated at the University of Arizona at Tucson and at Pasadena College. He was a pastor in Idaho before his appointment.

Ragins will speak at two missionary rallies in Victoria: Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Esquimalt Church of the Nazarene (886 Craigflower) and Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Victori First Church of the Nazarene (4277 Quadra).

CHURCH CHRONICLES

Council of churches report

Theology school hits new enrolment high

The Lay School of Theology, operated by the Victoria Council of Churches, had its highest enrolment in the school's history during the last year, says the council's president, Rev. Alfred Johnson, in his annual report.

A number of persons had completed the full three-year program and the council was grateful for the leadership provided by Canon Bailey.

A Lay Hospital Visitor's Course and a Clergy Pastoral Care Course were offered through the Hospital Chaplaincy Committee and provided excellent training for those in the healing ministry, the report says.

The council of churches had supported the B.C. Council for the Family and was particularly involved in the promotion of Family Month last May. The church council also had given a "listening ear" to the Committee for Orthomolecular Medicine. Contacts had been made with doctors and government leaders on the subject of megavitamin therapy. Clergy volunteers had been secured for the RCMP/Counsellor project, a program, which, though still in its infancy, could be of "real value in resolving critical family problems."

Seminars on the problems of divorce and violence in the media were held at the Y and a number of people were involved in a 10-week series of lectures directed toward the single parent. Support and publicity were given to the Vancouver Island Housing Association in its need for funds to furnish Nigel House.

The council's social action committee chairman was "vitally involved" in efforts to retain funding for the Community Action Group.

Presentations had been made in council meetings by persons in the corrections field. The volunteers program for probabtion sponsors was supported and publicized and the church council now was co-operating with the Justice Council in trying to bring about improvement in the prison system.

A task force had been set up to deal with the legislation and practice of the Lord's Day Act and the education committee was involved in Bible reading and prayer in the public school system.

Concern had been expressed by the council about pornography in society and the council was currently dealing with the proposed institution of a gambling casino in Victoria.

The Group Homes Society continued to provide facilities for retarded and emotionally disturbed children, the president's report said.

Happy Naw Ruz

For Baha'is of the world the New Year begins on the first day of spring, March 21, and, as a holy day, it was celebrated in Victoria this year by about 190 faithful and guests at the Empress hotel. The program included prayers read in Persian, French, Chinese, Dutch, German, Arabic and English. An address on the significance of Naw Ruz (New Year) was followed by songs, dinner and dancing. The Baha'i New Year follows a 19-day period of fasting (from sunrise to sunset), meditation and prayer.

God inside you Easter message

Oral Roberts' message for his hour-long Easter Special scheduled for Wednesday at 7 p.m. on CHEK-TV channel 6 is "transferred power."

"He who spins the universe, who scooped out the bed for the ocean. . .and sculpted the mountains, speaks inside you in a still, small voice. And if we, in the midst of the confusion and loud noises of the world, settle down and let the inner voice of God. . .that still, small voice. . .speak inside us, then we can understand the power of God is transferable and never diminishable. We can have this great power of God in our lives." This is his Easter message.

This is the thirty-seventh in the series of quarterly specials the evangelist has produced for prime-time TV. His guest is Vikki Carr, singer and recording artist, who visited the evangelist's university in Tulsa, Oklahoma, for the first time when she taped the show in late January. Miss Carr, known for her work in establishing scholarship funds for young Mexican-Americans, said she was especially pleased to have an opportunity to see the campus first-hand.

Miss Carr has awarded 80 scholarships to date and says of her work, "I feel whatever you give, with love especially, is always going to come back to you. My first recipient went to Harvard Law School in '70, graduated, passed the bar, and now is with a big law firm in Los Angeles. Then he came back to help me on the scholarship board," she says.

Tips on Azaleas, Rhodos

Success with rhododendrons and azaleas depends on how they are planted, how the soil is prepared, watering and fertilizing at the correct time, and their placement in relation to the hours of sunlight.

More losses are due to planting too deeply and to lack of moisture holding humus at their roots than from any other cause.

Nearly all rhodos need eight hours of sunlight to ripen their tips for flower bud formation the following year, with lightly filtered shade during the hottest part of the day.

Rhodos with small leaves and the Azalea group, will take a lot more summer sun than those with very large leaves or hairy leaves. Reflected heat from white, or light colored, buildings or fences can cause more burning on broadleaved shrubs than direct sunshine.

The leaves that are in strong sunlight may not be as attractive as those grown in shade, but flowers will be more abundant.

In gardens further south more shade must be given, but here we need to adjust to a moderate coastal climate, at the same time remembering that ample watering must be given to ensure continuous dampness and coolness at the roots from May to September, our period of low summer rainfall.

When putting in newly purchased plants, or moving from one part of the garden to another, a deep hole is not needed, so make it shallow and wide. Only in heavy clay should the hole be deeply dug and the lower portion mixed with rough compost to improve drainage.

About one half of the top soil removed from the hole should be well mixed with an equal quantity of sieved compost, leaf mould, and thoroughly moistened peat moss. After placing the rootball in a shallow depression, fill in with the same mixture.

Always moisten the rootball itself thoroughly before planting, and give deep soakings of water throughout the summer.

Hybrid rhododendrons and azaleas prefer company of their own kind. Three or four planted together in one bed will thrive better than isolated specimens.

Unless growing under ideal conditions, rhodos and azaleas will need feeding every year. The gardener must decide whether the growth made the previous season is correct for the variety, or whether a light feeding will make an improvement.

Too much fertilizer will cause unnecessary growth and foliage production and lower flower bud formation. Use only the special acid-type rhodo-azalea fertilizer at the rate given below.

For the first three years in the garden young plants will benefit from three small feedings in spring at the rate of one teaspoonful to a plant spread over the entire root area.

Established plants can receive one small handful for each foot of height, again evenly spread over the root area.

On young plants the first feeding is given in mid-March, second in mid-April, and final feeding in mid-May. On established plants in mid-April. Never feed later in the season as all growth must become firm and mature before fall.

When applying fertilizer, water the soil thoroughly, spread the fertilizer over the root area, and dampen with water. Water again the following day to carry the fertilizer solution to root level.

Never rake in the fertilizer because damage will result to the roots which are just below the surface. After fertilizing, spread a one-inch mulch of leaf mould,, or well wetted peat moss, over the root area to prevent damage to the roots from summer heat on the soil.

Weeding in rhodo bed must be done by hand. Digging or deep cultivation results in damaged roots and dying plants.

309 IN MEMORIAM

FRATER—In loving memory of our beloved son and brother, Jim, who died March 23, 1973.
You are always in our hearts, and thoughts
—Sadly missed by Mom, Dad, Leslie, Janis and Marlorie.

LAIK—In loving memory of Rick who passed away March 25, 1977.
This month comes with deep regret
It brings back the day we can't forget.
In our hearts you will always stay
—Sadly missed by his parents, sisters, relatives and friends.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.

Provincial Exports Increase 18 Per Cent

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Employers' Council of British Columbia reported Wednesday that the value of produced or processed goods exported from the province in 1977 increased by 18.5 per cent over 1976.

The national increase in exports, the council said, was 16.2 per cent.

The council's report for the fourth quarter of 1977 shows the value of exports at $1.46 billion, bringing the total for 1977 to $5.87 billion compared with a 1976 total of almost $4.96 billion.

Pulp, however, continues to be the depressed area of the forest industry as the value of exports declined 14.2 per cent and volume was down 13 per cent in 1977, the report says.

BARRELS FORCE EVACUATION

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A section of the city's downtown area was evacuated and traffic rerouted for two hours Wednesday when six barrels of an irritating chemical fell off a truck at Twelfth and Columbia and split open.

Police said about 30 barrels of the chemical acetic anhydride were being taken to Matsqui in a rented truck when the accident occurred at 11 a.m.

Picture Not Tough Enough

WASHINGTON — The U.S. state department has rejected a portrait of former state secretary Henry Kissinger on grounds that it is not dynamic enough. The painting was done by the famed Gardner Cox of Boston. He said he was told Kissinger and his wife didn't like the portrait which was to have hung in the department's elegant seventh-floor reception rooms. "It was beautifully painted, but did not seem to capture the dynamism of Dr. Kissinger," said Clement Conger, the department's curator of arts and furnishings.

LONDON — Capt. Mark Phillips, the Queen's son-in-law, ends his army career today to become a country squire. Capt. Phillips, the 29-year-old husband of Princess Anne, announced last December his intention to leave the army to farm Gatcombe Park, a 12,000 acre estate in Gloucestershire. A graduate of Sandhurst, the British army's officer training college, Capt. Phillips was commissioned in 1969 and served in the Queen's Dragoon Guards in West Germany. His marriage to Princess Anne in November, 1973, denied him active service in troublespots such as Northern Ireland which would have provided him with the command experience needed for senior rank. His last posting was to the ministry of defence army training directorate in London.

SPOKANE — Mrs. John Bruce Dodd, the woman who originated the idea of honoring fathers with their own day each year, died today in a nursing home. She was 96. Mrs. Dodd, often referred to as "the mother of Father's Day," suggested the establishment of Father's Day in 1910, choosing her father's birthday, June 5, for the observance. From that first observance here 68 years ago, Father's Day grew into a national day recognizing fathers everywhere: A native of Jenny Lind, Ark., Mrs. Dodd, at 16, was the oldest of six children when her mother died, leaving her father with the responsiblity for raising the family. In later years, Mrs. Dodd said it was the courage and selflessness of her pioneering father, Henry Jackson Smart, which inspired her to found Father's Day.

ATLANTA — Larry Flynt will not be retried in Gwinnett County on the obscenity charges that were in force when he was shot, officials said Wednesday. Flynt was on trial for selling obscene materials — an issue of his Hustler magazine — when he and lawyer Gene Reeves were shot March 6 on their way to the Lawrenceville courtroom. Superior Court Judge Hughel Harrison declared a mistrial shortly after the shooting, and county solicitor Gary Davis said Wednesday that the charges would not be brought again.

MR. SPOCK RETURNS

NEW YORK — Trekkies rejoice! Mr. Spock is coming back — and so is the whole Star Trek crew — for a big-screen resurrection. At least that's the word from Rona Barrett.

She told ABC-TV's Good Morning, America Wednesday that Paramount Pictures finally has decided to turn the old TV show into a major motion picture — and that Leonard Nimoy, who first refused, has been signed to recreate the pointy-eared Mr. Spock.

Tragedy, But Show Goes On

SAN JUAN — Everything was there. The frantic confusion of tumbling acrobats. Sadfaced clowns. Animal acts. Trapeze artists. Everything but the greatest aerialist of all time, Karl Wallenda.

Thousands bowed their heads in silence for Wallenda, who had plunged to his death less than six hours earlier Wednesday during a promotional appearance for the Pan American Circus here. It was a natural end to the 73-year-old Wallenda's tragedy-filled life and the close of an acrobatic era.

"It was the way he wanted to go — doing what he loved most," said a circus official who asked not to be named.

"Our life is show business," the 58-year big top veteran and founder of the Great Wallendas had said in 1972 after the fourth member of his family perished in a high-wire accident.

"Without show business we don't survive, and we have to exist."

"This afternoon all that is missing is the physical presence of Karl Wallenda," the master-of-ceremonies said softly into his microphone. The rest of the Great Wallendas troupe — granddaughter Rietta, 17, and two nephews — were there to carry on the legacy.

The troupe refused to talk to reporters about Wallenda's death, although Rietta, who is planning to marry a member of a tumbling group, denied that she would be leaving the act.

POLICE VETERANS HELD IN ROBBERY

MONTREAL (CP) — Two veteran provincial police officers and three other men are being held in connection with Tuesday's $1-million robbery in St. Jovite, police said today.

Two suspects were still being sought.

One of the police officers arrested is a 25-year veteran of the Quebec provincial police while the other had been with the force for 16 years.

"All the money was recovered," said Lieut. Raymond Gerard.

The robbery occurred when four armed men burst into a roadside diner in St. Jovite, 100 kilometres north of here, and surprised three security guards who had stopped for a snack at a roadside diner and left the armored truck unguarded in the parking lot.

Lieut. Gerard said the two policemen had used their badges to pass the road blocks which had been set up around the St. Jovite area following the early-morning robbery.

"Everybody that goes through the road blocks must sign," he said. "When we checked later we suspected these two because they were not involved in the case but had been in the area."

Welfare Cash Went To Travel

Some of the cash from the human resources ministry's $110 million budget surplus went to promote tourism, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm revealed Wednesday.

The minister mentioned the transfer — he did not specify how much money was involved — when he was criticized by University of Victoria students fof not using the surplus to increase payments to welfare recipients and the handicapped or initiate new programs (also see story on page 21).

Vander Zalm said some of the surplus was divided among other ministries, including the travel ministry, which got a share to promotion tourism in B.C.

VIOLENCE ALSO OBSCENE

MPs Get Tough In Porn Report

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons justice committee recommended Wednesday that the Criminal Code definition of obscenity be amended to include not only undue exploitation of sex but also of crime, horror, cruelty, violence, "or the undue degradation of the human person."

The all-party committee's unanimous report was tabled in the Commons by chairman Mark McGuigan (L—Windsor-Walkerville) and may form the basis of changes in the law.

"It broadens the definition of obscenity to include not only sex but violence in movies, magazines and elsewhere," MacGuigan said in an interview. "It means that 'death race' games could be found to be obscene."

The proposed law would also make obscene any material that shows or describes children under 16 engaged in sexual or sexually-suggestive acts.

The committee also recommended that the "community standard" approach be reinforced through changes in the law that would allow an attorney-general to order a jury trial, whether the accused wanted one or not.

Also aimed at reinforcing the "community standard," to reflect regional or local feelings about what is or is not obscene would be another legal change making the testimony of so-called expert witnesses inadmissible.

Since the present law was enacted in 1959, courts have decided the community standard to be applied is on a country-wide, not regional or local basis. Expert testimony has played heavily in determining the standard although the committee said expert testimony is largely based on "hunches, impressions and subjective judgments."

The committee said real community standards are local in nature and should be determined by residents through jury trials.

The committee also recommended that:

—The maximum penalty for a first offence under the obscenity law be raised to five years in prison, and 10 years for subsequent offences. Judges could impose a fine as well, or simply fine a convicted person in lieu of imprisonment.

—Prosecutors or police seek orders of forfeiture in obscenity cases enabling them to seize and destroy offending material if the accused is unable to convince a judge it shouldn't be forfeited. The committee noted that it isn't necessary to charge a person in such cases.

—Section 165 of the Criminal Code be amended to provide for automatic forfeiture of such material on conviction. Currently, the material must often be returned after trial to the person who is convicted.

—Anyone procuring a child or profiting from the "avails

TWO-TIME PREVUE WINNER

Hard work has again paid off for Mrs. W. H. Christmas, the winner of $350 in the Times Prevue Puzzle contest.

In February she won a Prevue Puzzle prize of $300.

Mrs. Christmas, of 1326 Richardson, says she spends about three hours every weekend working through the puzzle and is delighted that the effort has paid off twice.

A Royal Bank employee at the Cook and Oxford branch, she loves crossword puzzles and has been entering the contest from the beginning.

Economy Hinges On Quebec - PM

Times News Services

NEW YORK — Prime Minister Trudeau told 2,000 U.S. corporate leaders and a Canadian television audience Wednesday that Canada's economic recovery hinges on a fast, fair solution to questions posed by Quebec separatism.

"There can be no question that our economic prospects are clouded by the current uncertainty over the future unity of our country," Trudeau said in a 45-minute speech to a black-tie crowd of businessmen described by one observer as Canada's "friends and creditors."

The speech, however, appeared to have little effect on money markets today.

The dollar traded within a narrow range all morning in what dealers described as quiet trading.

"There's been practically no reaction to the speech," said a senior trader for the Provincial Bank of Canada. "The market is just about dead."

Trudeau devoted only one-tenth of his 5,000-word address to the Quebec question — he spent the bulk of time dealing with economic issues at home and abroad — but it appeared to be the issue uppermost in the minds of the sell-out audience attending the Economic Club of New York dinner.

"'Separatism is still a worry to us," commented one industrialist as he left, recalling Quebec Premier Rene Levesque's words at a similar dinner here 14 months ago when the premier described Quebec independence as inevitable, "as natural and irreversible as growth itself."

SALMONELLA ON UPSWING

A noticeable increase in salmonella infection has occurred in Greater Victoria since the beginning of the year.

Of the 23 reported cases in the past three months, scattered throughout the capital region, the majority have involved children and adolescents.

Arneil said his department has questioned all the patients on their eating and drinking habits to ascertain whether there are any common sources of infection, including eating establishments.

But to date no such indication has surfaced.

"It's a bit of a detective game," he said. "The increase is curious, but it's certainly nothing to get alarmed about."

Arneil described salmonella as a "very ubiquitous" bacteria infection which affects all animals and birds, as well as humans.

It usually produces an acute bout of gastro-enteritis, some 12 to 48 hours after ingestion of the infected foodstuff, and the illness lasts a day or two.

But those who have had it can remain carriers of the infection for much longer periods, in some cases for several months.

Arneil said there are 360 different types of salmonella. But one specific type, called typhimurium (no connection with typhoid), has been most evident in Greater Victoria.

Prevention lies in good personal hygiene — washing hands after using the toilet — and efficient sanitary disposal of sewage, he added.

Motorists Under Arrest For Ignoring Fine Print

4th Time Lucky?

Shirley MacLaine is a sentimental favorite in Hollywood to win the Oscar as best actress after coming up empty in three previous tries.

But while sentiment is a powerful force in the film capital, most observers believe the voting will be close because of obvious waves of support for Diane Keaton, Jane Fonda, Anne Bancroft and Marsha Mason.

The Times and CJVI are offering a chance on a visit to Hollywood for two plus 10 other major prizes for readers who correctly predict the Oscar winners for best actress, best actor and best picture. Official entry form is in the advertisement on page 10.

This year she played opposite Anne Bancroft in The Turning Point and both have been nominated as best actress.

The use of TTIs — traffic ticket informations — by Saanich police has resulted in more than 14 motorists being arrested and detained.

Provincial court administrator George Williams said today authorities are concerned about people being locked up but suggested it may be that persons being issued the combination traffic ticket-information slips are ignoring the fine print.

Saanich began using the TTIs only about two months ago although authority for their use has existed for more than 10 years.

Victoria police are about to adopt the TTIs along with Oak Bay and Esquimalt police.

Central Saanich police use the TTIs and RCMP have issued them from about the time of their inception.

The ticket cites an alleged traffic offence and carries a date upon which the person receiving the ticket should appear in court to contest it.

There is an option to voluntarily pay a penalty before that date, which would end the matter.

"People are ignoring them," Williams said.

"They don't read the part on the ticket that says they are required to appear if they don't pay the voluntary penalty."

In such cases if the police officer concerned has sworn an affidavit proving service of the TTI, the court issues a warrant and the alleged offender is arrested.

Williams said in some cases a person may choose to pay the voluntary penalty yet still find himself in jail because his fine payment is in the mail.

To prevent this possibility, the court will hold on to arrest warrants for seven clear court days, Williams said.

Six Centres Hit By PWA

Pacific Western Airlines employees today hit six centres with 24-hour strikes — including three on Vancouver Island — causing delays of more than an hour on some flights.

The 550 members of the Canadian Air Lines Employees Association (CALEA) began the rotating strikes at noon Wednesday following the breakdown of negotiations the previous day.

The first centres to be hit were Cranbrook, Castlegar, Kamloops and Prince George, involving about 32 employees.

Cargo, passenger and reservation personnel today walked off the job at Yellowknife, Edmonton, Powell River, Comox, Campbell River and Port Hardy. About 200 employees are involved.

A check with the airline's arrival and departure desk showed that a morning flight from Edmonton to Vancouver was an hour and 32 minutes late and other delays ranged from 17 to 45 minutes.

PWA Flight 2100, Vancouver-Victoria-Seattle, was 45 minutes late departing this morning.

A CALEA spokesman said today flights will not be grounded because although pilots and flight attendants support the striking workers' cause they will continue to work because of stipulations in their contracts.

The CALEA members have also embarked on a work-to-rule campaign, have banned overtime and are holding study sessions in some centres.

Stiff Rules to Cut Gov't Car Costs

The provincial government has outlined tough new rules to ensure its 6,000-vehicle fleet is reduced in size and run more efficiently.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe said Wednesday a seven-page document sent out to government departments is designed to cut the cost of the fleet, worth about $30 million and costing about half that amount annually to run.

The document says there is to be no off-hour use of any government vehicle except on government business and one or two other specified exceptions.

Infractions of the personal-use policy will bring punishment ranging from written warnings to firing.

Basically the new policy calls for wider use of compact cars and stricter regulations on personal use of the vehicles.

Wolfe said some people may be frustrated by the new regulations but they are badly needed.

The policy is the result of a year-long study after a promise from Premier Bill Bennett that he would look into the government fleet.

The guidelines outline rules for buying, running, storing and replacements and calls for pooling wherever possible, and the suggestion public transit be used.

The forestry service and highways department operate about 1,700 vehicles each, and health and attorney-general's department about 800 each.

More than half the fleet consists of pick-up trucks and vans. Heavy equipment is not included in the 6,000 figure.

The policy document says a pool of cars should be kept at airports and ferry terminals for employees to choose from so that an individual's car is not left in an airport parking lot all day with no one else able to use it.

Individuals will be issued vehicles only when they drive more than 12,875 kilometres a year. Vehicles will be replaced only under stringent guidelines.

Small cars will be mandatory.

There are also plans for a vehicle identification program (VIP) and a computerized central registration of every vehicle so the government can keep track of its type, ministry and assigned location.

'High Hopes' Opera Produced in Canada

A new television soap opera, produced by an American company with many years of expertise in the field, but made in Canada with an all-Canadian cast, will debut on the CBC-TV network Monday afternoon, April 3. The half-hour drama serial will be seen Monday through Friday.

"High Hopes is unique," says CBC-TV Network Program Director Bill Morgan, announcing purchase of the daytime serial. Taped in Canada, for telecast on CBC television and in major American syndication markets, it will involve Canadian writers and directors as well as actors. The money CBC is contributing to the project will be used totally for the employment and development of Canadian talent. Indeed, we're particularly gratified to learn from the producers that the Canadian writing talent they have working on the show is such that their need to have writing help from the U.S. had diminished considerably.

"As well, though they had thought in terms of at least some of the principal characters being played by American actors, they found, once they started auditions here, that there were Canadian performers who were entirely suitable for every single role in the production. All in all, it is an exciting addition to the Canadian television scene."

Now in production at the studios of Glen-Warren Productions Limited, Toronto, High Hopes will also move out of the studio for location shooting. Though the setting is a typical North American city and suburb, the series will have Toronto scenes recognizable to Canadian audiences. High Hopes is produced by Young and Rubican, New York, in conjunction with DCA Productions.

Bruce Gray stars as Dr. Neal Chapman, whose personal and professional life as a family counsellor is the focal point of the continuing story, and whose problems sometimes rival those of his patients.

Central to the story are the women in the divorced Dr. Chapman's life — his teenage daughter Jessica (played by Marianne McIsaac), his mother (Doris Petrie), his attractive sister-in-law Paula (Nuala Fitzgerald), and Trudy (Barbara Kyle), a TV talk show host. Trudy's job adds an interesting element, a TV show within a TV show.

The story of High Hopes also follows the lives and problems of some of Dr. Chapman's patients, and as new characters appear many other Canadian actors will be cast.

Jayne Eastwood, for instance, will be introduced in one of the early episodes as a real estate agent, a character who will reappear in future episodes.

Four Canadian writers are already working with Winnifred Wolfe, head writer of High Hopes. They are Marian Waldman, Mort Forer, Patricia Watson and Bryan Barney.

Several Canadian directors will be worked into the production, eventually taking over from U.S. director Bruce M. Minnix.

Driscoll has produced six of the top American soap operas, including The Edge of Night (also seen on CBC-TV), As the World Turns, The Guiding Light, Search for Tomorrow, Love of Life, and The Secret Storm. Minnix has directed Search for Tomorrow, Somerset, and The Guiding Light, and Ms. Wolfe has written for all three, as well as serving as head writer for Somerset and As the World Turns.

THE ELIOT FELD BALLET is featured in Spoleto U.S.A.: A Festival Discovers America. The 20-year-old cultural arts festival from Spoleto, Italy, which includes interviews and performances of major artists, was recreated in Charleston, S.C., last May, and airs on March 30, at 10 p.m., on Channel 9.

CBC Radio Airs Junkin's Plays

Writer Harry Junkin returned to his home town of Winnipeg for both the setting and the production of his latest contribuion to CBC Radio drama, The Paranormals. Three psychological thrillers, feturing Dr. Jack Rock, senior professor of physiology at the University of Manitoba (played by Robert Haley) will be broadcast Thursdays on CBC Radio's Playhouse, March 30, April 6 and 13 at 8:04 p.m.

Junkin, creator of the TV series The Saint, Notorious Woman and Love of Life, plus countless commercials, soap operas, documentaries and feature films, will be remembered for his exciting series, The Chase which was twice broadcast on Playhouse.

Junkin returned to Winnipeg, after an absence of 38 years, to be "on hand to iron out any incongruities in the script." Though he found both the city and his friends changed, he managed to pick up where he left off before he undertook a writing career that took him to the States, Ireland and England. He has written over 1,000 radio scripts, and in addition to his TV programs, many of which have been shown in countries around the world, he has recently completed a stage comedy. Canaries Are For Cages will soon be produced in Paris and London.

The Paranormals (another word for supernatural) deal with parapsychology and Junkin describes them as "a little bizarre." Junkin's skills at creating cliff-hangers, red herrings, and an aura of suspense are well documented and The Paranormals are bound to have listeners on the edge of their seats, spines atingle.

The first play, on March 30, it titled The Thoroughbred, and in it a young student's obsession with his horse alarms his parents and his teacher, Dr. Jack Rock. Their intervention, however, does not produce quite the results they had hoped for. Michael Petty is the student Dave Kendall; Cliff Gardner and Doreen Brownstone are his parents; and Rebecca Toolan is Mrs. Godfrey.

PAYOFF PUZZLE

Correct Answers to Last Week's Puzzle

CLUES ACROSS

1. SPELL not spill. What he "tries" to do is to be successful in the general run of events, rather than specifically to avoid a spill.
7. MILLION not billion. He wouldn't have a billion dollars, so the question of losing them doesn't arise.
8. RIVER not diver. aptly, people can see the greatness of a mighty RIVER. They may not appreciate a diver.
9. PLANES not planet. PLANES in general, rather than "a planet" (singular) constitute a natural department of knowledge. Also, not a great deal may be known about a remote planet anyway.
13. WILD not wily. A wily scheme is too knowingly prepared for it to "prove illegal" (as if unexpectedly).
14. SIT not sip. From the relazed "way" they SIT, yes. The very fact that they sip at all, not the way, tells they are unhurried.
18. RENT not dent. RENT is the stronger answer, since a dent may be watertight and not an urgent problem.
20. NUTS not nets. The idea of buying "NUTS for birds," is natural and self-explanatory. In the other case, it's a question of getting nets for catching birds, or for keeping the birds off fruit, or whatever.
22. HATING not eating. HATING harmful things is an emotional matter it "does no practical good." Eating harmful things does active harm, rather.
24. BANNER not banter. Banter, is used, heard, etc., rather than "in evidence," as if on view.

CLUES DOWN:

2. PRINTER not painter. "Any" PRINTER, yes; but in abstract painting, for instance, there may be little question of accuracy, or of error.
3. LEEKS not leers. LEEKS is the more natural answer. It's not so much that a girl "doesn't like leers" (as if leers were some sort of offering or commodity), as that she doesn't like being leered at.
5. CLEAR not clean. "Intent" suggests mental effort.
12. PARTING not patting. The idea of precision patting of one's hair is less convincing than that of a scrupulously acurate PARTING.
14. SEEKING not seeming. A characteristic is something definite and relevant about a person, such as a tendency to seek to excuse oneself all the time; it's not just a question of how things seem to others.
17. SNOB not snub. A SNOB may possibly be "coldly ignored" (as opposed to being warmly greeted, or given a friendly acknowledgment). To show a cold reaction to a snub is hardly to ignore it: one ignores a snub by carrying on as if nothing had happened.
21. MEN not den. MEN is more comprehensively apt and more directly to the point. In the case of a den, the blame lies with the iniquitous MEN who make it what it is.

SOAP OPERA SCENE

Nurse Real Survivor

By STEVEN SCHEUER

NEW YORK — Put up the decorations, blow the horns, and cut the cake this week on the "General Hospital" set, it's time to salute a survivor.

On April Fools' Day, Emily McLaughlin passes the 15-year mark as Nurse Jessie Brewer. Dr. Steve Hardy's durable John Berardino is the only other member of the original cast who has gone the distance alongside Emily, and he becomes walleyed recalling Nurse Jessie's stormy past.

How does it go again? In 15 years, Jessie has been hyperactive to put it mildly. Married five times, widowed, divorced. She lost a pair of babies along the way, and endured a 10-day stretch in labor following an 11-month pregnancy. Jessie was also accused of murder, if you recall, when the plotting went slack . . . but those are only highlights.

Off-screen, Emily McLaughlin experienced losses and blows to the heart that rival Jessie's Flamboyant life on the screen. Following a divorce from actor Robert Lansing, Emily married Jeffrey Hunter, only to become a widow within five months. Physical problems have taken their toll over the seasons. Last year, for example, Emily cut it close with bleeding ulcers, and emerged from the hospital only a few weeks ago after ulcer drugs backfired.

Now that Emily has passed the 15-year mark with Jessie, does she consider quitting? "Not a chance," replies the spirited Emily. "I will go on, and Jessie will go on. Even if I leave, Jessie will carry on off-camera doing something."

When "General Hospital" expanded to an hour format, Emily signed a new limited contract allowing her to work two days a week. The youngsters on the show must do the real work since Emily and John have paid their dues.

But nurse Jessie isn't being written out. Emily has been talking to fresh writers on the show, and she claims Jessie will experience new traumas and dilemmas. Pressed for details, Emily refused to elaborate in true soap opera tradition. Don't give away the plot, keep the fans guessing.

Brewer fans need not panic. Having passed her 15th anniversary, Jessie is merely gassing up, getting a second wind. So, don't give up on Jessie Brewer. She'll probably outlive us all.

PLOT PORTENTS. Larry Atwood's rape of Julie continues to have dramatic repercussions, dominating the action on "Days of Our Lives." Mary is unable to face the prospect of Linda becoming her stepmother, and Margo, Chris's new secretaty, believes Linda to be her enemy. Lorraine's affair with Don, back in law school, threatens both his marriage and his political career.

What Karen wants, Karen will get on "The Young and the Restless," namely her real parents Nancy and Ron Becker. Leslie acts like a different person after that night with Lance, and she's determined to seek new horizons. Can Kay give up Derek and the bottle? That's the big question, and knowing Kay, she'll slip through somehow.

On "Ryan's Hope," Pat and Delia sail away on their cruise but Delia doesn't know that Pat is thinking of leaving her for good. Tom gets a letter from the immigraton department which bodes "bad news."

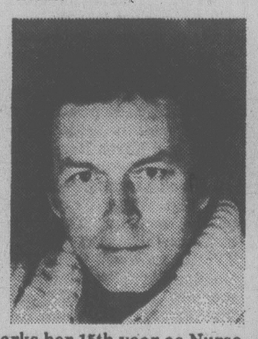
On "All My Children," Nick takes off leaving Erica angry and frustrated, so she turns to Tom for comfort. Edna's health problems deepen as David, who's not too stable himself, continues "treating" her.

Things are really cooking on "One Life to Live." Brad takes off to play in a tennis tournament but he has another good reason to leave town. Jack Scott arrives in Llanview and immediately challenges Dorain — she may have found her equal? Pat goes to work at The Banner, following her period of deep depression brought on by the hit-and-run accidental death of her son. Marco, the cad, forces Karen to "turn tricks."

Penny is finally secure with Tom and agrees to marriage on "Forever Fernwood." Battling for Martha, Mel also tangles with George's ghost. Merle comes to his senses and realizes he needs Wanda.

CHANNEL CHATTER. Christopher Bernau (Alan Spaulding in "Guiding Light") is so heavy into the story line these days that he had to give up his starring role in the Off-Broadway stage presentation of "The Passion of Dracula." Stefan Schnabel, who is seen in "Guiding Light" as Dr. Stephen Jackson, joined the cast of the Off-Broadway play, in the role of Professor Van Helsing, keeping the alliance between "Passion" and "Guiding Light" alive . . . Gorgeous Vivian Reed, who sizzled on Broadway in "Bubblin' Brown Sugar," will make a special one-time appearance on "One Life to Live" on April 13.

Gerald Gordon (Mark Dante in "General Hospital") may be leaving the popular soap in the next few months to star in a Broadway play by the prolific Neil Simon . . . Marie Cheatham (Stephanie Wyatt in "Search for Tomorrow") will be doing double duty when she moonlights in the New York City showcase production of Clifford Odets' meller, "Clash by Night." Marie is playing the leading role, one which was essayed by Lauren Bacall on the stage and Barbara Stanwyck in the movies . . . Look for John McCook (handsome Lance Prentiss in "The Young and the Restless") on Mitzi Gaynor's CBS special, airing on April 6th. Lance joins Mitzi in a musical sketch about — you guessed it — soaps! . . . Gordon Russell, one of the writers of "One Life to Live," wrote a play back in 1961 with his collaborator Larry Ward titled "Masterpiece," which was produced in London. The play, dealing with the Vermeer art forgeries in the '40s, is enjoying a current revival at the Peachtree Playhouse in Atlanta, Ga. . . . Marilyn McIntyre, who plays Carolyn Hanley in "Search for Tomorrow," received glowing notices in the Off-Broadway pay, "The Promise," written by Russian playwright Aleksei Arbuzov. She'll continue playing psychologist Carolyn by day and a Russian girl named Lika by night.



EMILY McLAUGHLIN marks her 15th year as Nurse Jessie Brewer on General Hospital. Christopher Bernau became so embroiled in the plot of The Guiding Light he had to give up his moonlighting role in the Off-Broadway play, The Passion of Dracula.

Junkin

A Throw of the Dice, April 6, involves a young man of 25 who bears the tattoo of a concentration camp shut down over 30 years ago. Dr. Rock attempts to discover the young man's secret and sinister significance of a pair of dice he carries. David Gillies plays the young man; Cedric Smith, Dr. Rosenberg; Gordon Stokoe, Sgt. Godofsky; and Graeme Norman, Mr. Lowery.

The last play on April 13 is titled The Sad Soft Sound of Music, in which a beautiful young student with no musical training plays the violin like a virtuoso. Dr. Rock suspects a bizarre influence as he tries to solve her "problem."

First Man-Powered Flight on Nova

On August 23, 1977, a collection of aluminum tubes, styrofoam and piano wire lifted off from a Californa airfield with a young cyclist at the controls, pedaling for all he was worth. After an unassisted take-off, the strange craft rose ten feet in the air and flew a figure eight course to become the first and only winner of the coveted Kremer Prize for man-powdered aviation. On "Icarius' Children" Wednesday, March 29 at 8 p.m. (and again Saturday, April 1 at 7 p.m.) on Channel 9, Nova tells the story of the events that led up to that moment.

To fly like a bird is one of man's oldest dreams. But while the attempts are legendary, the failures are legion. Although the principle of flight is simple, the matter of man producing enough power to lift his aircraft's gross weight and drag is infinitely complex.

In 1959, British industrialist Henry Kremer offered a prize now worth $87,000 to the first person to fly a course prescribed by the Royal Aeronautical Society. The rules stipulated the use of human power alone; to use an engine or to glide from a height would be cheating.

Kremer's offer sent competitors worldwide inventing contraptions to get off the ground. But it was Paul MacCready, Jr., an American aeronautical engineer and gliding champion, who on his tenth attempt lifted into the air and flew for 7 minutes and 22 and a half seconds, returning to earth a rich man.

In an era of 1300 m.p.h., SSTs and 500-passenger jumbo jets, it may not seem like a major accomplishment. But for "Icarius' Children," MacCready's flight was the inventive fulfillment of a long-cherished dream and a landmark in aviation history.

Nova is a production of WGBH/Boston made possible by grants from Exxon Corporation, the National Science Foundation, Public Television Stations, the Ford Foundation and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. Its presentation on KCTS/9 was made possible by Members of Nine.

Shopping for Antiques

If a thing of beauty is a joy forever, then Jacqueline Courtney must have been in seventh heaven the day she went antique shopping at Hunter's Antiques in Englewood, New Jersey. Surrounded by beautiful objets d'art, the glamorous star who portrays Pat Kendall on the ABC Television Network's One Life To Live, recently spent an enraptured couple of hours browsing among pieces spanning several periods of American and European antique history.

Today's Highlights

"I've Always Been A Political Animal"

The first thing you have to be careful about in any dealings with Judy Waytiuk, co-host of CBC-TV's MoneyMakers, is to get the name right — it's pronounced 'Way-chuk', although she'd thinking of changing it to Smith to make life easier.

★ ★ ★

Her reaction is "why not?"; after all she's a graduate of the University (Journalism, 70-71).

"I've always been a political animal," she says. "I thought at first of becoming a lawyer but that seemed too dry so I decided I'd rather be a political writer. Combining political studies and English made sense."

★ ★ ★

Following graduation, Judy joined the Free Press Report on Farming in her home town, Winnipeg, as an agricultural reporter specializing in the grain and commodity markets. Later she transferred to the Winnipeg Free Press as Business and Finance writer, again specializing in agriculture and commodity marketing but also taking in general finance as well. At this time she was also a freelance contributor to the Globe & Mail.

She entered television as a freelance researcher for CBC Winnipeg's agriculture and resources program Points West, and then joined the staff as story editor and commentor in 1975. Her other television work in Winnipeg included working on the Public Affairs series 24 Hours and co-hosting a local morning show. When MoneyMakers Executive Producer Peter Kappele was searching for someone to share the host duties with David Tafler, Judy's name was put foreward by Don Baron (Area Head, Agriculture & Resources), who knew of Judy's work from the Free Press days. Judy met David Tafler for the first time just a couple of months before the show went on the air in 1976. "We hit it off right away," she says. "We got on like a house on fire. When you have two hosts on a show it's hard to find personalities that blend well. One thing that pleased me was that there was none of that ego clash you so often find. We work well together."

Says Peter Kappele: "I had several people in mind at that time but no one had the inside track. When Judy's name came up I went out to Winnipeg on spec and talked to her over dinner. In fact we closed the restaurant, but within an hour I knew she was right for the job. She's a very bright girl with an understanding of economics and she has a lot of political savvy about things, not just Federal politics; she understands how things work. It seemed to me she knew who she was and where she was at — and she didn't try to con me."

MoneyMakers is the only network television series in business and finance and what it tries to do, says Judy, "is humanize economics." David does a lot of film items and more intensely economic stories. It's a heavy burden because he's combining this with his job as Editor of the Financial Times and his daily radio broadcasts. My field is more general, more spread out, which gives me time to be more of a gadfly. I like the White Knight on a charger interviews — injustices that need to be corrected, like the show we did on Walter Tilden of Tilden Car Rentals who was fighting the Federal government over an issue he felt very strongly about. It was a Canadian company that came third in its bid for rights to operate out of airports and it had been placed fifth, behind U.S. companies, by the government. It was stimulating because he felt he was right, and a good interview because he was taking a personal stand.

★ ★ ★

Judy's work on MoneyMakers takes up so much of her time that hobbies have to take a back seat, but she is presently working on a novel whenever she can. "At heart, I'm a writer," she says. "Television came up as an accidental opportunity for me. Eventually, though, I'd like to get off camera. I'm not into all that business of make-up and hairdressing. But anything I do will have to be in the public affairs area. I'm interested in the whole question of Confederation and what's happening in the West, particularly Alberta. The West is becoming more outspoken; the prairies are becoming more radical. There'll be hint of that here and there in many of our shows this season. I love my job and the work I'm doing but if I had my druthers I'd be doing the same thing out in the prairies."

Spacious Country-Style Home

The deeply-recessed porch and main entrance of this three-bedroom, full basement home are reminiscent of the country ranch house and yet the design provides the very latest of modern conveniences. This country feeling is carried forward by the shake roof, shuttered windows, and the mixed brick and vertical channel siding of the exterior finish.

Once inside, the impression of the "Wide Open Spaces" is emphasized by the "island" hall closet and the open and well-lighted L-shape living/dining room combination. The living room features a wide cantilevered fireplace which has the barbecue feature on the patio side. The dining room separates from the kitchen via pocket door and has easy access to the surround patio via sliding glass doors.

The U-shape kitchen is positioned centrally to the dining room and the large family room, providing for good separation of casual family meals and formal guest dining. Both kitchen and family room have ready access to the patio.

The two-piece vanity bathroom behind a pocket door is well-positioned for easy access from all downstairs areas, even the garage workshop.

One bedroom downstairs and two upstairs complete the accommodations of this fine home. The two upstairs bedrooms share the three-piece master bathroom. The large master bedroom has full-width closets behind louvered bi-fold doors and the secondary bedroom has a large walk-in closet. Large linen storage facilities are positioned immediately facing the master bath.

This design would make an excellent home for the medium-sized family which requires a sense of spaciousness and enjoys the casual, "outdoor-living" style of life which this home provides.

Plans for design No. 64-1709 may be obtained at a cost of $70.00 for the first set and $9.00 for each additional set, plus $4.00 for postage and handling. B.C. residents please include 7% sales tax.

HOLLYWOOD — The TV mailbag:

Q. On the show "Challenge of the Sexes," why isn't it a challenge? If they are going to have a show like that I think it should be fair and square. I think the women are getting by too easy. — A. C. Jefferson City, Mo.

A. Apparently many other viewers agree with you, judging by the mail I've received on the show. I can only say take up your complaints with CBS, which apparently feels the show is well balanced athletically speaking between the male and female competitors. The address is CBS Television Network, 51 W. 52nd St., New York, N.Y. 10019.

Q. How about some background information on the guy who plays T.J. on "Black Sheep?" — C.T. Victoria, B.C.

A. Robert Ginty, who plays T.J. Wiley in "Black Sheep," was in a movie before he got into acting. He was a drummer in a rock combo that performed in "OK Bill." He also had a small part, jumping into a pool.

Watching the actors perform in the film moved Ginty to consider putting away his drum sticks. He auditioned his way into a number of top New York drama schools and finally landed his first paying job, a part in a summer theatre production of Eugene O'Neill's "More Stately Mansions."

Good reviews led to subsequent roles in summer stock, off-Broadway productions, TV daytime serials ("All My Children" and "Guiding Light") and finally on Broadway.

A movie talent scout urged him to go to Hollywood, where he found roles in "Police Story," "Joe Forrester" and "The Rockford Files."

If I hadn't heard her say it with my own ears, I'd never have believed it was true: Pandora, Sylvia Fraser's virtuoso first novel about an appalling childhood, was based on autobiographical fact.

This extraordinary statement fell from Ms. Fraser's exotic lips during a Canadian Writers' Day at a Thunder Bay high school. "What, reely?" I gasped, with my usual sophisticated aplomb. She threw me a glance that managed to be both kindly and withering in roughly equal amounts. "Yes, reely," she said.

That's the trouble with the literary life in Canada. Our writers have allowed themselves to become more accessible, in a country yearning for insight into itself, than is sometimes good for them. If I hadn't heard Ms. Fraser's confession I might have suspected that her latest novel, A Casual Affair, was autobiographically based as well. But I did hear it, and as a result I'm not suspicious. I'm positive.

I don't ask you to believe it, however. My certainty is only the feeling-in-the-bones variety, and another set of bones might feel quite differently. I mention it only because it's bound to have an influence on my review.

A Casual Affair, in fact, reads like a sequel to Pandora. Its heroine is much the sort of person Pandora might have become: creative (she is an artist-photographer), beautiful ("pale blonde hair pulled sleekly back from pale forehead, her face dramatically moulded around deep blue eyes"), chic ("everything was white or silver"), dissatisfied ("I'm going to leave Paul. I've been trying to for over a year, but whenever the conversation gets troublesome he locks himself in his study").

Like Pandora, Fraser's latest heroine was a troubled child. When she decides to break with her husband she instinctively chooses a lover who will do her more harm than good; months later, over the ruin of their relationship, she realizes "there had been . . . some need to use this situation to go back into the past as a way of gaining access to her future . . . some compulsion to repeat the pain and the hope and the futility and the sorrow of her childhood to resolve it, to force a happy ending . . . or, failing that, to prove to herself . . . that the past could not be changed or corrected, only accepted . . . that maybe there were no miracles."

The lover, both in and between the lines, emerges as a complete and utter cad, and it is a credit to Fraser's powers of description that her heroine's attraction to him is made believable. ("She felt him come up behind her, trampling the fresh green shoots of grass, casting his shadow across her page. She felt the thin envelope of air between them hum with the beat, the breath, the dynamics of him . . .")

Pat Barclay

FRASER . . . fairytales for adults

At the heart of their conflict is his fear of love and commitment and her insistence on honesty, a trait which she carries to insulting extremes. (I once knew a psychology student who drove everyone bananas by subjecting their every word and detail of dress to patronizing psychoanalysis. Fraser's heroine behaves in much the same way.) The novel depicts the life cycle of their affair with clinical precision, relieved by a series of original fairytales for adults which are interspersed between rounds like ringside commentary at a boxing match.

"Fairytales were important to her," writes Fraser. "She saw them as psychic shorthand . . . She believed all of us — in our dreams, in our unconscious lives — write our own fairytales, and that if we could discover these we could understand our own past, our own present . . . get glimpses of our future."

Brilliant though Fraser's fairytales may be (and brilliant they are, undoubtedly), she has somehow got her logic reversed. Fairytales are fanciful patterns which teach us how to cope with real life, not something one superimposes on life in an effort to make it conform to a satisfactory pattern.

Fraser's heroine's search for identity is doomed to frustration, because she has rejected her real roots. A Casual Affair is a story about alienation, about a heroine with no generational links either to the past or to the future. Like Pandora, she keeps going on the strength of her natural endowments and the indomitable hope that somewhere, someday, a genuine miracle will somehow turn up.

A Casual Affair was a necessary book for Sylvia Fraser, but despite its daring it falls short of her achievements in Pandora and The Candy Factory. Such things happen, when a writer is too close to his or her material.

Remarkable Alliance Keeps its Secret

By JACK SCOTT

If nothing else, Axel Madsen's Hearts and Minds may have the salubrious effect of leading the reader to one or more of the four autobiographical works of Simone de Beauvoir, all too long neglected on this continent.

Simone is quoted liberally in this somewhat tedious examination of her 50-year relationship with Jean Paul Sartre, the father of French atheistic existentialism, whatever it may be. With her compassion, her intelligence, her respect for her less-intellectual audience, she makes some sense of a strange affair or, at any rate, strange by our North American standards.

The same could hardly be said of Sartre, a most difficult man to understand, or for author Madsen's heavily-researched and confusing book. It's not Madsen's fault, of course, that Jean-Paul and Simone have had a complex relationship — true love, apparently, hasn't prevented either party from having consummated affairs with other parties, Jean-Paul going so far as the formal adoption of one of his younger companions — but a biographer should contribute more to an understanding of his subject or subjects than is to be found here.

What this relationship really comes down to, it would appear, is a mutual, if murky, idealism, a genuine intellectualism, a contempt for the bourgeosie and the fact that both were prolific, talented writers. That much is clear. The rest remains shrouded in Madsen's self-conscious prose.

The author, who gropes industriously for the secret of that alliance, but never very successfully, comes closest in considering his subjects in their ripe-on-the-bough years:

"To the aging Sartre the Evil standing in the way of transluscence, the Evil locking each of us into our alienation and secrets is whatever obstructs one human being from communing with another," he writes. "We may deliver our bodies to each other's gaze and, in the sexual act, to contact, but we have not yet learned to give each other our minds, although ideas, too, are variations of the flesh. If social concord is to exist one day we must learn to exist entirely for each other. If demands are empty, Beauvoir has said, they result in discontent. To demand happiness means already to possess a capacity for happiness."

SARTRE

DE BEAUVOIR
. . . 'a certain fidelity'

That "common ground" may seem somewhat obscure, yet it may be the glue that has held them together for a lifetime. That that carries on now in their declining years — Sartre is all but blind, Simone is crippled by arthritis — is surely one of the great love stories, though the less enlightened reader may well wonder at their frequent "holidays" from each other.

Is it possible to reconcile fidelity with total freedom? Again, it is a quote from one of Simone's autobiographical works, Force of Circumstance, that gives some perspective into this working-romantic relationship.

"Often preached, rarely practised, complete fidelity is usually experienced by those who impose it on themselves as a mutilation; they console themselves by sublimations or by drink," she believes. "Traditionally, marriage used to allow the man a few 'adventures on the side' without reciprocity; nowadays, many women have become aware of their rights and of the conditions necessary for their happiness — if there is nothing in their own lives to compensate for masculine fickleness, they will fall prey to jealousy and boredom. There are many couples who conclude more or less the same pact as Sartre and myself — to maintain throughout all deviations from the main path a 'certain fidelity.' I have been faithful to thee, Cynara, in my fashion."

The reader may agree or disagree with this rationalization, but certainly for these two it seems to have worked.

Sartre's own much-debated philosophy of existentialism, which first surfaced in 1946, is touched on but fleetingly by Madsen, though it is essential to an understanding of the view of human existence that seems to have motivated both Jean-Paul and Simone.

Writing of Sartre's original treatise, Madsen notes merely that it "says that human existence must be seen in a constantly fleeing reality and with man himself constantly changing . . . We must give our life both meaning and direction individually. We are only the sum of what we do with ourselves. To be is to choose — freely. This freedom cannot be denied or rejected; man is condemned to be free, which explains the metaphysical anxiety that makes him realize both the Nothingness he comes from and the uncertainty of the choices that allow him to aspire to Being."

That this skirts a philosophy that has been both a craze and a confusion inevitably leaves more questions than helpful answers. Unhappily, this is true of every facet in the lives of Jean-Paul and Simone, as Madsen presents them, a case of carrying forward the mystique without explanation. The result is an unsatisfying, often annoying, book about a remarkable pair who have deserved more.

The Confederation Bookshelf I

Three attempts to Explain the Quebec Crisis

By WALTER YOUNG

John Harbron's little book is an earnest attempt to move beyond the shambles of alternatives and options that presently bedevil confederation watchers, and start from the premise that Quebec is going to go. That approach places him squarely in the camp of the prognosticators, where anyone's guess is as good as another's.

What distinguishes Harbron is his interest in Latin America and his view that there are striking parallels between, for example, Argentina and Canada. Harbron's scenario for Canada without Quebec draws heavily on his Latin American experience.

In his view, both the new Canada and the new Quebec would be wise to follow the example of Mexico in their dealings with the United States, and both would be wise to forge strong ties with Latin America to stave off American absorption.

Thin Parallel

It is, without a doubt, a unique approach, almost bizarre in spots. And while it would be cavalier to deny that insight is where you find it, some of the comparisons are so thin they could never support an argument. The notion that "Quebec has long resembled the Spanish-American nation states which achieved their political independence 150 years ago," is far-fetched. When Harbron describes the separation of Quebec as "quite logical" because "with the sole exception of Puerto Rico, all former Spanish and Portuguese colonies have achieved independence," it seems that his determination to make the parallel stick has overcome his judgment.

Harbron's other fascination is with the Canadian Arctic. In considering life without Quebec, Canada must engage in the kind of long-term planning that, Harbron insists, many corporations conduct. His example is Dome Petroleum. Given the same single-mindedness, Canada could offset the loss of Quebec by concentrating on the north, decentralizing planning and administration, and moving the centre of operations West. Harbron proposes Edmonton for the new federal capital of Canada; after all, "Edmonton is a Brasilia of the north . . ."

Douglas Fullerton's examination of the current crisis, on the other hand, is dedicated to the proposition that it would be a terrible mistake for Quebec to separate. Clearly not imbued with the historical determinism of Harbron, Fullerton rests his case on what he considers to be the hard, practical evidence, drawn, in large measure, from his own experience.

Aficionados of Ottawa in the winter will know Fullerton as the man who opened the canal to skaters when he was head of the National Capital Commission. The more knowledgeable will recognize him as a man of remarkably wide experience in public affairs: adviser to governments, consultant and journalist.

To begin with, what Fullerton has written is a personal statement, cast in the first person and autobiographical in character. The greater part of the book is devoted to establishing Fullerton's bona fides as a commentator on the policies of the Parti Quebecois government. His close involvement in a variety of capacities with economic development in Quebec as well as his association with the National Capital Commission — which includes in its ambit both sides of the Ottawa river — give Fullerton a unique perspective.

Quoting frequently from his own newspaper columns, he advances his critique of Levesque's government in the final chapters. On the language policy his views are characteristically direct: it is unnecessary, unworkable, economically harmful and divisive. Fullerton shares the view of Laval political scientist Vincent Lemieux that the provocative nature of the language bill is deliberate. The PQ government needs to preserve a state of crisis in order to succeed with the referendum.

On separation Fullerton is equally vigorous — it is an emotional obsession in collision with economic realities. In his view the policies of the Levesque government in this regard are fundamentally racist, designed to "persuade French-speaking Quebecers that their language is threatened, and that all the problems facing them are due either to federal discrimination against Quebec or Anglo-Saxon domination of the Quebec economy."

Citing the arguments of Ontario's Treasurer, Darcy McKeough, and Simon Reisman, Fullerton claims that a separated Quebec would be in a difficult position economically. Quebec, he suggests, needs Canada more than Canada needs Quebec.

In What Does Quebec Want, Andre Bernard avoids both the idiosyncracies of Harbron and the spleen of Fullerton by undertaking to set out for English-Canadian readers the nationalist position in Quebec. In doing so he provides a cameo portrait of the platforms of all the parties in that province, although his main focus is on the PQ. Bernard is a political scientist at the Universite de Montreal and he does himself and his profession credit by providing a balanced view, using statistics, survey data and supporting documentation in an illuminating and modest way.

Nationalist

For all that it is clear that Bernard is more nationalist than federalist. That is not a disadvantage, however, for the clarity of his exposition of the nationalist position benefits from his sympathetic understanding.

What emerges from the exposition is the obvious; when all the statistical and financial arguments are put aside, several essential facts remain: many Quebecers consider themselves to be an oppressed and underprivileged minority compared with the Anglophones in Canada; a majority do not consider themselves Canadians in the ways that English-speaking people in this country consider themselves Canadians; and finally, it is quite likely that the most we can salvage from the present situation is some form of sovereignty association.

For many, the nationalist arguments that Bernard explores will come as a surprise. Quebec nationalists, for example, consider Mirabel to be an airport built to serve the interests of the Anglos in Montreal and Ottawa to the detriment of the

Quebecers in the Eastern Townships. The view from the other side of the Ottawa River is, of course, that the Mirabel flying white elephant was one more example of Ottawa attempting to buy off Quebec.

Equally startling is the nationalist view that Canada's trade is biased in favor of English-speaking countries, particularly the United States and the United Kingdom. Bernard points out that we trade more with Japan than with Britain, but that less than one per cent of our foreign trade is with France. Admittedly, this is not a particularly impressive argument. If, however, one is inclined to believe the worst about English Canada, then it is one more straw.

Much of the nationalist position is based on the premise that what is not spent directly in Quebec or on Quebecers is of no benefit to Quebec. And this reflects the fundamental view that Quebec really isn't part of Canada. It is this perception that leads Quebec nationalists to assert that most of the decisions made in Ottawa benefit English-speaking Canadians and not French-speaking Quebecers. That Ottawa's decisions should appear so to the nationalists isn't surprising, given the size and distribution of Canada's population. They reject the notion that money spent on, say, fisheries patrols in B.C., benefits all Canadians. At a minimum, the PQ insists, Quebec should get 28 per cent of money spent, for example, on scientific and cultural grants, since Quebecers make up to 28 per cent of Canada's population. The core of the nationalist position is ethnocentrism.

Grievances

Bernard does a creditable job of demonstrating that the economic and industrial lag in Quebec compared with Ontario is due to other factors than federal indifference and Ottawa's pro-anglophone biases. Nevertheless, it is clear from his exposition that there are genuine grievances in Quebec, grievances that have provided a foundation for nationalist support.

What Quebec wants is, first, to preserve and extend the use of the French language in Quebec; second, to see the Quebec economy controlled by the Quebec government "to the benefit of French-speaking entrepreneurs, managers and workers," and third, that the political institutions in Quebec should be sufficiently under the control of Quebecers that Quebec would truly become the national homeland of French-speaking Quebecers. Already, as Bernard points out, "they feel a loyalty to the Quebec government and to the territorial symbols of Quebec . . . that outweighs the loyalty felt toward the federal government and the territorial symbols of Canada."

It all adds up to sovereignty association. The next question is whether Canada is ready for that; it is painfully clear that we are doing everything but face that very real possibility.

Stepping-stones to Liberation

By JULIAN REID

Until recently, the 5,000-year-old Indian spiritual discipline of Tantra has had a bad press — largely because of sensationalized accounts of the sexual rituals engaged in by some of its postulants. But in fact, as Ajit Mookerjee and Madhu Khanna demonstrate in their richly illustrated introduction to The Tantric Way, this rigorously non-ascetic school of Yoga has a good deal to offer Western man in the way of insights relevant to his own troubled condition.

The name "Tantra," they explain, derives from the Sanskrit "tan-," to expand — and thus the discipline's real concern is with the expansion of individual consciousness. It aims at realizing this goal by reconciling the two opposed polarities of existence, the male and the female principles, as they manifest themselves within the mind and body of each and every one of us.

Hence the much-publicized sexual rituals practised by the "left-hand tantrikas," for one of the several paths Tantra recognizes towards this goal involves the systematic cultivation and redirection of sexual energies toward the ultimate aim of transcending them. But Mookerjee and Khanna set such readily misunderstood concerns within the larger context defined by the fundamental Tantric premise that "those very aspects of human nature which bind us can be stepping-stones to liberation."

As one classic text puts it: "No one succeeds in attaining perfection by employing difficult and vexing operations; but perfection can be gained by satisfying all one's desires." And while The Tantric Way makes no pretence of being a comprehensive manual of Tantric techniques for achieving this end, it does succeed admirably well as a brief but mind-opening general introduction to a persistently misrepresented subject.

It is beginning to look as if Winston Spencer Churchill is going to replace Napoleon as the most written about non-religious figure in history. Every few months a book about him appears, to add to the scores already published, but all these constitute a mere drop in the ocean compared to what lies in store.

When the authorized multi-volume Churchill biography is complete the closely guarded Churchill papers will be released, and the historians can hardly wait to pounce on them to gain an accurate portrait of the most controversial figure of the 20th century. And as historians clash with historians over interpretations the unending search for the real Churchill will begin in earnest.

There are two good reasons for this. Firstly, Churchill's own historical works are notoriously unreliable as source material because it is known that he twisted facts to suit his argument. An example was the bias and deliberate suppression of evidence in the biography of Marlborough, which was severely criticized by Dutch historians.

Secondly, the authorized biography is suspect because neither Randolph Churchill, who began it, nor Martin Gilbert, who has continued it, can be regarded as uncommitted men — the former because of filial piety and the latter because he has been a leader of a group which has blamed Neville Chamberlain and his colleagues for all the mistakes and tragedies of the 1930s, an unjust accusation in view of the more balanced perspective gained from studying recently released records and correspondence.

A good idea of what we can expect in quantity can be gained by reading Churchill and the Admirals, by Stephen Roskill, a book I wasn't particularly anxious to read but which once begun easily held my attention.

Captain Roskill is Britain's premier naval historian. He wrote The War at Sea 1939-1945 as part of the official United Kingdom Military History Series and, among other books, the two-volume Naval Policy Between the Wars, which experts believe will be a major source of reference for years to come.

Roskill is well qualified to write about Churchill and the admirals on the strength of his past work, but what makes this book unique is that Roskill knew most of the British admirals of the Second World War, some of them intimately, and he has had access to their private papers in addition to all relevant Admiralty and Cabinet documents, of which he is the unrivalled master.

Like everyone else, Roskill is lavish in his praise of Churchill's genius as a war leader, but when it comes to strictly naval matters it's another story. Documented evidence makes it clear that every British admiral had to contend with both the enemy and with Churchill and that of the two Churchill was the greater menace — enemy action being intermittent whereas Churchill's was incessant.

Churchill's chief fault, Roskill shows, was that he always thought in First World War terms and as his mistakes in 1914-15 as First Lord of the Admiralty all but put paid to his political career, he was determined to avoid a recurrence, and this he did, not by making wise appointments and avoiding errors but by making himself all-powerful.

On becoming prime minister in 1940 he appointed himself minister of defence, which gave him the right — which he exercised to the full — to appoint all senior commanders and dictate strategy and tactics. As he was a bad judge of character and his ideas relating to strategy and tactics bore scant resemblance to reality, the war was won, Roskill infers, despite Churchill's disastrous interference.

As First Lord of the Admiralty he appointed A. V. Alexander, a rather ineffectual Labor politician who was overawed by Churchill, and as First Sea Lord Admiral Sir Dudley Pound, a sick man (he was to die during the war of a brain tumor) who lacked the resolution to stand up to his tyrannical master. Both men were putty in Churchill's hands.

The evidence shows that in Churchill's eyes a good admiral was one who was offensive-minded, totally subservient to him, and willing to go along with any fool scheme devised by himself or Professor Lindemann, whose grimly farcical lunacies were the despair of his fellow scientists. Failure in battle was rarely tolerated; failure to obey Churchill was never forgiven and would result in disgrace and banishment. Every admiral, even the great A. B. Cunningham, was accused of pusillanimity, and Roskill lists every instance of Churchill's vindictiveness.

As well as showing that the prime minister's vaunted magnanimity was extremely selective, Roskill also questions his humaneness. Here are three-varied examples:

A staff captain at the Admiralty made a slip through forgetfulness and was reprimanded and sent to sea. Churchill demanded harsher punishment — either half-pay or a court-martial.

Churchill ordered Pound to cripple the German battleship, Tirpitz, adding, "the loss of 100 aircraft and 500 airmen will be well compensated for."

He informed General Wavell that the small number of casualties incurred during the evacuation of British Somaliland was "rather a pregnant fact." Wavell replied: "A big butcher's bill is not necessarily evidence of good tactics." Churchill never forgave him and took the first opportunity to relieve him of command in the Middle East.

CHURCHILL . . . 'the honeymoon is over'

To these, and scores of other examples quoted, one may add the insane 1,000-bomber terror raids on German cities, which stiffened enemy resistance and deprived all theatres of Air Force assistance, and the sending to Greece of a Commonwealth expeditionary force of 58,000 soldiers and their equipment. After the debacle in Greece and Crete the Navy, at great cost, managed to save only 16,500. As one of the survivors I was not too pleased to read in Anthony Eden's memoirs that it had been a political gesture and that "the force was considered expendable."

Incidentally, Roskill, who terms the Greek escapade "little short of lunacy," points out that it prevented Wavell's depleted army from capturing Tripoli and frustrated the Navy's chance to cut the main Axis supply route to Africa. So much for Churchill's strategy!

Roskill doesn't spare Churchill; there's an indictment on practically every page, each one made more deadly by the author's impeccable scholarship and elegant and restrained style, and never more so than when quoting Churchill (to Roosevelt) in February, 1941: "I do not myself think that the Japanese would be likely ... to lay siege to Singapore," and in August, 1941: "Japan will lie quiet for a while." In December, 1941, Japan had conquered Malaya and Singapore, and the battleships Repulse and Prince of Wales were at the bottom of the Indian Ocean — for which Churchill blamed an admiral.

As a Navy man Roskill may be accused of bias, and I did detect a certain amount of barely suppressed glee in the narrative, but it's difficult to find fault with such meticulous research, particularly when the book is so superbly readable.

And, I repeat, the Churchill honeymoon is over and this is the kind of book we may expect in increasing numbers in the near future — books that will acknowledge Churchill's energy, genius and marvellous rhetoric, but will also examine his less attractive features, such as an enjoyment of war, favoritism for fellow aristocrats, love of dictatorship (only his own, of course), innate snobbery, contempt for workers, political unreliability, and a spoilt child reaction whenever thwarted.

CHURCHILL AND THE ADMIRALS*, by Stephen Roskill. Collins. $19.95.

A New 'Book-Magazine' for Young Canadian Readers

By JUDITH TERRY

Magook is a lively new idea in children's book publishing being promoted by Jack McClelland. Each Magook, as you might guess from the title, combines the functions of magazine plus book, containing in each issue an illustrated story plus 16 pages of magazine items. Five are now available, and besides consisting of wholly Canadian material are on good quality paper, in full color, well reproduced. At $1.95 a most attractive proposition.

The magazine sections are what you would expect, no better, no worse. More depends, I think, on the book part of the combination, and since only one out of five really bombs (The Land of Urd, a depressingly poor fantasy), Magook can be said to have got off to a very respectable start.

Ann Blades' The Cottage at Crescent Beach opens the series with a mood book that evokes our kind of scenery. Although her figures are occasionally a little wooden, Blades paints the sea and mountains with a simple, flowing line and merging color that express both the beauty of the landscape and the shining delight of the children's ordinary day at a beach near Vancouver: collecting bottles, sliding down the sand cliff, having a wiener roast.

Magook 2 contains A Secret in My Pocket, written in an intriguing combination of French and English. In a simple tale about a girl wanting a pet and the frog she adopts until a puppy arrives, the author, Madeline Kronby, has engineered the text so that the French is self-explanatory or explained by the pictures. Amongst all the tub-thumping about bilingualism, this is a natural unforced approach that teaches without being a textbook; born out of bilingualism as it were, instead of just calculated to produce it. It has been written, usefully enough, so that it can be read as a play by classes of students who are learning a second language.

A child's guide to nature, Snails, Slugs, Spiders and Bugs, makes up Magook 3. Each full-page illustration shows native plants and animals which can be identified by reference to charts at the end (laborious but worthwhile). The book is marred by the ghastly rhymes:

or:

They live in water, or up on the top
Some swim, or glide, or come out to hop.

What were the editorial advisers thinking of? If it is any comfort there is only one line to each page.

A "Why" story written in the folk-tale idiom by Aviva Layton explains the origin of music in Magook 5. The central idea — five black stones wail until set in the right order on five fence rails — although contrived rather than vivid, is quite neat, especially since there is no mention that this is musical notation; you have to spot that for yourself.

While it is true that I wouldn't tip any one of the stories as a runaway winner in either pictures or text, it is clear that Magook is a viable format in which Canadian material is not simply available but competitively attractive. All the stories, by the way, are sold separately in hardback at $4.95.

by international recording artist, Sylvia Tyson, and broadcaster, Dug Lennox. Tonight's program is commemorating Celtic Week, a Maritime special on Celtic music.

11:20 p.m. Nightcap — With host Jim Coward, in Montreal. Peter Karstens, director of the Calgary zoo, is also a wild-life painter. He talks about his work and art. Also, a portrait of one of Canada's foremost sculptors, Joe Fafard. Also, The Glass Key, by Dashiell Hammett, a story of small town politics.

FM Network

9:04 p.m. Sound Reviews — For audiophiles and for the novice, Sound Reviews provides a variety of regular features. In each program, reviewers discuss the latest classical releases in one particular genre — such as choral, operatic or symphonic music — and compare various recordings of the same work. Another weekly feature gives pointers on building a library. And a regular quiz offers winners a chance to add to their record collections for free.

WEDNESDAY
AM Network

10:20 p.m. Mostly Music — Host: Howard Dyck. Tonight: The CBC Winnipeg Orchestra, conducted by Ruben Gurevich; Paul Barkowitz, piano: Dance Suite (1923) (Bartok); Piano Concerto No. 4 in G major, Opus 58 (Beethoven).

12:10 a.m. Electric Circus — Host Allan McFee presents a mixture of several musical idioms in his own wry and witty style — from Bach to Brubeck.

FM Network

8:04 p.m. Ideas — "The Pollution Scenario," a new analysis of pollution events. Retrospective studies of past disasters and a prospective . . . view of what's coming next. Excerpts from a conference: Politics . . . and the Environment. Experts vs. victims. Three new hazards and a review of continuing ones. A practical scheme for halting the epidemic.

THURSDAY
AM Network

8:04 p.m. Playhouse — The Paranormals, by Harry Junkin, three psychological thrillers featuring Robert Haley as Dr. Jack Rock, senior professor of physiology at the University of Manitoba. Directed by Colin Jackson in Winnipeg. A Throw of the Dice: How could a young man of 25 bear the tattoo of a concentration camp shut down 30 years ago? Dr. Jack Rock attempts to discover the young man's secret and the sinister significance of the pair of dice he carries. With David Gillies, Spencer Bolily; Cedric Smith, Dr. Rosenberg; Gordon Stokoe, Sgt. Godofsky; Graeme Norman, Mr. Lowery.

11:20 p.m. Nightcap — Novelist Risi Murdoch whose latest book is The Fire and The Sun: Why Plato Banished the Artists," talks about herself as writer and philosopher. Also, The Glass Key — Part IV.

FM Network

3:34 p.m. Playhouse — The Paranormals, by Harry Junkin, three psychological thrillers featuring Robert Haley as Dr. Jack Rock, senior professor of physiology at the University of Manitoba. For more details see today's listing on AM Network at 8:04 p.m.

8:04 p.m. Ideas — Music and Technology. Documentaries with musical and/or sound examples of the new resources for music . . . creators. Norma Beecroft spoke to those people who created our new musical technological environment. John Cage, Karlheinz Stockhausen, Elliott Carter, Otto Luening, Henri Pousseur, Iannis Zanakis, Luciano Berio et al.

FRIDAY
AM Network

8:04 p.m. Our Friends the Flickers — A movie parlour game to test your knowledge of films. With host George Balcan and regular panelists Martin Malina, Fred Garmaise, Grant Munro, and Myron Galloway competing in teams to answer movie questions.

11:20 p.m. Nightcap — One of the most influential jazz critics of the '30s, John Hammond fought hard for the recognition of jazz as a serious art form and for black rights in the U.S. He remembers some of the jazz greats he discovered and the days when New York's nightlife was strictly segregated. Also, "The Glass Key" (Part V).

FM Network

8:04 p.m. Ideas — "Ideas Debates." Spot the future Prime Ministers of Britain and the Commonwealth as we bring you the best of Oxford and Cambridge debates, plus others which display a comparable wit and intellect.

9:04 p.m. Radio International — An adaptation for radio of the classic religious allegory from 17th century England, "The Pilgrim's Progress," by John Bunyan. This superb stereo presentation features original music by Ralph Vaughan Williams, and a cast headed by Sir John Gielgud as Christian. "The Pilgrim's Progress" was first published in 1678 and has never been out of print since. It is a vivid and dramatic account of a man's spiritual journey through life. Bunyan based it firmly on his own experiences and on the Evangelical protestant doctrines in which he believed, but it has a universal quality that has brought the book worldwide popularity among people of widely differing beliefs. Vaughan Williams' music for the production was written in 1943, and tonight's program will include a suite of seven extracts from the music, which will follow the play itself.

Model MRC2489
Introducing Admiral's new Micro-Range™ oven with Meal-A-Matic™ microcomputer control. It has six memory levels for fast, easy care-free cooking. You can program meals at the touch of a finger.
Easy to understand, easy to operate! Use digit pads 0 to 9 to set clock, enter defrost or cooking times, the cooking power levels and independent timer. Just enter the cooking sequences in any order. Meal-A-Matic™ computes your instructions and executes each cooking sequence in a fixed manner starting with defrost.
Look what you can do! For simple Micro-Range™ cooking, set for defrost time then for cooking time. Meal-A-Matic™ switches from first stage to second automatically, turns off when finished, then signals you. You can even program a change in cooking instructions (e.g. high for 6 minutes, then cook at a lower power level temperature for 8 minutes). Gourmet variable cooking controls let you select the power level you want for controlled cooking. Stop time feature lets you program your oven to complete its cooking sequence(s) at a prescribed time without any complex calculations.
More great features! Temperature Sensor/Meat Probe cooks food to pre-set temperature and then shuts off automatically—

LED digital clock shows time of day, cooking times, temperatures, even tells you when you've made a programming error—Cancel pad lets you erase everything. Repeating an incorrect sequence lets you reset that sequence if necessary—Error signal alerts you when a programming mistake is made—Magic Wand™ Beam Stirrer—End of cycle signal—Push-to-start pad—Push-button door release—Handy cookbook—Cooking reference guide printed on inside of oven door—1.2 cu. ft. cap. oven—15¼" H, 24" W, 18¾" D.

Magic Wand™ Beam Stirrer ensures uniform cooking results in your Admiral Micro-Range™. Microwaves are directed towards a slowly rotating wand that stirs the waves evenly throughout the oven interior.

Temperature Sensor/Meat Probe lets the probe judge the doneness of your food. Just insert probe into food and set temperature desired. When food is cooked, the oven stops cooking automatically.

Model MRC2488
Admiral Micro-Range™ oven is packed with many deluxe convenient features you want the most for fast, care-free cooking. And it's easy to operate!
Variable Cook Control lets you select the power level you want for either cooking time or for temperature cooking. You can cook at high power or low power or anywhere inbetween. This is an outstanding feature that's great for controlled cooking of those delicious gourmet foods.

Temperature Sensor/Meat Probe lets the probe judge the doneness of your food when cooking to a pre-set temperature. When food is cooked, the oven turns off automatically.
